PROPOSALS.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS—Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned, at his office in the Capitol at Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, February 18, 1919, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for the improvement of the state canals as authorized by Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903 and amendatory laws, and chapter 391 of the Laws of 1909; and for the construction of barge canal terminals pursuant to the provisions of chapter 746 of the Laws of 1911, as follows:

Terminal Contract No. 57.

For constructing certain parts of an approach from Court Street and South Avenue to the barge canal terminal at Rochester.

Contract plans, sheets 1 to 10 inclusive.

Terminal Contract No. 69.

For installing electric wiring, lighting, power and battery charging equipment for the canal terminal at Erie Basin, Buffalo.

Terminal Contract No. 223.

For constructing a barge canal terminal freight shed at Greenpoint, Brooklyn, New York City.

Contract plans, sheets 1 to 11 inclusive.

Erie Canal—Sections 9 and 10.

For driving steel sheet piling, placing concrete lining and incidental work between Rochester and Lockport.

Erie Canal—Section 9.

Sheets 1 to 3 inclusive.

Contract Q.
Cayuga and Seneca Canal—Section 1.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y., and at the office of the State Engineer and Surveyor.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the City of Albany or New York, issued by a national or state bank (or trust company in the case of terminal contract) in good credit within the state and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The bond required for the faithful performance of each contract shall be in such sum as shall be fixed by the Superintendent of Public Works, which sum shall not be less than twenty per centum (20 per cent.) of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

W. W. WOTHERSPOON,
Superintendent of Public Works.

TO THE HOLDERS OF

NEW ORLEANS RAILWAY & LIGHT CO.

REFUNDING AND GENERAL LIEN FIVE PER CENTUM GOLD BONDS

Bearing Date November 1, 1909, and Maturing November 1, 1949

The holders of large amounts of the securities above mentioned, being of the opinion that immediate steps should be taken to protect their interests therein, have requested the undersigned to act as a Committee to receive deposits thereof. A Receiver of the property of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company was appointed by the United States District Court on the ninth day of January, 1919, and the default of the company in the payment of interest upon its General Mortgage Four and One-half Per Cent. Gold Bonds, which occurred on January 1, 1919, still continues. The period of grace provided in the mortgage securing said bonds, within which such default may be cured, will expire within ninety days from the said first day of January, 1919. Should the default continue thereafter, the holders of said bonds would have the right to compel the foreclosure of said mortgage.

In view of these conditions, it is most urgent that the holders of the above mentioned Refunding and General Lien Five Per Centum Gold Bonds of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company, for their own protection, should organize at once for united action under a Committee having adequate power and authority. Holders of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company Refunding and General Lien Five Per Centum Gold Bonds are therefore requested to deposit their bonds with the Depositary or one of the Sub-Depositaries named below under a Bondholders' Agreement duly executed, under date of January 21, 1919. All bonds so deposited must be in negotiable form and must bear the May 1, 1919, and subsequent coupons. All depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names.

Before any depositor shall become bound by the terms of any plan or agreement of reorganization or readjustment made or approved by this Committee, he shall have an opportunity to withdraw on the terms and provisions set forth in the Bondholders' Agreement, which provides that withdrawing depositors shall not be required to pay, in respect of the compensation and expenses of the Committee, any sums in excess of 2% of the principal amount of their deposited bonds.

The Committee will promptly pay any interest which may be received by it on the deposited bonds to the holders of certificates of deposit representing the bonds in respect whereof such payments of interest shall be made, deducting any income tax required to be withheld.

Copies of the Committee's circular and of the Bondholders' Agreement may be obtained by application either to the Depositary or the Sub-Depositaries.

Dated Philadelphia, January 28, 1919.

CITY HALL.

New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 8628, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of the bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $600,000.00 in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. The bonds shall be paid for in cash as fast as said bonds can be signed and delivered. All bonds will be delivered within thirty days from the opening of said bids. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Further particulars and information will be furnished on application to the Public Belt Railroad Commission or the undersigned. The final opinion of Wood & Oakley, lawyers, Chicago, Ill., as to the legality of this issue will be furnished to the successful bidder if so desired.

A. G. RICKS,
Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans.

PROPOSALS FOR SALVAGE.—OFFICE OF Quartermaster, Camp Crane, Allentown, Penn.—Sealed proposals will be received here until 11 A. M., February 10th, 1919, and then opened for removal of all buildings, heating apparatus, etc., erected by the U. S. Government at Camp Crane, Allentown, Penn. Further information on application.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The financial district furnished another important transaction yesterday in the sale of the two five-story buildings at 77 and 79 Pine Street and 166 Pearl Street, for years occupied by the old drug firm of Weaver & Sterry.

They were sold by John De Witt Sterry and Arthur Reading Gulich, as executors of the estate of William De Witt Sterry, to a Mr. Mansion for investment.

The property, which forms an "L" around the southeast corner of Pine and Pearl Street, has a frontage of 30 feet on Pine Street and 65 feet deep, and also a frontage of 24 feet on Pearl Street and is 77 feet deep. It is located in the heart of the financial district and almost adjoins the corner of Wall and Pearl Streets, and is opposite the Seaman's Bank and also the Wall Street Station of the Post Office. This property will be extensively altered for office purposes.

A member of the firm of Pease & Elliman, which negotiated the sale, said yesterday: "With the hundreds of skyscrapers and thousands of offices in this district, I am safe in saying there is less than twenty-five vacant offices for rent in the Wall Street section today, and in many cases where firms have wanted 25,000 square feet of office space or more they have been compelled to go in out-of-the-way locations, buy or lease on a long-term lease buildings which were almost ready to be demolished and alter the same for office purposes.

"Space that has heretofore been used for storage is now being fixed up for offices in order to supply the demand. After these buildings are altered they will put a large number of offices on the market for rent. The sale of this property was an all-cash transaction and including the alterations will involve over $100,000.

Another Financial District Deal Pending

Another sale in the financial section which is reported pending involves the four five-story buildings at 21 to 31 South William Street, running through to 37 to 43 Stone Street, located just east of Broad Street. The property has been owned by the Hermanos Realty Company since 1910.

It has a frontage of about 82 feet on each street and a depth of 77.6 feet. The site adjoins the eight-story Curtis Building. William G. Murphy, Jr., Treasurer of the selling company, refused to discuss the transaction.

Pearl Street Property Sold.

The first sale of the property at 305 Pearl Street since the year 1850 occurred yesterday, when the Chichester estate sold, through Moore & Wyckoff, the old buildings on the plot, 25 by 197, which extends to 68 Cliff Street.

Bankers Trust Company May Enlarge Building.

The feasibility of extending the modern structure of the Bankers Trust Company, at the northeast corner of Wall and Nassau Streets, over the adjoining property, 8 to 12 Wall Street, owned by John Jacob Astor, son of William Waldorf Astor, is now under active consideration. Plans with this end in view have been prepared and filed by Charles E. Birge, providing for a thirty-two-story structure to cover the Wall Street end of the Astor Building, which extends to Pine Street, where it fronts 44.8 feet.

Big Heights Deal Pending.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of the Rivercrest Apartment, a modern six-story structure occupying a frontage of 131.10 feet on Fort Washington Avenue and 78.4 feet on 160th Street, with an annual rental of $24,000.

Constant M. Bird, President of the Manhattan Savings Institution, which holds the property, said Tuesday that he could not discuss the transaction until the contracts had been signed, but it is believed that the deal will be closed before the end of the week.

Buyers for Three Heights Apartments.

Margaret T. Martin has sold a five-story apartment, housing twenty families, located on a plot 50 by 97.6 at 707 and 709 West 170th Street to Ennis & Sinnott. Steinman & Steinman negotiated the sale.

Joseph Shenk has purchased two five-story buildings, housing thirty families, located at 72 to 82 Elwood Avenue on a plot 125 by 100. The property was held at $160,000. Mr. Shenk recently took title to the apartments at 726 to 736 West 181st Street on a plot 200 by 150, which house 120 families.

Frederick Brown, operator, purchased from the Fields estate, the six-story apartment house, with stores, at 2,388 to 2,394 Amsterdam Avenue on a plot 75 by 100 feet, located twenty-five feet south of the southwest corner of 179th Street.

St. Mark's Church Adds to Its Holdings.

St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church has added to its holdings in the neighborhood of Second Avenue and Tenth Street by the purchase of the four-story house at 228 East Eleventh Street, separated by one house from the rectory of the church. The property measures 18.8 by 89, and was purchased from John L. Scofield and others for a stated consideration of $14,490.

Sale on the Bowery.

The Moss estate sold to an investing client of William A. White & Sons the property at 218 Bowery, between Prince and Spring Streets.

The new owner will improve the site by the erection of a two-story and basement building for his own occupancy. This will be the first improvement of its kind in many years in this section of the Bowery, and should act as an incentive for further development.

Storage Corporation Buys on Jay Street.

Richard S. Chisolm and others have sold to the Standard Cold Storage Corporation the five-story building, 26.8 by 58.4, at 46 Jay Street, adjoining the corporation's six-story storage building at the southeast corner of Jay and Caroline Streets.

Private Dwelling Deal.

The estate of Catherine B. Colby sold the private dwelling located at the northwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 187th Street, to a client, who will occupy the property. Horace S. Ely & Co. negotiated the sale.

The dwelling, 18.9 by 100, at 20 West 126th Street, has been sold by Ernest T. Bower for M. K. Miller to a client for occupancy.

Resale of Harlem Stable.

The two-story stable on a lot 25 by 100.11, at 207 East 110th Street, recently acquired by the Benenson Realty Company from the Metropolitan Savings Bank, has been resold to the present tenant. Latt & Co. were the brokers.

The Bronx Market.

William F. Schoeller sold the three-story dwelling, 25 by 125, located at 763 East 168th Street, through Williamson & Bryan to one of their clients.

Joseph G. Abramson purchased from Frederick Brown, operator, three five-story apartments, held at $180,000, which Mr. Brown recently bought from the Johnson estate. The buildings are designed for fifty-four families and six stores, and are located on Longwood Avenue, one at the northwest corner of Dawson Street, on a plot 41 by 107; the second on the northwest corner of Hewitt Place, 69 by 102 irregular, and the third on the northeast corner of Hewitt Place, 57 by 107 irregular. Leitner, Brener & Starr negotiated the deal.

Schwab & Co. sold for Ely Maran, Fisher and Irving I. Lewine to George N. Reinhardt the Château, a new five-story apartment house, on a plot 70 by 90, at the southeast corner of Grand Avenue and 180th Street, which was recently acquired from the builder. It shows a rental over $12,000, and was held at $85,000.

Brooklyn.

Emily Kloth purchased from Kahn & Pittman, operators, a two-story brick private dwelling at 1,402 Avenue P, southeast corner of East Fourteenth Street. M. M. Ringler negotiated the sale.

A one-family frame dwelling, on a plot 40 by 100, at 1,923 Sixty-third Street, has been purchased from the Clinton Trading Company by a client who will occupy the property.

Two three-story frame houses at 186 and 188 Tenth Street have been sold for Edward G. Hopper and Harriet L. Bell by F. C. Sauter.

S. Elgart has purchased from M. Walsk the twenty-room two-family cottage, on a plot 50 by 100, at 4,715 Fifteenth Avenue. The sale was made by I. Salzberg.

The three-story and basement brownstone dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100, at 248 Sixth Avenue, has been sold by Alfred Johnson to a client for occupancy.

Queens Borough Sales.

Philip Kneer, who now resides in Haiti, has sold his house at 6 South Eighteenth Street, Flushing, to Oliver P. Cornell. J. Albert Johnstra made the sale.

The Russian Catholic Church has purchased two plots at Bayside, with a frontage of 100 feet on Prince Street, west of Bell Avenue, and a depth of 100 feet, on which is to be erected a church building.

The Sage Foundation Homes Company sold to M. Lendle the improved plot, with a frontage on the east side of Greenway Terrace, north of Middlemay Circle, Forest Hills.

East Hampton Property Sold.

Dr. George A. Dixon has purchased from Mrs. Frederic Baker five acres of land on the east side of Little Plains Road. The sale was made by Alfred E. Schermerhorn.

Recent Buyers.

The Pictorial Review Company is the buyer of the nine old dwellings at the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, reported sold Monday. The company, which occupies in its entirety the adjoining twelve-story structure owned by Julius Kayser, plans to erect a structure suitable for printing purposes.

Commercial Leases.

The store and basement in the building at 803-805 Broadway, which for many years was occupied by the famous Fleischmann Bakery, have been rented by Hyman Karp, auctioneer, from Reuben Sadowsky. Spear & Co. were the agents in the deal.

August Luchow has leased for a term of twenty-one years to Louis Loutkin & Co. the entire property at 113 East Fourteenth Street, on a lot 26.6 by 131. The property will be extensively rebuilt into a store and loft building. Herbert Hecht & Co. have been appointed renting agents for the building.

A Series of FACTS—7

Ability!

THE largest apartment building in the world—270 Park Avenue—and the highest priced apartment building in New York—820 Fifth Avenue—are both among the twenty-three buildings in the Park Avenue Section completely under our management.

There must be good, solid, substantial reasons for this that will appeal to far-sighted owners seeking a competent organization to whom to intrust the operation of their building.

Let us put before you all the advantages of our Management Service.

STOCK SALESMEN,

HERE'S THE OPPORTUNITY

YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

We are looking for clean-cut, live-wire salesmen accustomed to interviewing men of affairs, who can prove from past performances that they are capable of earning at least $7,500 a year.

If you are such a man and your references are satisfactory, we will give you the opportunity of making more money this year, on a commission basis, than you ever made before. And next year, if your work has been satisfactory, you may step into a permanent position in our Merchandising Department as a District Manager, which will pay you from $10,000 to $30,000 per year for the remainder of your active business life.

We are a successful manufacturing corporation with a nationally known product. We are enlarging our plant to take care of increased business resulting from the termination of the war. We want real salesmen, who possess tact and initiative, to call on our business correspondents in New York and vicinity (with letters of introduction) and take subscriptions to our offering of 8% Preferred Stock with a Common Stock bonus. If you think you can qualify, call after 10 A. M., and before 3:30 P. M., or write stating your experience and qualifications. Suite 301, 50 E. 42d St., New York City.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Western disturbance is central tonight near James Bay and pressure is low in the Lake region, the Atlantic, and east Gulf States, with a second disturbance off the Middle Atlantic Coast.

Over the central portion of the country pressure is relatively high, while to the westward it has fallen, except in the Far Southwest.

General rains fell in the Gulf and Atlantic States, except northern New England and in the lower Lake region, and rains and snows in the upper Lake region and northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains. Elsewhere the weather was fair.

It is considerably colder in the upper Lake and western lower Lake regions, the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys, and generally warmer elsewhere, except in the extreme Southwest, although temperatures are not unusual in any locality.

Rain will fall Wednesday in New England and southern portions of the east Gulf States and snow Thursday or Thursday night in the upper Lake region. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Wednesday and Thursday east of the Mississippi River.

It will be colder Wednesday in the upper Ohio Valley, the lower Lake regions, and the Atlantic States, and colder Thursday in eastern New England. It will be warmer Thursday in the upper Lake and west lower Lake region, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the east Gulf States.

FORECAST, TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Clearing Wednesday, followed by colder in the western portion. Thursday, fair, colder in the eastern portion.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Clearing and colder Wednesday. Thursday, fair.

Western New York—Cloudy and colder Wednesday, probably local snows in the northern and western portions. Thursday, fair.

Northern New England—Rain or snow Wednesday, colder at night. Thursday, fair and colder.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

The Civil Service.

City.

Examination for patrolman will be held June 4. Applications will be received from Feb. 11 to March 14. The written test will be at the Central Opera House, Forty-seventh Street and Third Avenue. Applicants must be not less than 21 years of age at the time of the mental examination, and not more than 35 years at the time of filing applications. The minimum height is five feet seven and one-half inches.

United States.

The commission announces an examination for teachers, for both men and women, to fill existing and future vacancies for duty in the high schools in the Philippine Islands. The restriction contained in previous announcements that "Women will not be admitted to the teacher examination unless they are the wives, immediate relatives, or fiancées of men examined for teacher," &c., is withdrawn for this examination. Appointments made from this examination will be at entrance salaries of from $1,000 to $1,500 a year, depending upon education and experience, and appointees will be eligible for promotion up to $2,000, as supervisors of teachers, although positions above $1,600 are limited in number. It is desirable to obtain as many eligibles as possible who are graduates of teachers' colleges, normal schools, and agricultural schools. The Philippine school year begins in the early part of June and ends with the month of March. So far as possible all appointments of teachers are made with a view to their arrival in Manila before the beginning of the school year, which requires that the appointee sail in April or the first week in May. In this way the contract period of two years expires with the school year. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, 10; education, training, and experience, 90. Applicants must have reached their twenty-fourth, but not their fortieth, birthday on the date of making oath to the application. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

Wiener, Recently Arrested as an Enemy Alien, Declares He Gave Him the Money.

FORUMS TO FAVOR GERMANY

Witness Testifies O'Leary Suggested They Be Held Under Auspices of American Truth Society.

The trial of Jeremiah A. O'Leary and others before Federal Judge A. N. Hand for alleged violation of the Espionage act was enlivened yesterday by the introduction of a new Government witness, Arthur Wiener, a native of Germany, who was arrested a few days ago by officers of the Department of Justice and sent to Ellis Island as a dangerous enemy alien. Wiener declared he first met O'Leary in 1914 after a lecture the latter had delivered in Carnegie Hall on the "American Press." He called on O'Leary and there was talk in which both agreed the newspapers of this country had failed to present a proper picture of the war. O'Leary, he added, appeared to be much provoked with the American public and also spoke harshly of German-Americans.

Money was subscribed to carry out this idea and it was agreed that the forums should be conducted under the auspices of the American Truth Society.

The witness said that at meetings between him, O'Leary, and others, it was suggested that at the forums neutrality, the exportation of munitions, and the sinking of the Lusitania should be discussed.

Arthur O'Leary wanted to know whether the witness had ever discussed with O'Leary any matter involving $5,000, and he replied "Yes." It then appeared that in the Spring of 1915 the witness had given O'Leary $5,000 for the purpose of the American Truth Society and had told O'Leary that the money came from Dr. Albert.

Wiener denied that he had taken any part in German propaganda. He had been told by O'Leary, he testified, that he could draw against the $5,000, but that he had not done so. The money, or some of it, was turned over to Gustav Dapsloss, the Treasurer of the society.

Rudolph Cronau, a naturalized German, who described himself as an artist and author, testified that he met O'Leary in 1914 and had a talk with him about establishing a magazine. He said O'Leary estimated that $25,000 would be enough for the purpose.

"O'Leary asked me," continued the witness, "if I had connection with friendly German-Americans who would provide the money. He suggested that as I had the entrée to Count von Bernstorff I might invite him to join in the enterprise. I had seen the Count once or twice, but I did not think he would favor such a proposition."

"Did you take the matter up with Count von Bernstorff?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you report to O'Leary?"

"I told him that Count von Bernstorff had turned the matter over to Dr. Dernburg, and in about two weeks I reported that the subject did not interest Dr. Dernburg."

The trial will be continued this morning, when Mrs. Leo C. Kelly, who was O'Leary's secretary during the palmy days when Bull was increasing in circulation and in anti-American virulence, will be questioned concerning the source of many of the most bitter editorials and of talks in the office concerning the policy of the magazine.

FOUR MEN IN AUTOS ROB BRONX SALOONS

TAKE $80 FROM SHOEMAKER

Four bandits with a green automobile similar to that used in the hold-up of trolley cars in Queens early yesterday, went through the Bronx last night between 9 and 10 o'clock, and their progress was recorded on the blotters of three station houses, for they held up two saloons and a shoemaker's shop.

There were about twenty persons in the café of Frank Sternberger in Melrose Avenue at 162d Street when a green touring car drew up at the curb and three men got out. They were of medium height. They went in the front door, and as two advanced toward the bar one took a position near the door, and with drawn revolver ordered "Hands up!" The order was repeated by one of the men at the bar, and while they kept the crowd covered the third man robbed the cash register of $80 and took from Henry Mangel his gold watch and chain. They, assisted by the man near the door, went through the patrons of the place. They got small amounts from each. One man saved $80 by dropping it on the floor beside him.

The second holdup came about twenty minutes later. Rocco Savarese, who keeps a shoe shop at 1,750 Monroe Avenue, two miles north of the Sternberger place, reported to the police that three men who got out of a green automobile came into his place, backed him into a rear room with revolvers, took $80 from him and departed.

The third robbery was reported about fifteen minutes later. Three men, who came in a green automobile, entered the saloon of Thomas P. White, at 1,138 Tremont Avenue. The operations carried out in the first saloon were repeated here. The thieves took $91 and the proprietor's watch.

It was a big automobile painted green which carried bandits who early yesterday morning held up the crews of two B. R. T. trolley cars in Queens and attempted to hold up a third, the motorman of which put on speed and got away.

The bandits stalled their car on the North Beach Boulevard, between North Beach and Corona, at 3:45 o'clock in the morning, compelling a trolley car to stop. Masked and armed with revolvers, they took $7 from Conductor Olaf Hendrickson, and a silver watch from the motorman, Carl Kline. There were no passengers in the car. They then drove away.

Half an hour later four of them boarded a car at Main Street and Bradford Avenue, Flushing. One of them held a revolver to the motorman, and ordered him to start his car.

The other then took $35 from the conductor, Frank P. Smith, and the only passenger in the car, a Fort Totten soldier, was robbed of $6.

BRITAIN INVOKES EMERGENCY-ACT TO CHECK STRIKE

MILITARY CARS FOR TRAFFIC

Will Be Used to Lessen Tube Strike Trouble—People Walk in Snow.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Tomorrow threatens to be a critical day in the industrial and public life of London, it having been fixed both by the London engineers and the electrical trades union as the date of a general stoppage of work in the metropolis.

Meanwhile the Government today took strong action to cope with the emergency. It met the threat of the electricians to deprive the capital of light tomorrow night by issuing a new order under the Defense of the Realm act making such action a punishable offense.

The Government, it is understood, has also taken steps with the Electrical Power Engineers' Association to provide the labor necessary to keep the public lighting going, and it has undertaken to supply the railroads with engine staffs in case there is an attempt to call out all the drivers.

Moreover, to relieve the deplorable plight of the people forced to tramp through miles of streets to and from work the Government has ordered the immediate mobilization of military motor lorries and drivers. The vehicles will be placed at once on London's main streets to carry the city's workers, preferential treatment being given to women and girls.

As it is, many members of the staffs of the Government offices were carried to and from distant suburbs in that way today.

Strike Leaders Removed.

Not less important is an announcement that the executive of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, one of the most powerful trade unions in the country, has taken up the question of unauthorized strikes with its London, Belfast, and Clyde committees. That executive body realizes how seriously the standing and authority of recognized trade unionism has been affected by the recent outbreaks. That it will insist upon discipline is shown by the announcement tonight that it has "dismissed" the district council of the Amalgamated Society.

It is reported, however, that this council thereupon delegated the strike arrangements to the shop stewards, who are calling upon the members to cease work at midday tomorrow. If the threat is fulfilled it is believed that about 200,000 men and thirty unions will be involved.

Tomorrow will show which the London members of the Engineers' Society prefer to follow, their duly elected officials who are standing by the agreement made by them on their members' behalf, or the body of shop stewards who have thrown the society's discipline overboard.

Electric Workers Disconcerted.

The Government's step in "proclaiming" the electricians' strike came as a great and unpleasant surprise to the employes in London's electric light works. At first there was a disposition to treat the matter in a spirit of bravado, but when the full purport of the proclamation was realized there was a change of tone, and it is said that many men are less inclined to strike.

Whether they strike or otherwise it is believed that the Government will soon be able to secure a sufficient number of volunteer workers to keep the power stations and other essential public services going.

The position of the motor bus and tramway workers is uncertain. They were advised by their union to remain at work, but a power house stoppage would, of course, bring the tram services to a standstill, thus rendering the transit problem even more critical, since upon the trams has fallen the task of conveying many thousands of people who normally patronize the subways.

The tribulations of those who are compelled to walk miles to their homes in the outer suburbs was made worse today by a heavy fall of snow, which lies in some places four inches deep.

Meanwhile news from Belfast and the Clyde is more cheering. In Glasgow the backbone of the strike movement seems to be definitely broken,

The Norwegian vessel was blown up outside the Norwegian port of Stavanger, and eight fishermen were killed.

The Swedish steamer Sphynx of 1,572 tons was on the way from England to Sweden with coal and went down near Coquet Island, off Scotland, with the loss of seventeen of the crew.

BALK DEMOCRATIC TEST ON SUFFRAGE

Opponents in Senate Caucus Refuse to Vote and "No Quorum" Is Announced.

HITCHCOCK STILL OBDURATE

But Supporters of Amendment Resolution Hope to Get One Vote Needed to Pass It.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Strategy of opponents of equal suffrage was said to have prevented a formal record vote on indorsement of the Susan B. Anthony suffrage constitutional amendment resolution at a conference tonight of Democratic Senators.

The political expediency of acting on the suffrage amendment was the principal theme of debate, which was marked by vehemence. At times Senators spoke so loudly that their voices sounded through the thick doors of the conference room and echoed through the corridors.

Advocates of the resolution argued that the fortunes of the Democratic Party would be aided by favorable action, and said that if the resolution was defeated future political benefits would be received by the Republican Party.

Opponents were said to have contended that political expediency should not be a factor in so serious a matter as amending the Constitution. They offered a motion to adjourn, which was defeated 23 to 17.

After more than two hours of debate, Senator Jones of New Mexico, Chairman of the Woman's Suffrage Committee, proposed indorsement of the Constitutional Amendment measure. Twenty Senators voted favorably, but the opponents refrained from voting, and Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, who presided, declared that the resolution was not adopted because no quorum was present.

The meeting, the first held by the Democratic Senators since the United States entered the war, broke up in a roar of laughter over this ruling.

After adjournment Senator Jones said the conference action left the matter open for further consideration, and would not affect his plans to call up the resolution in the Senate Monday.

It was announced that one more recruit for the resolution had been gained in Senator Pollock of South Carolina, who spoke in its support.

Friends of the resolution said privately that it would be brought before the Senate Monday with at least 63 of the 96 votes assured in its favor. This would be one short of the required two-thirds, but advocates expressed confidence that the one additional vote necessary for its adoption could be obtained.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who was expected by the suffrage proponents to fall into line after the legislature of his State passed a motion urging him to vote for the resolution, will not change his attitude, but will vote against it.

MASON DEFENDS ACTION.

Tells House About His Appearance at "Red" Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Representative William E. Mason of Chicago today told the House he attended the "Red" meeting at Poli's Theatre last Sunday afternoon, where he spoke to the audience from a box, "simply to hear what the facts are from that side," and that he spoke in answer to charges made against him in the Senate by Senator Thomas of Colorado. He said:

"I say to you, the meeting was not in the interest of the 'Reds.' The young man and woman who spoke there spoke simply to give their ideas of what the truth was over here. There was not an insulting remark made, nor was there a suggestion to change the laws of the United States."

Mason said there was a Czarist as well as a Bolsheviki propaganda in this country. "I know," he shouted, "that there is a propaganda going on in the United States to uphold the spawn of the Czar. But I am an American citizen, and I say, 'a plague upon both your houses!'

"The whole trouble arises because we have got troops in Russia today without a declaration of war. I do not believe they should be there fighting on either side of this political scramble. As much as I hate the doctrine of anarchy and nihilism I hate and despise the doctrine of the Czar. And as far as I am concerned, I do not care which one of them wins in Russia. But my people in Illinois are begging me to get their boys out of that country."

Siberian Troops Wipe Out Two Divisions of Bolsheviki

OMSK, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—Two divisions of Bolshevists have been virtually annihilated by Siberian troops under General Gaida [Czech Commander] at Kungur, fifty miles southeast of Perm, according to an official statement issued here today.

Perm is now declared safe from Bolshevist attack. People who had fled to Ekaterinburg and other towns are returning.

The losses of the Siberian troops in the battle at Kungur are not given. General Gaida's forces are now twelve miles from Ufa, which was taken by Bolshevist forces sometime ago.

ARCHANGEL, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Heavy losses were inflicted on the Bolsheviki by the American forces on Tuesday and the enemy was driven back in disorder from the village of Vistavka, on the Vaga.

The American casualties were five killed and several wounded.

Many Bolshevist soldiers were taken prisoners by the Americans.

The enemy began early in the morning a bombardment with field guns and howitzers, and under cover of a shrapnel and pompom barrage essayed a frontal attack with infantry in the Arctic twilight at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The American troops, who were rested after their retirement from Shenkursk and were now established in a good position, poured a heavy fire from artillery and machine guns into the charging Bolsheviki whose ranks broke and fled into the woods.

Captured Bolsheviki declared that the enemy had planned a flank attack simultaneously with the frontal movement, but this was abandoned when the Vistavka attempt failed.

Chinese and Manchu troops are now included in the Bolshevist forces opposing the Americans on the Vaga. So far these have been held in reserve, but the Americans are preparing a warm reception for the yellow soldiers if they appear in the fighting line, in view of stories reaching them of the Manchu treatment of prisoners in the Baltic provinces.

Yesterday's defeat of the enemy on the Vaga, together with his failure on the Dvina, typifies the spirit of the American and other allied troops who are fighting with the utmost determination to hold their positions until reinforcements can reach them. These defeats have considerably lowered the enemy morale, but the Bolsheviki are being constantly reinforced, and while their offensive has been temporarily checked, there are indications that it will be renewed when fresh forces reach the line.

Details were received at headquarters today of the bravery displayed by a little squad of about fifteen Frenchmen, who were victims of an enemy raid Monday on the village of Bolshoie Ozera, Vologda Railway front. Mistaking the enemy for returning Russian prisoners of war, the French detachment permitted the Bolsheviki to advance close to their position. Then they found themselves suddenly surrounded by a force of 150 of the enemy. Called upon to surrender, the Frenchmen refused and tried to fight their way out. Two were killed, three were wounded, and six were unaccounted for a time. Four of these six turned up today, two of them wounded, apparently having escaped from their captors.

Allied troops were again forced to retire in the face of Bolshevist attacks along the Pinega River, but the positions of the Americans at the town of Pinega have not been attacked.

On the Dvina sector the allied troops have burned the village of Upper Tulgas, which frequently gave refuge to Bolshevist attacking parties.

The enemy lost so heavily in the attack on the Tulgas position, held by American and Scottish forces, on Jan. 31, that they refused to again go forward and held a meeting at which they openly debated the question of deserting to the Allies. Several Bolshevist deserters already have made their way to the allied lines, and from these men details of the meeting have been learned. The Bolsheviki planned the capture of Shenkursk, Taresevo, and Tulgas in a simultaneous offensive.

Swiss Council Refuses to Cut Army Budget Now

BERNE, Feb. 4.—The National Council today rejected by 101 votes to 18 a motion to reduce by 20,000,000 francs the military budget for the year.

A Socialist motion to reject the budget and to introduce Soldiers' Councils and a uniform rate of pay throughout the army was defeated by 132 votes to 11. In the discussion all the non-Socialist speakers insisted that a well trained, armed, and equipped Federal army was necessary to guarantee the safety of Switzerland.

SENATORS ASSAIL BRITISH EMBARGO

Members of Both Parties Express Fear That It Will Hurt Our Industries.

REED PREDICTS REPRISAL

Lewis Says It May Revive "Spirit of 1812"—Carnegie Foundation Under Fire.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The feeling was expressed in Senate debate today that the embargo established by Great Britain against certain imports from the rest of the world would seriously affect American industries. While it was emphasized that the embargo was not directed against the United States alone, still, Senators felt, it would harm American industries if enforced.

The debate was on the resolution of Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, calling on the State Department to say whether any step had been taken to ascertain why Great Britain regarded the embargo as necessary, so far as the United States was concerned.

Senator Lewis, Democratic whip, warned that Great Britain should not arouse "the spirit of 1812." Senator Weeks said that while the restriction was intended to restore Britain's shattered industries, it might operate at the expense of the industries of the United States. Senator Reed of Missouri, making a bitter attack upon the embargo, said that Great Britain had become selfish after the American soldiers had "turned the tide of battle in France and saved the war for the Allies."

Weeks Opens Debate.

Senator Weeks opened the debate by reading a list of goods on the embargo list.

"No spirit of antagonism to Great Britain prompts me to make this inquiry," said Senator Weeks. "It is only intended to show how our foreign trade may be affected. The time is coming when we must do something to protect our own commercial interests. I do not charge that the action of Great Britain is aimed at the United States. I understand its application in general. It is intended to protect home industries and build them up. I would like to know the situation in the State Department and what steps are being taken there."

Senator Lewis said he and his colleague, Senator Sherman, had received letters from manufacturers in the Middle West saying articles on the prohibited list embraced a large proportion of those made in their territory.

"I think this is an appropriate time to give the British officials to realize that this is a delicate situation," said Senator Lewis. "While the President is in France working for the benefit of the Allies, it is inimical to the interests for which he is striving, that Great Britain seizes the opportunity to impose such an embargo. It is calculated to arouse a feeling of hostility. Britain does this country a great violence at this time to press this embargo. She will make it very difficult for the President to protect and secure the adoption of his program. It will awaken a feeling of hostility in the United States that may lead to retaliatory legislation. It will not insure the peace anticipated among the Allies, but will lead to a feeling of enmity.

"I pray the British officials to beware not to reawaken the spirit of 1812."

Reed Talks of Reprisal.

Senator Reed declared that would be "bloody reprisal" if the embargo were carried to the extent of keeping out American goods from the British market for an appreciable time.

"Great Britain, to whose rescue we went," said the Senator; "Great Britain whose marshals stood out and cried, 'Our backs are to the wall; Britons, stand or die;' Great Britain, who heard the Yankee cheers and the rebel yells from the rear; Great Britain, whose armies turned and began their march to the front when the Yankee boys were leading in that bloody charge; Great Britain, no sooner had she succeeded in extricating her two hands from the great mouth of the German war monster, but she proceeds selfishly to put up the bars of her trade against the very race and the very nation that went to her rescue.

"Do I say this to arouse feeling against Great Britain? No. There is not a braver man than the British; there is not a more upsquared, hewed-to-the-line class of men than the British; but these British are men with common sense, and when this war is over they are going to look out for Great Britain; they are going to see to it that Great Britain takes care of herself. And if you set up a super-nation with Great Britain and France at the head of it, it

BOMBARD BREMEN AND OUST REBELS; MANY ARE KILLED

German Government Troops Take Possession of the City After Heavy Fighting.

OLD CATHEDRAL DAMAGED

TO OPEN ASSEMBLY TODAY

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 5.—Government troops entered Bremen last night after heavy fighting and occupied the Town Hall and the Stock Exchange.

The Spartacides have retreated to Gröpaingen.

The Government troops made their entrance after the city had been bombarded. Many persons are reported to have been killed in the bombardment.

Armed Spartacides from Eisenach and Gotha are on their way to Bremen to the support of the Spartacides there.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—During the bombardment of Bremen the Old Cathedral, the Boerse, and the City Hall were damaged and many houses partly destroyed, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen.

Preparing for Convention Today.

WEIMAR, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—The process of temporarily transferring the seat of the German Government from Berlin to Weimar, where the National Assembly is to meet on Thursday, is expected to be virtually completed tomorrow, when Count Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Foreign Secretary, will reach here.

The five members of the Cabinet and the executive officials under Chancellor Ebert arrived in Weimar early this afternoon, and established quarters in the palace.

The physical difficulties accompanying the task of the temporary transfer of the Government comprise chiefly an apparent shortage of manual laborers willing to haul and carry baggage. The city has furnished an over-supply of candidates for posts of honor, but the members of the Government, on their arrival here, had to search diligently for men willing to transfer the official baggage from the station to the palace.

Notwithstanding this handicap, the Cabinet, minus its official records and other documents, managed to hold an executive session in the palace late in the afternoon.

The present Government considers that its mandate will expire with the convening of the Constituent Assembly, and its first task will be to move for the immediate appointment of a new coalition Government, in the organization of which party interests will be eliminated. It is believed that the new provisional Cabinet will be made up of Majority Socialists, Democrats, and Clericals.

The Majority Socialists will hold their first party caucus on Tuesday morning. The German Democratic faction will hold its party meeting at Erfurt, near Weimar.

Weimar Communications Hampered.

BERLIN, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—Independent Socialists interrupted telephone communication between Weimar and Eisenach and Erfurt for several hours on Monday afternoon, according to advices received by the Tageblatt from Weimar.

An Alpine corps of 1,000 men, under command of General Merker, has arrived at Weimar and will police the city. These are official Government troops, but will be assisted by the garrison of Weimar, which is now loyal to the Government and prepared to defend the National Assembly.

Unverified but constantly recurring rumors from Eisenach continue to tell of plans to oppose the work of the Assembly.

Majority Socialist members of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council at Erfurt have resigned on the ground that they cannot share the responsibility for the council's present actions. Officers in the Erfurt arsenal have refused to report for duty until weapons taken from the arsenal and distributed among civilians there have been returned.

DEFEAT ROYALIST TROOPS.

Portuguese Republicans Occupy Several Towns in North.

LISBON, Feb. 2.—Monarchist troops, it is announced, have been defeated in an action at Covilha, southeast of Oporto near the Spanish frontier, by republican troops under Lieutenant Fuertes, who are advancing on Guarda, to the northeast. The republican flag now floats over the towns of Covilha and Castello Branco, and the monarchists are retiring on Regoa, where their headquarters have been established.

Along the coast the republicans have occupied Fosoca and Argaja, and the monarchists are evacuating Estarreja, south of Oporto. Communication with Lisbon has been restored as far north as Aveiro.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—A dispatch from Oporto says that Royalist sources in Portugal announce the success of the Royalists at Elvas, twelve miles west of Badajos. The dispatch adds that the troops have proclaimed a monarchy.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The future usefulness of the League of Nations is now being put to the test.

In the realization that the covenant must be arranged within a period measured by days, those engaged in the important work of drafting the document that may mark a new era in world history are bringing forth all the arguments that represent their attitude. Each cites his pros and hammers in his cons with all the force possible.

In these circumstances it is not strange that the league occupies the centre of the stage in the great drama being enacted here in Paris, which is rightly called the capital of the world. Every paragraph of the twenty-two composing the covenant is being gone over with the fine-tooth comb of diplomatic exactness. While each clause represents an attempt to put in written words the views to which all the covenant makers have subscribed orally, there is a wide difference between having some one else endeavor to set forth your ideas and setting them forth yourself.

All of this means that many changes are necessary in the draft in order to reach a harmonious conclusion. No nation is bound to agree to the covenant unless it chooses, and it is necessary, therefore, to conciliate every objector and attempt to reach the happy medium that represents the amalgamation of his convictions with those of his conferees.

As matters stand there is every likelihood of reservations being made to the covenants written into the constitution of the League. Those who have studied The Hague conventions have been struck by the considerable number of reservations to the terms that represent the composite views of all the nations affected. Every nation, it is assumed, will sign the treaty containing this constitution, but each has a right to attach a note, saying that it cannot accept in part or entirely certain provisions, identified in the note. However, the aim of the commission which is drafting the constitution of the Society of Nations is to have as few of these reservations as possible—none at all, if that can be arranged.

Wilson's Herculean Task.

It is in this connection that President Wilson is working harder than ever before, perhaps in his whole life, certainly harder even than in the early days of his first Administration, when he sought to put through Congress in a single session a complete revision of the tariff laws and an equally complete revision of laws relating to currency and finance.

The President has shown himself to be rather an expert conciliator, much to the surprise of many European statesmen, who had been convinced that he was a very stubborn person, fixed as the North Star in his own convictions and disinclined to change them after hearing other sides of the case. But he has been a surprise to Europe in this regard. His courtesy, tact, and quickness in conciliatory suggestion has made a deep impression, and on none more than on those two experienced statesmen, Premier Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau.

Last night the Commission on the League of Nations, with the President presiding, had a long session in Colonel House's salon in the Hôtel de Crillon, where most of the officials connected with the Peace Commission reside.

With fifteen present, nearly all men of positive views and representing nations with diverse interests and special claims to consideration, it is no easy task to whip into shape, acceptable to all, those twenty-two articles, com-

Krech Proposes a Moratorium of all Nations To Give Breathing Time for Reconstruction

PARIS, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, who is visiting France to study financial conditions, said to The Associated Press today:

"The temporary suspension of liquidation by the Governments to one another ought to be one of the first expedients of intergovernment finance. I mean that for the present we should have an international moratorium between the Governments in order to give the nations breathing time.

"France owes England and America; Belgium owes France, England, and America; Italy owes America, England, and France. The small nations owe the big ones. No one of them, large or small, can conveniently pay at the moment. Hence they all need an international moratorium, to afford time for reconstruction. Even Germany must have time to make payments.

"It seems to me that this is the time that America, with infinite advantage to herself, may supplement her military support, now that the occasion for such support has practically disappeared, by becoming a genuine factor in the establishment of an intimate union with France for the promotion of the material interests of both countries."

Seized Letters of Germans Show How They Really Hate Americans

Missives to Relatives Here, Examined by Censor in the Occupied Zone, in Sharp Contrast to the Servility and Compliments Heaped on Our Soldiers—Convictions for Circulating Propaganda.

COBLENZ, Feb. 4.—Examination of a large number of letters written by Germans in the territory occupied by the American Third Army to friends and relatives in the United States and other countries reveals a wide range of expression of hatred of Americans.

It should be explained that letters from Germans here are not allowed to go to America, because technically Germany is still at war with the Allies. These letters go to the American Base Censor's office to be held until peace is made. Meanwhile they have been examined by the American Censor, and it is to that examination I refer.

It goes without saying that these letters, or perhaps nearly all of them, were written by Germans who did not believe that they would be read by American officers, and therefore the expressions of their feelings to their relatives and friends may be taken as sincere. The expressions of dislike of the American are not unanimous, but there is so much of it in comparison to the attitude of Germans in person toward Americans that it comes with striking force. It is just because the Germans say one thing to Americans here in Coblenz and write another diametrically opposite to their cousins that it is worth noticing. It is further proof of the working of the German propaganda.

Here is an example taken from the letter of a wealthy woman here:

What One Woman Wrote.

"These detestable Americans have been here again in my house. First they came searching for arms, and now they come again, searching for food. God speed the day when the curse of their presence will be removed from us."

Incidentally it may be stated that this search to discover food hoarders was undertaken not to obtain any for Americans, but to protect the poorer Germans against their wealthy neighbors.

Many of the letters express resentment because the Americans are billeted with the writers, who seem to have forgotten that the Germans in France did not content themselves with taking only spare rooms as the Americans in Germany do, but often drove out the families.

Scores of letters accuse the Americans of deeds of which they were never guilty, and criticize the behavior of our army, which is perhaps more exemplary than any other army of occupation in history.

There are few statements of facts in these letters. They are simply the expression of the innate feeling which needs no overt act of the Americans to force to the surface. They show how these same Germans hate us. They know that Americans caused them to lose the war, and they hate them for it, their sweet words and servile obeisances to the contrary notwithstanding.

If one heard any of these expressions in his daily contact with Germans, it would be different. But one never does. It is always praise of the Americans and their army and their President and their country and their behavior, and talk of how "we hope the French do not come when you go, because the French are so cruel and the Americans are so nice."

German's Frank Talk to Frenchman.

That reminds one of an incident which throws light on the situation. Yesterday I was seated in a café at a table next to that of a French Lieutenant. In came a German, well dressed and speaking excellent French. He asked the Lieutenant if it was true that the French were coming into Coblenz. The Lieutenant replied diplomatically that he didn't know.

"I hope they do," said the German. "They treat the people in Mayence so well and these Americans are good for nothing."

He was one of the Germans who had been praising the Americans whenever he talked to them. There one sees the German attitude in a nutshell. The aspect of friendliness for Americans is false in its entirety and intended for only personal and national gain. They continue to try to stir up trouble between the Americans and French.

One may quote the words of an American Colonel, who is in a position to know what he is talking about. He said:

"This German 'comrade' business got a start among our soldiers, but it has gone to the bad. You cannot appeal to an American by servility, and our boys are learning that the Germans are not friendly but servile, and the reaction is setting in fast. If hostilities were to be resumed tomorrow, there would not be ten deserters in 300,000 American soldiers on German soil."

Convict Three Germans of Propaganda.

COBLENZ, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—Three Germans have been convicted in military courts here in the last few days on the charge of circulating enemy propaganda among American troops in the occupied area of Germany.

The distribution of material, which the intelligence officers regard as propaganda, has been carried on in various ways. It has been given away as post-cards and sold in stores. One shopkeeper was convicted after having offered for sale a watch fob with American and German flags crossed upon it.

At Treves, recently, a thousand post-cards were confiscated by American officers. They pictured a beautiful German woman with a handful of strings, at the ends of which tiny French, British and American soldiers were dancing to her caprice.

WILSON CABLES THANKS.

His Message on Naval Bill Draws Fire of Representative Graham.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Just after Chairman Padgett of the House Committee on Naval Affairs read a cablegram today from President Wilson, in which he thanked the committee for unanimously favoring the three-year naval program, Representative Graham of Illinois made an attack upon the President and upon Chairman Padgett because of the Chairman's refusal to make public the cablegram the President sent urging passage of the bill. The cablegram which Mr. Padgett received today read:

"May I not express my gratification, gratitude, and congratulations at the unanimous report of the three-year naval program."

Mr. Graham said that while he had always been in favor of a big navy, and would vote for the naval increase, "it is a matter of humiliation to me that in doing so I may appear to be animated by the whip and spur that is being administered by the President and that Congress feels in its side.

"It humiliates me extremely," he continued, "to see coming into our counsels here this covert threat sent by the President under which I believe a majority of the public is acting."

Speaking of what he called "whispered information sent across the seas," Representative Graham said it was an unfair advantage to take of the House.

"Long back through the years of Woodrow Wilson's life and ever since he became President he has been a mind changer," he said. "If he ever advocated any single principle that he did not change his mind on I have yet to find it out. I believe that President Wilson has been right on more subjects than any public man I ever saw, because he has been on both sides of all questions."

prising the proposed fundamental law of the league. How well or how badly they succeed the world will not know until the text of the constitution is available. When that will be is problematical; but there is a strong inclination on the part of some plenipotentiaries to give it to the press as soon as the document is completed.

One of the most important problems that have come to the front to worry those in favor of a league strong enough to prevent future wars concerns the matter of the determination of disputes between nations. In a measure this is as important as any provision of the constitution.

Last night I sent a brief wireless dispatch (we are rationed on the use of the wireless, and the ration is meagre) stating the subject of this disturbing element, but confessing that the situation was not clearly understood. Subsequently I obtained a more illuminating explanation, which I am able to give in this dispatch.

This problem related to the provision for compulsory arbitration of international differences. As it was written into the constitution the supposition was that it approximated the view of the generality of the conferees. It provided that nations involved in serious contentions which were likely to lead to war should submit them to the arbitration of a body provided for in the constitution. Such submission meant that the nations affected would be bound in honor to accept the judgment of the arbitral body.

Fear of the Senate's Dissent.

It seems, however, that this provision was not acceptable to all the Governments represented in the Peace Conference.

The President and his associates were strong for its inclusion, but there is some reason to believe that they began to have doubts whether the Senate would sanction any arrangement that bound the United States Government in advance to accept the award of an international court on all matters of international difference that the League of Nations believed should be left to the determination of arbitrators.

Perhaps the American Peace Commission has been in communication with the Senate leaders. But whoever raised the objection to the provision for compulsory arbitration, the matter became a live issue, and my latest information is that a compromise has been proposed which leaves to every nation the choice of method for the adjustment of its differences with another nation.

But this compromise does not entirely eliminate the compulsory feature. It proposes that each nation whose differences with another are regarded as serious enough to call for intervention by the League shall be required to choose between one of three methods of having the controversy adjusted. These methods are (1) arbitration, (2) mediation—probably by a committee of the League—(3) inquiry to determine the rights and wrongs of the dispute.

If the nations in the controversy should select arbitration as a means of settlement, they would be bound in honor to abide by the arbitrators' verdict; if mediation be the method, by the views of the mediators. They need not necessarily be accepted, although it goes without saying that the confirmation by the League of Nations of the mediators' efforts would have a strong moral effect upon the disputants to accept proposals for adjustment.

Resort to the method of inquiry means that the nations in dispute agree not to engage in hostilities until representatives of the League of Nations have completed their investigation and made their report. This is the method which William Jennings Bryan incorporated in his scheme of peace treaties when he was Secretary of State.

Measure of Compulsion Retained.

It is evident, therefore, that under the compromise proposed there is some measure of compulsion. The nations signatory to the league constitution bind themselves not to resort to war until one or another of the means mentioned has been tried to settle their differences. Should this compromise be accepted there will be great disappointment among those who have been foremost in advocating the formation of an international society to prevent future wars. The American delegates have been among these.

The adjustment of international quarrels through any of these three methods does not eliminate the application of force to bring the recalcitrant nation to conform its conduct to the views of the league as a whole. But, as I have explained in other dispatches, the league covenant does not bind any nation to resort to the use of its land and naval forces, or either, to discipline another nation, should the majority of the league decide that this course is necessary. No surrender of sovereignty is involved in the league's fundamental law.

For one thing it would be impossible for the American negotiators to bind the United States to this procedure, as the Constitution gives to Congress the exclusive right to declare war. Furthermore the American Commissioners were convinced that the American people would not consent to have their Government bound in advance to engage in the employment of force that the majority of the League of Nations believed essential to bring a recalcitrant Government to obey the league's mandate.

So there is to be no delegation of super-national powers by any nation to the league. This does not mean, however, that force will not be employed. The proper authority of the league may determine that punitive measures are required to compel nations to refrain from engaging in conflict.

In that event each nation would have the right to determine for itself whether it would employ its armed forces in this way. Of course, public opinion in each country will largely determine the course its Government follows. Special considerations, such as the effect of a conflict on national interests will naturally play a part. But these are things that nobody is able to foresee now, when the world is sick of war.

The use of the economic boycott as a weapon of discipline is to be applied, however, if the present sentiment of the League of Nations Commission prevails. The nations, subscribing to the constitution of the league as tentatively drawn, bind themselves to join in direct punitive measures of this character.

I wirelessed briefly Tuesday evening that the Japanese delegation had begun to show interest in the league plan. Heretofore Japanese plenipotentiaries had taken no part in the discussion of the league proposals. They had explained that they had no mandate from their Government to express opinions one way or another. Apparently they have now received instructions, for they have given adhesion to the league principles and indicated that they would submit suggestions for incorporation in the league program. The attitude of the Japanese, whose delegation is headed by Viscount Chinda, formerly Ambassador to the United States, is pleasing to those delegates who desire the league to be a success.

Other Commissions Make Progress.

While the League Commission is working, other commissions appointed by the Peace Conference are making progress. A sub-committee of one commission of which Bernard Baruch, is the American member is outlining plans for helping the devastated regions. Another sub-committee is considering the lifting of the blockade to the extent of permitting the importation into Germany of articles from neighboring neutral countries. Thus Holland under this arrangement, would be permitted to send into Germany supplies which it has imported from other countries. It is likely that this arrangement will soon be put in force.

The American representatives favor giving some assistance to Germany as a measure of enabling the resumption of normal conditions and reducing the causes of disorder which are likely to furnish a great impetus to the Bolshevist movement.

SMALL STATES URGENT FOR FULL EQUALITY

But Great Powers Object to Any Plan Putting Themselves in a Minority.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Although the five great allied and associated powers, which are directing the Peace Conference, have turned over much of the work to commissions, the Society of Nations question, especially with reference to the smaller nations, is becoming a rather knotty problem.

The lesser powers, it is stated, want full equality in a Society of Nations and also greater influence than the plans already outlined give to them. The great powers, on the other hand, are faced with the situation that if each State should have one member on a Supreme Court of Nations, they might find themselves in the minority, although their interests might be, and probably would be, much greater.

It is not believed that the great powers would consent to an arrangement of this sort, and a situation similar to that at the Second Hague Peace Conference appears to be in the making. The experts on the Society of Nations question are hopeful of finding a way to get the smaller States to agree to the plan so that it will not fail as Elihu Root's scheme for a Supreme Court of Nations was frustrated at The Hague.

The preamble and two articles of the constitution of the Society of Nations were provisionally agreed upon last night by the commission of the Peace Conference appointed to deal with that subject, it was officially announced today. Satisfactory progress was made with other parts of the task.

The question of adding representatives of other powers to the commission is being discussed.

The text of the official announcement reads:

> The Commission on the League of Nations met last evening at the Hôtel de Crillon at 8:30 P. M. and commenced its detailed discussions. A preamble and two articles were discussed, and their texts were provisionally agreed upon. Satisfactory progress was made in regard to other parts of the draft. The question of adding representatives of other powers to the commission was also discussed. The commission will meet again this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The Conference Committee on Reparations met this forenoon and exchanged views regarding the principles covering reparations for damages caused by the enemy and based on memoranda presented by the delegations of the countries affected.

The memoranda will be discussed at the next meeting of the committee, which will be held Feb. 10.

George Nicoll Barnes, British Labor delegate to the Peace Conference, and M. Colliard, French Minister of Labor, were elected Vice Presidents of the Peace Conference Committee on International Labor at its meeting yesterday. The committee agreed to adopt as a basis for discussion the British proposels for the establishment of a permanent organization to deal with international labor questions.

President Wilson had a conference during the forenoon with Premier Lloyd George and A. J. Balfour, British Foreign Secretary. The President and the British statesmen were together some time.

After his conference with the British leaders and prior to the meeting of the Supreme Council in the afternoon, the President devoted the time to a private study of the many problems upon which he is engaged.

DEMAND TRIAL OF KAISER.

Sir Gordon Hewart Indicates That British Are Resolved Upon It.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Sir Gordon Hewart, British Attorney General, today outlined the British attitude toward the question of the responsibility of the Kaiser and his régime for the war and its crimes. He of course did not refer explicitly either to William II. or to any other personalities of the Hohenzollern or Hapsburg régimes, for, as he explained, the legal point of view was that the commission which has been appointed with reference to punishment of the enemy offenders is really engaged in a task of criminal investigation, and it would be, in a sense, prejudicing the case to pillory your criminals before you have convicted them.

"The British view," said the Attorney General, "is that the official offenders, however highly placed, must be made to suffer suitable punishment without avoidable delay. Who, precisely, are the offenders, what constitutes their offenses, and by what process their punishment can be imposed, are questions requiring the most careful consideration."

Sir Gordon Hewart stated that the matter could not usefully be discussed in public, for secrecy was necessary to the success of the enemy criminal investigation.

In addition to the chief Commission on Offenses and Punishment, three subcommittees have been appointed, one to collect and examine facts, and the other two to consider the questions of law involved. A mass of valuable material has already been brought together and sifted, and the utmost possible dispatch will be observed.

The Kaiser, meanwhile, will have an opportunity to prepare his case.

REPARATION FIGURES BIG IN ALLIED EYES

PARIS, Feb 4.—Finally the conference has organized. For more than two weeks the President, Prime Ministers and Foreign Secretaries have struggled with the basis of peace—the fourteen points—and the results have been far-reaching. Instead of the division of spoils pursuant to diplomatic precedent, there has been acceptance of the democratic principle based on the rights of peoples, and a new international order has been established. The League of Nations, though not yet definitely formulated in the precise terms of the treaty, has been created and has been made into a very live instrument of international action by having intrusted to it the important function of a Court of Equity to receive reports from its mandatories and exercise powers of review over the conduct of the trusts confided to the charter members of the League.

Too much credit cannot be given to the splendid example set by the British and Dominion delegates in taking the initial step to insure that the decisions of the conference, so far as they relate to territorial matters, shall be governed by principle and not by the selfish and shortsighted aspirations of individual Governments. The work of the conference during the last week has been indeed encouraging in this respect.

Order Appearing Out of Chaos.

And now out of the chaos of questions pressing for consideration, there seems to be appearing some degree of order. The conference has organized to the extent of appointing a number of committees to consider and report on certain of the most pressing of many perplexing problems. The basis of peace, as set forth in the fourteen points, cannot be formulated with any degree of particularity until these committees report. However, there seems to be little doubt that the League of Nations Committee will report either this week or in the beginning of the next.

President Wilson personally is doing everything in his power to help complete the work of this committee and to place its conclusions before the plenary session of the conference before he sails for America. No doubt this will be done.

The committee next in importance to that considering the League of Nations is that studying the intricate question of the reparation to be exacted from Germany. The public in the United States can with difficulty appreciate the enormous importance attached to this question today in allied countries. In the first place, it must be clearly understood that the basis for all damages to be recovered from Germany is set forth in the communication sent to President Wilson by the allied Governments at the time the terms of the armistice were agreed upon. With the purpose of clarifying certain parts of the President's speech to Congress of Jan. 8, 1918, the allied statesmen included the following in this communication:

> "Further, in the conditions of peace laid down in his address to Congress of Jan. 8, 1918, the President declared that invaded territories must be restored as well as evacuated and freed. The allied Governments feel that no doubt ought to be allowed to exist as to what this provision implies. By it they understand that compensation will be made by Germany for all damage done to the civilian population of the Allies and their property by the aggression of Germany by land, by sea, and from the air."

Foe Must Pay Enormous Damages.

The Allies, by expressly amending the fourteen points for the purpose of clarifying them, have defined with striking particularity the nature of the compensation to be required of Germany. Their amendment rules out any possibility of recovery of punitive damages or indemnity. However, it must not be thought that by their amendment the Allies have given up any material advantage. An enormous sum must be recovered from Germany before even reparation is secured on account of the damage caused to allied civilian populations by German aggression "by land, by sea, and from the air." There is little hope among the financial experts gathered in Paris to examine and report on the compensation to be paid by Germany that there will be enough found to pay all the reparation claims 100 cents on the dollar.

"Germany must pay the cost of the war" may be the popular refrain, but statesmen who are depending on that slogan to maintain themselves are, in the opinion of all financial experts, chasing butterflies.

To the people of the United States the question, in the circumstances, is of no selfish importance. Our Alien Property Custodian has sufficient German assets amply to cover our claims for reparation; and, though our national debt has increased enormously on account of the war expenses, the people of the United States have never been led to hope that this debt would be reduced in any way by payments from Germany.

A very different situation exists in France and in Italy, and to some extent in England. The German assets found in those countries are of slight value in comparison to the damage done to the civilian populations by the aggression of Germany. In France and Italy the greater part of the war expenses has been met by increasing the national debt rather than by increased taxation. The people have been told from time to time that Germany would be forced to bear the burden of the expense of the war. The result is that in the allied countries we find: (1) Enormous claims against Germany for reparation; (2) an inconsiderable amount of German assets; (3) in France and Italy gigantic increases in the national debt, and even in England a debt ten times as great as it was before the war; (4) social unrest of such a character as to make increases of taxation of doubtful expediency; (5) an expectation on the part of the people of these countries that part, at least, of the cost of the war will be met by Germany.

Allies' Keen Interest in Reparation.

In such circumstances it is not surprising that in allied countries the report of the Committee on Reparation is awaited with the keenest interest. It is of prime importance that the Peace Conference should know without delay: (1) How much Germany can be required to pay, and (2) how she is to pay.

Until these questions are decided, plans for reconstruction are being held in abeyance; for the Governments, until they learn how much they are to receive from Germany, cannot estimate what expenditures they can afford to make. And until the Governments announce their reconstruction plans and go into the markets for raw materials, great uncertainty must continue to exist in the United States.

Not only are we affected by failure to determine how much Germany is to pay, but our commercial life will be much disturbed until we learn how Germany is to pay whatever sum is settled upon. The acquisition by the Allies of German foreign investments is a comparatively simple matter and can be effected with but little disturbance. The sum so realized, however, will fall far short of meeting even minimum demands. Compensation in excess of this must be obtained, either by increased taxation of German nationals or by foreign loans, which eventually must be paid by taxation or by the sale of commodities exported from Germany in excess of her imports. In the end, whatever sum Germany is compelled to pay over and above the amount of her foreign investments must, in order that it may be available in any currency other than marks, be paid by the sale of German exports in excess of her imports.

This being true, the broad scope of the functions of the Committee on Reparation becomes apparent. Its report will contain recommendations to the conference as to the economic life which Germany shall be permitted to enjoy for at least the next decade. The end to be accomplished is, of course, the securing of as large a sum as possible from Germany with as little disturbance as possible to our own economic life.

Germany must be permitted to reconstitute her economic existence, otherwise she can make only inconsiderable payment to the Allies. But her reconstitution must be under such supervision as to insure the prompt payment of such a sum as may be assessed against her. This is the problem presented to the Committee on Reparation. The solution is eagerly awaited, for the future of Germany and, indeed, the economic processes of the whole world, depend upon it.

REACTIONARY MALICE IN PARIS

Evidenced by False Report of American Wireless to Soviet Leaders.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—A false report, printed in several papers here and probably cabled to America, to the effect that the American Government had consented to send by wireless the message of the French Socialist Longuet to the Bolshevist Government at Moscow, after the French Government had refused, is important and interesting only as additional evidence of the effort of the reactionary French press to create resentment on the part of its public against America.

Needless to say, no such message was sent by the American Government to Moscow nor received at the American official wireless office in Paris for such sending. If the Longuet story was sent by an American correspondent to his paper in the United States and picked up later for transmission to Moscow, that is a matter about which Government officials here know nothing.

But the French papers intimated that the American Government had deliberately flouted the French Government by doing what the latter had refused to do. This is in line with an apparently organized campaign on the part of a few papers to undermine America in the minds of the French people. Another device is to print every scrap of anti-Wilson talk obtainable from the United States. A third method is insidiously to atack the League of Nations idea by praising the theory of it and then presenting arguments intended to show that it will never work.

In method these League of Nations articles are similar to the Hearst editorials printed during the war, which began with spread-eagleism and put the poison in the last paragraph. It is a favorite but somewhat hackneyed trick to compare the League of Nations to the Holy Alliance, which fell to pieces after the good Czar who had invented it became a wicked Czar.

WANTS GUARANTEES OF QUICK AID IN WAR

Temps Writer Hopes the President's Speech Means Just That to France.

By WALTER DURANTY.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The true inwardness of the French attitude toward the Society of Nations is set forth in a Temps editorial on the Wilson and Deschanel speeches yesterday in the Chamber. France is not yet sure how far international action may be practical and efficacious. So, after analyzing Deschanel's points, which chiefly concern the material guarantees for France's future protection, the writer discusses President Wilson's view, in which he holds that only international guarantees are suggested.

He says that, satisfactory as the President's statement that other nations have aided and would in the future aid France against aggression, there are two important factors, time and space, to be considered. It is not only a question of reuniting the forces of widely separated nations, but also of the moment at which their intervention may take place. Thus, nearly three years elapsed before America intervened in the recent conflict, during a considerable part of which the army of Russia, he says, was the only great army cooperating with France.

France's position, he holds, is such that if she be willing in the interests of world peace to waive full material guarantees she must have the certainty of wholehearted and immediate aid from the Society of Nations. The editorial concludes:

> "Each nation affiliated with the society must have the will and power to sign the convention according to the terms on which it pledges itself to enter war immediately with all the forces at its disposal against any State that attacks another State.
>
> "France is ready to sign. The United States, doubtless, is ready also. No other interpretation can be placed on the President's statement, and it will be a cause for rejoicing when this interpretation is confirmed by facts."

LEAGUE GAINS WAY DESPITE PESSIMISTS

MONROE DOCTRINE IS SAFE

American Delegates Deny Alarmist Reports That Creation of League Would Abrogate It.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—With the final effort now in progress to make the League of Nations a going concern, criticism of the proposals under discussion has become intense. Some French newspapers, for example, advance the view that the League cannot be effective without the use of force, and this would prevent the United States from becoming an effective member, because the nation could not be committed in advance to declaring war, as Congress, under the Constitution, has that exclusive right. And now, as it is realized that the plan for the practical working of the League is being considered, suggestions are advanced that the United States, by placing itself under the government of the League, must surrender its proprietorship in the Monroe Doctrine.

The striking thing about the present phase of criticism is that it seeks to emphasize the difficulties of America in holding a place in the League. These criticisms start with the assumption that the League, to be effective, must not only provide for the use of force to discipline Governments which disobey the League's decrees, but that each nation must surrender its own sovereignty in certain aspects and permit itself to be subject to the judgment of the majority of the League's members. Whatever may be the merits of this argument, the critics overlook the fact that the President and his advisers took into close account just these criticisms, and that their attitude toward the League plan now under consideration was shaped accordingly.

As I have pointed out several times in my dispatches, the program of the League organization makes it clear that no supersovereignty is involved. No nation will be called upon to surrender its right to determine individually what its course shall be in certain remote circumstances involving international hostilities. The exercise of this right is left to the determination of each nation, should a condition arise which would lead the majority of the League members to vote for the use of force.

Peril to Monroe Doctrine Denied.

Nor—it is asserted by the American representatives—is there any danger to the Monroe Doctrine as an exclusive American property. The Constitution of the League, which President Wilson and other members of the Commission on the Society of Nations are now engaged in revising, is construed by them as giving no right of interference on the part of the League with the established policies of particular nations.

But the main thing that stands out in the midst of the suggested obstacles is that progress is being made toward the consummation of the league's principles. The constitution of the league, upon which the special commission under the Chairmanship of President Wilson began to work in earnest today, is an amalgamation of four plans that the commission considered informally under the mode of operation described in my dispatch on Sunday—that is, through conferences between small groups of the commission and through commission members.

The constitution is a welding of the provisions contained in all or any of the four plans upon which the commission members seemed to be in agreement. An effort was then made to reduce to writing the sense of the commission as a whole, with the result that a tentative constitution was produced. It is this document that President Wilson and his fellow-commissioners representing the great powers and smaller nations are considering with a view to its revision into such a form that it will meet the approval of all the Governments represented in the Peace Conference.

Commission Method a Time-Saver.

Meanwhile other commissions are at work endeavoring to harmonize conflicting views on a variety of subjects, most of which will be embodied in the peace treaty. This commission method is proving effective as a time saver, and time is the desideratum among the peacemakers. And here is where President Wilson and those who share his views have a considerable advantage. The desire to expedite the making of peace is strong among practically all those concerned—certainly among the representatives of the great powers—and a hopeful feeling is growing daily that the early Spring will see the general treaty fully negotiated.

Only ten days or so remain before the President will leave these shores for home, and an optimistic feeling pervades the American official contingent that he will be able to take with him an assurance to the American Congress and people that he has succeeded in obtaining the assent of all the allied nationalities as represented by their plenipotentiaries in Paris to a practical working plan for reducing, if not entirely preventing, the danger of such a bloody international struggle as that which recently ended.

This optimism was not in sight in the early days of the President's sojourn in Europe. The whole atmosphere seemed charged. There was a disposition to tire out the President and let him return without having accomplished anything tangible. Subsequent events, however, showed that, once the peace plenipotentiaries got to work, they entered into the spirit of the great task before them with a will encouraging to all those who contended that an early peace was desirable. It is true that after all the plenipotentiaries were assembled here matters seemed to proceed with provoking slowness. Then came a spurt, the influence of which is still apparent.

The secret behind the present activity is the realization that the sooner the world gets back to normal the better it will be for all concerned. I have said this in a previous dispatch, but it will bear repetition in view of the emphasis given to it as the time approaches for the President's departure. That the world is uneasy over the postponement of the rearrangements that must correct as far as possible the disorganization caused by the war is obvious to all observers over here. Statesmen must take account of this and be guided accordingly. Therefore statesmen find it incumbent on themselves to hasten the coming of normal times.

It is this very unrest among the peoples of the world that has given President Wilson an advantage in completing his League of Nations program. If his visit to Europe had no other merit, it has been valuable to all immediately concerned in making peace in showing that the people of most of Europe are anxious above everything else to see a peace provided that will be permanent. Their attitude toward the President has indicated—certainly it has been so construed—that they look upon him as the man who will lead the world out of the wilderness of militarism and bloodshed.

What has come to light to give interpretation to the sentiments of the European peoples since President Wilson has been here is being construed as showing that these peoples believe that a League of Peace based on a practical working formula is the thing that will make future wars impossible. So, under the influence of this construction of the peoples' attitude, practically everybody officially concerned in the making of peace is seeking to bring the present negotiations to an end as soon as possible. All of them may not care to have the league's constitution what President Wilson and its enthusiastic advocates believe it should be, but this is not saying that they are not earnest in their desire to have the league plan drafted and approved at the earliest possible moment.

More and more American observers here—official and unofficial—have been impressed with the likeness of the Peace Conference to a national political convention in the United States. The similarity between them is striking in certain important particulars.

Let me preface the statement of the analogy by saying that at the time the President arrived in France the atmosphere was charged with disconcerting reports concerning the relations between various allied powers and the United States. If one believed all he was told, there appeared not the slightest prospect of a satisfactory peace agreement between the allied plenipotentiaries. This or that incident was cited to show that our European partners in the war were stacking the cards so as to give us a "raw deal." But after the leading statesmen of the world had come together—had had an opportunity to get acquainted—it was found that they had the common sense to see that it was their business to make a peace worth while, and all the little troubles that had been magnified in the minds of those who had been preaching the doctrine of pessimism were regarded as unworthy of consideration or could easily be straightened out.

Fruitful Soil for Pessimism.

There is no doubt that this pessimistic gossip had fruitful soil in which to grow, on account of the conditions that are part and parcel of the game played by many of those conversant with the cant terms of diplomacy. The claim of a small nation, in seeming to come into conflict with the objects aimed at by one or more great powers, assumes an importance in the debate that becomes magnified the more it is discussed. Take half a dozen of these questions, and soon there is built up what appears to be a solid wall that forms an obstacle to complete agreement. It is a part of the game to those who have been playing it in the same way for years to become excited and perhaps honestly to convince themselves that everything is going to smash and ruin. But when the big men of the world get together they proceed on the principle that diplomacy is international legislation and—as Uncle Joe Cannon has frequently observed out of the wealth of his experience—legislation is compromise.

To carry out the analogy, all those who follow the course of political events in America know that prior to the meeting of a national political convention the spirit of controversy between the leaders of the same party is predominant. What the untrained observer reads or hears as to the situation leads him to believe that one party leader will bolt the convention rather than submit to the proposals of some other party leader. Perhaps there are half a dozen groups at swords' points. Agreement seems impossible, and it looks as if the party were going to smash and ruin. But when the convention gets going these rival groups come together and arrange for harmonious action. Their leaders know they cannot go home until they have nominated a candidate for President and adopted a platform of party principles. Furthermore, both candidate and platform must seem to be satisfactory to the people of the country—otherwise the party leaders would destroy their own status in public affairs. So it is with the statesmen of the world who are engaged in providing for peace. They know they must do the work for which they are assembled here and must do it in a way that will satisfy the people they represent.

Never before was there such an appreciation among statesmen that the peoples' aspirations and sentiments must be considered in every way. It may be disputed, but to many the present situation means that the statesmen negotiating peace dare not go before their people with a peace treaty that is obviously without the merit of providing a peace intended to be permanent.

That is one reason for the existing confidence that something practical will come from the present consideration of the constitution of the League of Nations. And it is also the reason for the opinion that the League program will be determined soon.

NEW MAP OF EUROPE IS NOW TAKING FORM

ITALY NOW CONCILIATORY

General Willingness Indicated to Renounce Secret Treaty Rights in Interests of World Harmony.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—It is now possible to indicate in rough outline, at least, what is likely to be the map of the new Europe which will be born of the Peace Conference.

The composition of New Germany, and whether or not there will be a drawing together of some elements of Old Germany with the German elements of Old Austria is not for the moment more than one of the speculative problems before the Paris Conference, although bearings on such a grouping are naturally receiving serious consideration in view of the possible resurgence of the Teutonic ambitions of weltpolitik.

The new map of Central Europe, which it is within the scope of the Conference's powers to draw, shows five great States friendly to the Allies: First, Poland, on the north, with access to the sea; second, Czechoslovakia, embodying the Slovak districts of the Hungarian borderland, with Bohemia in the centre; third, a Greater Rumania; fourth, an enlarged South Slav Kingdom, with the Serbian Prince Regent at its head; and, fifth, a Greater Greece.

Austria and Hungary will not only be much reduced in size, but will have no seaboards of their own. But for them, as for Poland and Bohemia, access to the sea must be secured if there is to be a good peace.

Venizelos today concluded his presentation of the Greek claims before the Council of Ten, and there is a general idea that this veteran European statesman made out an extremely good case. The Italian delegates today issued a statement, indicating their sympathetic attitude. This is taken to mean that the understanding between Italy and Greece is within reach, even if a report, current last week, that one had already been made, was a trifle premature. Greek interests in Constantinople and its district will be safeguarded by internationalization of that territory, and its railways and waterways.

The Saar coal field, demanded by France, is unequal to French needs, as it produces only a small supply. Hence the French are demanding that the Germans supply coal cheaply in payment as reparation. Danger in excessive demands upon Germany is seen by Americans interested in the larger future of the world.

One of the most encouraging deductions drawn from these rearrangements which, of course, until ratified by the plenary conference, are tentative and provisional, is that there is a common belief that the difficulties which would have been created by strict adherence to the letter of the so-called secret treaties on the part of any of the signatories are sufficiently relieved to make the principle of self-determination compatible with the principle of security of frontiers.

That it should be possible to take this hopeful view at this relatively early stage of the Paris Conference is regarded as striking proof that good progress is being made toward a settlement, and that the European territorial questions are going to be more easily dealt with than had been supposed possible.

The treaty of Aug. 17, 1916, between Rumania and the Quadruple Entente is an instance in point. Clause 6 of this treaty provided that Rumania should be on a level of equality with the four great powers in the peace negotiations. There is no vestige of a literal interpretation of this clause being given. On the contrary, the Rumanian delegates have been called before the bar of the Council of Ten to present their claims in just the same way as other smaller powers which had no secret treaty authorizing any such claim to equality of bargaining.

While the question of the Italian claims under her treaties with the allied powers is much more important in both scope and quality, it is deduced that neither Orlando nor Sonnino will adopt an intransigeant attitude in view of the changed condition which came into operation between the period at which the treaties were entered into and the date of the signature of the armistice. In fact, as already intimated in these dispatches, the spirit in which the Italian delegates have approached their European colleagues has won unstinted praise.

SECOND DIVISION'S LOSSES

Its Total Casualties 20,415, Including 3,180 Killed and 2,419 Missing.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 5.—With the coming of the news that the two National Guard divisions, the 32d and the 42d, will soon be taken out of the Army of Occupation and started homeward, New Yorkers of the 165th Regiment, the old 69th, New York, which is part of the Rainbow Division, stand ready to bid the Rhine farewell without a tear whenever the word comes.

But it will be a changed 69th that New York will see when this famous infantry unit parades up Fifth Avenue. What I mean is that of the 3,600 men who composed the 69th that sailed from Manhattan, perhaps 1,100—not more—remain. There were 600 originals left when this regiment reached the Rhine, but 500 have since come back from hospitals. Other men making up the present 2,700 strength of the regiment are replacements of drafted men, few of whom came from New York.

New York knows well the history of the 42d Division, and so it needs no explanation of where those missing men from the old 69th are. On the American battlefields, from the Ourcq to Sedan, sleep those men of the 165th.

The 69th does not know what is going to happen to it when it gets home. The members hear that they will be National Guardsmen, and so they are uncertain about their future. But Father Duffy, their beloved chaplain, says that one thing is certain, and that is that they intend to keep their armory. I understand that Governor Smith has been asked to do what he can to see that they do.

Volunteers May Guard Rhine.

Keen interest has been aroused among the men by a report that the divisions to be kept on the Rhine will be composed of volunteers. It has also been announced that these divisions will be composed of men inured to war. So there is on this part of the Rhine, where are most of the American troops inured to war, considerable speculation as to where so many volunteers are coming from.

One finds everywhere expressions of opinion that the American soldiers on the Rhine are not anxious to volunteer to remain on duty here. They regard their work as finished, they think of the war as won, and they want to go home.

It is accepted without discussion that any effort to recruit ten divisions of volunteers from among the thirty American combat divisions would meet with difficulties.

I asked an officer of one of the famous regiments yesterday how many of his men would volunteer to remain on the Rhine if they get the alternative to go home? He replied, "Not more than ten or eleven of the 3,000."

Second Division Leads in Losses.

The Third Army intelligence summary yesterday contained a statement that the First Division had more men killed than any other American Division. This statement is credited to General March. Certified records of the 2d Division show that 3,180 men were killed in action and died of wounds, and 2,419 are listed as missing, making a total of 5,599.

The 1st Division figures are quoted, 2,303 killed in action, 1,050 died of wounds and 789 missing, total 4.142.

The 2d Division throughout the army generally is credited with having had the heaviest casualties. It had 3,979 severely wounded, and 10,837 slightly wounded, making its grand total of casualties, 20,415.

FIND WORK FOR GERMANS.

Economic Situation Improved in the Area Held by Americans.

COBLENZ, Feb. 5.—The economic situation throughout the zone of occupation of the Third American Army continues to show improvement. Jobs are being found for the unemployed as rapidly as possible, and factories are being put back into operation.

The coal situation is the most serious problem of the American civil administration. This is acute in some places, due to the shortage of production and inefficiency in transportation. Fuel troubles far transcend the food questions, which do not loom large, in the view of the American officials.

Within a few days films from the allied countries will replace German films in the theatres in the territory of the American Army of Occupation. Since the Americans have been in Germany they have been heavy patrons of the movies, and have, of course, seen German films.

Under interallied direction the officers have arranged to have films from England, France, and America shown in the movie theatres along the Rhine. These will be of a wide variety, including scenes of the devastated regions of France and Belgium. The German population, of course, will see these same films.

The Credit Lyonnaise, the French financial institution, is opening branches throughout the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, supplying good fiscal service. Luxemburg banks have notified German financial institutions of their intention of severing connections, thus giving further evidence of the economic affiliation between the Grand Duchy and the allied nations, replacing their trade connections with Germany which existed before the war.

SOCIALIST CONFERENCE TO MAKE WAR INQUIRY

Names a Committee to Report on Responsibility for Causing the Conflict.

BERNE, Feb. 5.—Frank Bohn, an American, has arrived here to attend the International Socialist and Labor Conference, which now comprises ninety delegates, representing twenty-five countries.

At today's session J. H. Thomas, a British delegate, complained that too much time was being wasted in fruitless debates and it was decided that all speeches should be limited to six minutes. Thomas addressed the conference on a plan for a society of nations and on the principles of President Wilson.

Pieter J. Troelstra, the Dutch Socialist leader, and one of the British delegates, declared that the "prime object of the conference was to influence the Peace Conference at Paris."

The German Majority Socialists, in opposition to a resolution introduced by Albert Thomas calling for investigation of responsibility for the war, introduced a resolution yesterday to the effect that the war had been the consequence of imperialistic policy during the last decade, but it was the duty of the Socialists to establish the immediate causes.

The resolution said that the causes of the war were the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia, the general mobilization in Russia, and Germany's declaration of war as a result of Russia's mobilization. The German Socialists demanded a full investigation of the facts to establish collective and personal responsibilities, but would wait for their comrades in other countries to demand a similar investigation in their countries.

"The German Socialists," the resolution added, "declare that the entry of German troops into Belgium was a violation of the rights of peoples which nothing that has occurred since has justified."

It was decided that discussions between delegates as to responsibility for the war would not be permitted. It was pointed out that this subject would lead to nothing but endless addresses by French and German representatives.

A Committee on Responsibility for the War was named and it met from 9 o'clock last night until 5 o'clock this morning without agreeing to the resolution to be presented to the Conference. Hjalmar Branting of Sweden presided over the commitee, the other members being Renaudel and Longuet for France; Henderson and Bunting for England; Eisner for Bavaria, Weis and Ellenbogen for Germany, Seitz and Nemes. The committee is to meet again today.

WANTS DRAFT BOARDS TO TAKE THE CENSUS

Could Be Done in Days, Says Crowder — Had Planned Work-or-Fight Extensions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—While the second annual report on the selective service system, prepared by Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, Provost Marshal General, and made public today, contained only one specific recommendation—that the draft machinery be used to take the decennial census—the 600-page document gave inkling of drastic extensions of the work-or-fight regulations which had been planned just before hostilities ended.

The report showed that specific plans were before Secretary Baker last November under which a minimum working week for the essential industries would have been fixed in order that "industrial slackers" might be reached, and that plans were shaping for the mandatory deferment of registrants in essential industry, denying them absolutely the right of military service. A scheme for supervising labor distribution through an industrial furlough system also was being evolved.

In suggesting that the census might be taken through the selective service machinery, General Crowder said that, since 13,000,000 were registered in a single day and 24,000,000 in four days, the census data should be obtainable in days instead of months, as is now the case.

On Nov. 11, 1918, when the armistice with Germany was signed, the report showed the United States had in its military and naval service 4,791,172 men, or 19 per cent. of the male population. On the same day England had already called to the colors 5,854,359, or nearly 60 per cent.

The final official total for all registrations was 24,234,021; of these 3,208,446 had been actually examined. Practically thirty men out of every 100 were found to be physically disqualified. Oklahoma and Arkansas returned the highest ratio of men under the physical requirements; Rhode Island and Arizona the lowest.

Under the head of "aliens," 3,877,083 men were registered, or 16.22 per cent. of the total. These were divided into cobelligerents, 57.49 per cent.; neutrals, 16.42 per cent., and enemy and allied enemy, 26.09 per cent.

COST OF WAR TO ITALY NEAR $10,000,000,000

Ex-Premier Luzzatti Says Nation's Debt Soon Will Be $16,000,000,000—Asks Allied Aid.

ROME, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Italy's national debt is now more than $12,500,000,000, whereas when she entered the war it was about $2,750,000,000, declared Luigi Luzzatti, former Premier and a leading financial authority, in a statement today, urging financial aid to Italy. He said that when pensions, Government bills to manufacturers and other necessary expenses had been paid the national debt probably would total $16,000,000,000.

"Italy, I am sad to say, leads the whole world in the relative height of its war debt," he said. "Subtracting Italy's losses in men and money, her national wealth is only about $20,000,000,000. If all the war loans of the Entente should be thrown together in one consolidated sum, Italy and France, whose efforts and losses in men and substance have been the greatest, will be compensated by bearing a smaller proportion of the war debt.

"The United States and Great Britain are not only strong but generous, and they will acknowledge that Italy and France, the two principal centres of Teutonic slaughter and devastation, should be supported financially, therefore, with correspondingly greater help.

"Essential economic and financial questions, the importance of which are growing daily, are unification of war loans and federation of exchanges both in relation to the future and the unity of monetary circulation. Another essential question which needs competent technical solution is that of customs, since the stronger States belonging to a League of Nations could hinder international traffic, or, worse still, start a customs war which always leads to political and military wars."

ITALY SEEKS OFFSET TO IMMIGRANT CURB

Proposal Reported at Paris to Give Her Colonial Compensation if Bill Is Passed.

MIGHT SHARE IN ASIA MINOR

Fear of Loss of Capital Flowing Back from Italians Who Come to America.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Milan says that a sensation has been caused in Italy by the proposal in the American Congress to exclude immigration to the United States for four years a measure which threatens particularly to affect Italians.

There were in 1913 more than 376,000 Italian immigrants to the United States, and as each immigrant from Italy is supposed to represent eventually a considerable reflux of capital to the mother country, the loss from this alone to Italy it is held, may amount to 300,000,000 lire per annum.

The question is not only being excitedly discussed in Rome, but is also being mentioned at the Peace Conference in Paris, where reports from Italian correspondents say that Baron Sonnino has given his attention to the matter. The result is that compensation is suggested to Italy by conceding her a large share in the partition or control over Asia Minor, during the discussion of the colonial problem.

Italy has stood somewhat apart, not having occupied any colonies during the war, to which she could claim the right of actual possession. Some compensation, it was agreed, was due to her; and when the various claims regarding control of the former Turkish Empire were discussed, it was proposed to assign not only a zone in Adalia to Italy, but a large part of the adjoining region.

This not being enough, England having been acknowledged as having a claim to Mesopotamia and Palestine, France to Syria, and the Arabs to the new Kingdom formed by them, there remained, apart from Armenia and the Greek regions on the coast, the old district which formed the nucleus of the Turkish Empire so-called. It was proposed to assign this region, consisting of the Vilayets of Brussa, Kaistamuni, Angora, Gonia, and Adana. This forms an extensive tract, it is true; but it happens to be the only country really inhabited by Turks, and it looked like the gift of a Trojan horse to Italy.

At Heraclea, there are deposits of anthracite which might be worked with advantage to Italy, but they would soon be exhausted.

How far this project has matured at the Peace Conference has not yet been ascertained by Italian correspondents in Paris, but they wire lengthy details regarding the scheme, and display little enthusiasm for the project. As a field of compensation for immigration it appears impractical, Italian laborers having no particular tendency to migrate to a country mainly inhabited by Turks.

WILSON REFUSED TO HALT INQUIRY

Letter He Wrote Swifts Concerning Packers' Investigation Produced at Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Before the Senate Agriculture Committee today letters were read disclosing that President Wilson last February declined, after a personal inquiry, to interfere with the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the packing industry.

The President had been appealed to by officials of the big packing companies, who asserted that the commission was not conducting a fair inquiry, and this letter, in reply to one from Louis F. Swift, written by Secretary Tumulty, under date of Feb. 27, 1918, was read into the evidence:

The President has asked me to acknowledge for him the receipt of your letter of Feb. 19, and to say that immediately upon its receipt he looked into the matter about which you wrote him in careful inquiry of the Federal Trade Commission as to just what the character and process of the present investigation are. The inquiry has convinced him that there would be no warrant for his interfering with the judgment and action of the commission.

He is very sorry if any inconvenience has been caused Swift & Co., but has asked me to say that it is probable that the significance of many of the matters apparently irrelevant which the commission has drawn out in evidence, will, it is hoped, clearly appear in the final report of the commission.

In testimony before the House Agriculture Committee, E. C. Lasater of the National Livestock Association asserted that the packers controlled the policies of the Food Administration. He stated that when Herbert C. Hoover was appointed Food Administrator he told the witness that he would not invite a single packer to "sit at his council table, because they had a reputation that stunk to heaven."

"But such influence was brought to bear on him," said the witness, "that he chose to disregard their odor. Within three weeks he had arranged to have the packers take sole charge of the meat end of the industry."

Henry Veeder, counsel for Swift, was a witness before the Senate Committee. He read letters and telegrams relating to the unsuccessful efforts of the packing companies to bring about a change in the Federal Trade Commission's method of conducting its inquiry. He said he failed to obtain a personal interview with the President, and thereupon Louis F. Swift, President of Swift & Co., wrote the President, protesting that the commission's investigation was unfair.

Senator Norris of Nebraska questioned the accuracy of a letter from Mr. Swift to the President, in which it was stated Swift & Co.'s dividends for 1917 were 10 per cent.

"Don't you think if Mr. Swift wanted to be real fair," asked the Senator, "he should have said that Swift & Co. by their own figures made a profit of 33 1-3 per cent.?"

Mr. Veeder said he didn't think the President got the wrong impression.

REPORT ON PACKWOOD CASE

Analysis Reveals Chloroform in Woman's Stomach and Brain.

County Physician Ogden of Hackensack, N. J., reported yesterday that according to the analysis of the organs of Azeele Packwood, the girl found dead on the Palisades, made by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler of Bellevue Hospital, New York, 160 milligrams of chloroform were found in the brain of the young woman and 202 milligrams of the same poison in the stomach.

Dr. Ogden explained that the total amount of chloroform disclosed by the analysis was not enough to cause death, but said that it did not follow that all the poison originally taken into the system would remain. Prosecutor Huckin declared, after receiving the report, that he was satisfied that the woman commited suicide.

BRITAIN MOVES TO CHECK STRIKES

great numbers of engineers and boilermakers resuming work. In Belfast the men are still out, but some kind of a settlement is said to be in the air.

Some of the strike leaders have come to London from Glasgow, and hopes of extending the mischief appear to be centred now in the metropolis. Their presence here and their movements are well known.

Believe General Strike Averted.

LONDON, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—The best informed opinion tonight is that the menace of a general strike in London has been removed. Many conferences were held today, and the Board of Trade and the Cabinet had another meeting.

The Government's quick action in taking advantage of the King's presence in London today to call a meeting of the Council to enforce, under the Defense of the Realm act, the same legal means to secure to the communities an electric supply as already exists to protect in a similar manner the gas and water supplies against strike measures, has the full support of the general public. Although the electric trade union at tonight's meeting to consider the changed situation reached no decision, but adjourned until tomorrow, it is believed that there will be no electric power strike.

It is understood that Premier Lloyd George, now in Paris, is being kept informed of all the happenings in the labor world here and is in constant touch by wire with the Cabinet.

The hotels and restaurants, while able to replace a few of their striking servants, still were offering only meagre imitations of their regular menus.

Plans for the formation of a civic guard to maintain and protect public service have been submitted to the authorities, according to The Mail, which says that a similar plan has been successfully employed in Switzerland, Holland, and Australia. The newspaper states that, should the action of the strikers warrant such a course, the citizens may be asked to form a guard to maintain transport, lighting, and food supply services and also to guard power stations, flour mills and important factories.

More than four thousand mechanics of the Royal Army Service Corps have refused to go on duty in depots adjoining London. They say that their contract with the Government as soldiers is at an end and demand that they be demobilized and engaged as civilians to continue the work or that they receive the same pay which civilians would earn.

Bonar Law Rebuffs Labor Chief.

In replying to a letter from J. Bromley, Secretary of the Association of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, asking permission to put the case of the men in the tube strike before the Cabinet and threatening, if refused, to extend the strike over the country, Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the House of Commons, wrote:

"I have before me the agreement of Jan. 30 which was signed, among others, by yourself, and in which it is laid down in explicit terms that conditions as to an eight-hour day as agreed to by the Cabinet had been accepted. In these circumstances there seems to be no room for any misunderstanding, much less a charge of breach of faith. I am sure no useful purpose would be served by my seeing you in regard to it.

"If you have anything new to bring forward, I suggest that you communicate with the President of the Board of Trade, who is acting in this matter for the Government."

Mr. Bonar Law pointed out that the sudden and irregular manner in which the strike began had caused the greatest inconvenience and distress to the whole community.

A statement was issued tonight by the Ministry of Labor in reference to demands made by unofficial conferences of London members of the engineering and electrical trade unions. These demands included governmental intervention in the various labor disputes and the introduction of legislation in Parliament establishing forty hours as the legal working week.

The statement points out that no communication in support of these demands has been received from the executive officers of any of the unions involved. On the contrary, the statement says, it is "understood that the executives are opposed to the action suggested." It is recalled that agreements were recently concluded by the union executives with the employers for the introduction of a forty-seven-hour week. The statement says:

"The Ministry concurs in the view of the Government, that present circumstances, due, as they are, almost wholly to unofficial strikes, do not justify Government intervention."

Lord Henry Cavendish-Bentinck proposes to introduce in the House of Commons a bill enacting a universal working week of forty-four hours.

CLYDE BUILDERS TO SHIFT.

Will Transfer Part of Their Work to British Columbia Coast.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5. — The Daily Chronicle Glasgow correspondent says that one way in which the industrial unrest threatens seriously to react on the workers themselves is illustrated by the announcement of Yarrow & Co., well known shipbuilders and engineers, that they intend gradually to diminish their output on the Clyde and develop their works on the Pacific Coast of North America.

"This report was confirmed by a director of the company whom I interviewed today," says the correspondent. "Harold E. Yarrow, who is Managing Director of the works on the Clyde, is at present visiting America, his mission being related to the decision of the company to increase its activities on the coast of British Columbia. When asked the reasons which influenced the company in its decision, the Director whom I saw replied:

"'It is because the industrial prospects are better in America than they are here, not on the Clyde alone, but all over the country. We believe that better economic results can be obtained in America. American workmen in any given time handle twice as much material as a corresponding number of men on this side.

"'We also find that transport facilities are satisfactory, and that the costs are quite low. For instance, we can get even over here on the Clyde steel plates and angles made in America at a price which compares favorably with that of plates and angles made in Motherwell.'

"'Have the labor troubles on the Clyde had any influence with the firm in its decision?' I inquired.

"'Most certainly,' was the reply. 'I think they are influencing everybody. I mean, of course, the spirit of the workers generally throughout the country. The Clyde is no worse than other places.

"'In America everybody wants to do as much work as he can, and is allowed to do it. The feeling in this country is, do as little as you can and prevent everybody else from doing more than that.

"'Even the man who wants to work his best is not allowed to do it. He is prevented by his fellows. It is a hopeless kind of doctrine, the doctrine of the restriction of output. But unfortunately it is regarded by the workmen of this country as if it were an article of religion. They believe honestly in it.'"

AUSTRIA WAVERED AT START OF WAR

Was Forced by Germany to Continue Attack Begun on Serbia, Salandra Reveals.

TELLS OF ITALY'S DECISION

Ex-Premier Says Rome Knew Nothing of Note to Serbia Till It Was Published.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The Matin prints a dramatic revelation by former Premier Salandra of events in Italy during the last days of July, 1914, and in May the following year, on the eve of Italy's entry into the war. Salandra says:

"We, Austria's ally, only became acquainted with the note (to Serbia) at the time the agencies published it. Flotow, (the Austrian Ambassador,) himself declared he did not know of it, and I believe him."

Salandra reiterates that Italy refused to entertain, for a moment, the idea of joining the Austro-Germans, adding:

"On the 31st of July I said to Barrère, the French Ambassador, 'you have nothing to fear from us.' He left me, deeply moved, to communicate the news to Paris."

For Salandra, Germany's responsibility is beyond question. He says:

"There was a moment when Austria hesitated. It was after hostilities opened against Serbia, when the Austrians learned that Russia was mobilizing. But Germany then intervened and obliged her ally to continue the war."

Regarding Italy's entry the ex-Premier relates how, by the treaty of April 26, Italy had agreed to join the Entente within a month. The meeting of Parliament was convoked for May 10, but was postponed to the 20th at the request of the General Staff, who required more time for preparations. On the 10th, however the Cabinet decided that Parliamentary opinion, greatly influenced by Giolitti, was too divided on the subject, especially in view of Austria's offer to cede the Trentino and all territory west of the Isonzo save Gorizia, and to give Trieste a special form of self-government, though it should remain a part of the Austrian Empire. The Cabinet accordingly resigned and the world knows that Giolitti pressed for a rupture of the engagement with the Entente.

The King offered the Premiership to Marcora, Carcano, and Boselli. All three advised him to refuse Salandra's resignation, Marcora expressing regret that Italy had not entered the war on the Entente side months before. The King then refused Salandra's resignation and the die was cast.

The ex-Premier adds:

"I may say that during this critical period the Italian Government, wholly covered by royal authority, gave orders that the war preparations should not be interrupted for a moment. The Germans in Italy were delighted at the news of my resignation and one of Erzberger's agents sent this message to Berlin: 'Schöner blauer Himmel,' signifying his entire confidence, which, however, was hardly shared by Erzberger himself, who left his own apartment for the greater security of the German Embassy."

SENT 8,000 AIR OFFICERS.

Canada's Contribution to the British Commissioned Personnel.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Canada sent 8,000 aviation officers overseas to join the Royal Air Service during the war, according to a statement made at Hendon today by Sir Edward W. Kemp, Canadian Minister of Overseas Service. Of these, he said, 4,280 were directly recruited in Canada, and the most of the rest were transferred from the Canadian service to the Royal Air Service after their arrival in Europe.

Sir Edward's statement was made in the course of an address in which he accepted, in the name of Canada, fifteen airplanes which had been presented to the Dominion by Canadian and British residents of London, through the Overseas Club. The machines were formally presented by Lord Londonderry, representing the Air Ministry.

will employ its powers as England is now employing them for commercial advantage against the rest of the world.

"And then will follow war, bloody reprisal, and of this thing, in this bed of peace, there will be whelped litters of war dogs. The way to keep men at peace is not to interfere with their rights; to let the ranchman have his ranch and have his sheep; to let that man have his home, to let that man have his business and not to interfere. When you seek to interfere you have fights. The way to have races live in peace is to let races alone and nations alone, and let them run their own business. Let them set up their own government, let them manage their own affairs; let them keep within their own rights and keep without your own, and then you will have some hope of peace. Then, if any nation wants to set up an embargo, well and good; you can meet it by a similar device, and you need not get angry."

Attacks Carnegie Foundation.

Senator Reed turned to an attack on the Carnegie Peace Foundation, saying that it had "posed as an American organization and then had conspired with a lot of Germans, Hungarians, Swedes, and Englishmen to work out a policy that would affect the policy of our Government."

Senator Knox of Pennsylvania interrupted to say that, after three political parties had been pledged to free tolls for American ships passing through the Panama Canal, and the candidates for President for each party had gone before the voters accepting the pledge, and the pledge had been enacted into law, the Carnegie Peace Foundation had spent approximately $30,000 in circulating literature to procure the repeal of the law.

Senator Reed suggested that Canadian shipping interests were behind the move to repeal the law. Mr. Knox said that was the fact.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona said he had always been ashamed that a Democratic Congress had voted for its repeal.

"That is the one thing that is a foul blot on the Democratic Party," said the Arizona Senator. "It was a shameful, disgraceful betrayal of the people."

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia said he approved the Weeks resolution, and hoped it would be adopted.

IMPORTERS IN LONDON COMBAT EMBARGO

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The American Chamber of Commerce in London is arranging a series of conferences between importers of American goods and British manufacturers of similar articles in the hope of reaching agreements that will influence the import restrictions the British Government is to reimpose on March 1.

Importers of American goods are represented as having suffered more than other business men during the war and as having been considerably gratified when, soon after the armistice, the British Government removed restrictions on a long list of articles. These importers, it is said, also foresee great business difficulties over the decision of the Government to renew the restrictions.

In view of the unavoidable delays of dealing with trade subject to any Government department, the manufacturers and importers, on the proposal of the American Chamber of Commerce, have decided to work out their own problems and submit the result to the British Government.

In the case of rubber goods, the conference representative of the British Government is reported to have said that the Government would act according to the agreement reached. Therefore, should the conferees agree that some American rubber goods are needed at this time it is entirely likely that the restrictions will be modified.

Conferences on the boot and shoe restrictions will be taken up tomorrow. The British Government will be represented in person by a member of the Board of Trade, but only in an advisory capacity. The conference will be composed of three British manufacturers, three importers, chiefly of American goods, and three representatives of a delegation of American shoe manufacturers who arrived in England yesterday. It is proposed to have conferences of representatives of each trade affected. Thus far seven such conferences have been arranged.

LEAGUE WON'T AFFECT EXISTING ALLIANCES

So Balfour Assures Correspondents—Calls the Russian Situation "Most Disquieting."

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Existing alliances between the various nations will not be affected by the creation of the League of Nations, according to a statement made by Arthur J. Balfour to newspaper interviewers here last night. The British Foreign Secretary was asked the direct question whether the formation of the world society would involve the abrogation of alliances.

"The constitution of the League of Nations," he answered, "will involve no modification of the treaties of alliance previously concluded. As to the question whether special coalition of two or several peoples could be formed aside from the league, the conference alone can decide."

As the interview was closing one of the correspondents asked regarding the Russian question:

"It is a most disquieting situation," replied Mr. Balfour. "We are doing all that can be done. As to military intervention on a large scale, it is not to be thought of."

Speaking of the general work of the Peace Conference, Mr. Balfour said that the peace-making body was making all possible haste to settle upon the peace terms. He was led to this statement by a question from one of the interviewers, who said:

"There is much talk in the Peace Conference about various problems, such as the Society of Nations. Do you not think your real task is, before everything else, to impose peace conditions upon Germany?"

After a moment's reflection Secretary Balfour replied:

"One can evidently criticise without limit the methods of work we have adopted; but rather than answer criticisms I would tell you that the fact that the problem of the Society of Nations has been taken up before that of peace, properly so called, in no way signifies that the settlement of our accounts with the enemy will only come afterward. The mechanism of the commissions we have instituted permits the concurrent study of several questions.

"Let public opinion be reassured. The delegates to the Peace Conference have no intention of employing dilatory methods. They are using all their energy and skill to attain as soon as possible the just peace to which the whole world aspires. That is their one aim, their sole ambition."

Ford Libel Hearing Ended.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—Hearing on a motion by The Chicago Daily Tribune for a change of venue in the million dollar libel suit brought against it by Henry Ford was concluded in Circuit Court here this afternoon. Judge Henry A. Mandell announced that he would give his decision tomorrow.

More and better business for a CANDY MANUFACTURER

All signs point to the fact that candy manufacturers in America have a most unusual opportunity at this particular time. Conditions are ripe for a skilful, powerful merchandising and advertising plan.

We have such a plan — a plan with an interrupting idea and a very solid foundation. We will be glad to confer with any candy manufacturer who wants more and better business.

To Business in General

Constructive contributions to sales increase, and the application of sound merchandising sense to business — on these two interpretations of the responsibilities of advertising rests our record as advertising counsellors.

Without obligation, one of the principals of our organization will be glad to go into conference with any firm whose business expansion necessitates the breaking down of sales resistance, or the further development of an already proved method of distribution.

A conference will bring out concrete facts

TAFT SAYS PEACE DEPENDS ON LEAGUE

NOTED SPEAKERS FAVOR IT

Dr. Butler, Frederic R. Coudert, and Others Insist That America Must Stand with the Allies.

Speakers of note, addressing the Atlantic Congress for a League of Nations in session at the Hotel Astor all day yesterday, discussed from every angle the desirability of a permanent concourse of States and of peoples to insure the world against future wars and to guarantee the orderly development of humanity. The congress, arranged some time ago, and to be followed by eight similar gatherings in other parts of the country, had for its immediate object the drawing forth of an authoritative expression of American public opinion, not only in favor of the league idea, but in definite determination that the machinery for the purpose evolved at the Paris conference be sufficiently potent to insure the power and success of the experiment.

Ex-President William Howard Taft, President of the League to Enforce Peace, who presided at all its sessions, discussed the principles, purposes, and benefits of the league as he conceived them, and answered categorically many of the objections to the plan which have been advanced by its opponents. Mr. Taft took particular issue with James M. Beck's recent utterances on the subject, asserting that while he had great respect for Mr. Beck's judgment, he possessed other sources of information and from these felt certain that the great body of the English people were heartily in support of the idea. Among others who discussed various phases of the topic were Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University; Frederic R. Coudert, and George Grafton Wilson, Professor of International Law at Harvard University.

After the Rt. Rev. James A. Darlington, Bishop of Harrisburg, had pronounced the invocation, with a plea that the words of Theodore Roosevelt, "Our American patriot and saint, that this world will never be safe for any man until it is safe for every one," might be heeded. Mr. Taft opened the congress with a review of the organization of the American league in Independence Hall and a recapitulation of the platform, including an internationad court, a court of conciliation and agreement among the nations to unite their economic and, if need be, their military power to enforce their agreements, and a Congress of Nations to clarify and codify international law. He said the league had drawn up a tentative treaty which, at President Wilson's request, had not been published, and reviewed the organization of bodies with similar aims, such as the English league and the league of which Mr. Hapgood is President. Turning to a discussion of definite ways and means, Mr. Taft said:

League Indispensable.

"Now, what I would like to demonstrate this morning, and I think it is capable of demonstration, is that it is impossible, and that the nations are going to find it impossible, before they get through, to make a complete agreement upon this treaty now formulating in Paris. They will find it indispensable, in achieving the purposes of the war, to have a League of Nations such as we have outlined, in order to secure the purpose of the war. With respect to these nations engaged in dictating this treaty, we might as well face the fact that we have beaten Germany to an unconditional surrender and that those who won the war are to dictate the treaty."

The allied purpose in the war, Mr. Taft continued, was to cure the German people of forty years of false philosophy and to eradicate from the world the devilish fruits of that philosophy. The treaty, he said, must be a clinching of that cure, the making sure that the world should benefit by the fruits of its more than four years of awful toil. The speaker told of the formation of various nations whose cry for self-determination had been answered, warned that they were born of Russia and Germany and Austria, and that the offspring well might take on some of the faults of their parent States, and reminded his hearers that a firm parental hand surely would be needed on the part of the older nations if the younger members of the family were to be kept in order.

"The construction of a written instrument," said Mr. Taft "is ordinarily a natural and justiciable question in determining the rights of the parties, and that extends to treaties as well as to other written instruments. Now somebody will have to construe that treaty, and construe it authoritatively. And who is that somebody? It must be an impartial international court. You cannot get along without it. You have got to have such a body, because the number of questions to arise will be so many that you will have to create an international court. I do not care what you call it, that is what it will work into.

"And then these non-justiciable questions will arise, many of them, and you will have to have a council of conciliation. Of course you can say you will refer it to the league and to the controllers of the league. So be it. But it will have to be to delegated bodies—you can't have all of these gentlemen, all of these ponderous quantities at home sitting constantly at Versailles. They must leave a body there, however, to solve and to recommend compromises of the different questions. And there you have two of the policies of the League of Nations as the three national voluntary associations have defined it.

"And then you come to the third: that is the agreement to use economic force, and if need be to contribute to the army. Now I do not know how you find it, but I am a father—I hope I am a benevolent father; I hope I have the same springs of love for my offspring that others have. But I have found in the family that, not the use of the paternal hand, but the knowledge of its presence in the family stimulates moral impulse and moral conviction. And I think from what I have said, and I hope I have not exaggerated the situation, these children that we are creating in Europe are going to have some of the elements of our own dear offspring when they attempt to stand up and to do the things in the family of nations that is against the rule of the family.

"I do not think that we can get along without force. Of course it is proposed, I see, by the correspondents that we will have to. I do not know how much the correspondents are engaged in carrying on this commission, but if they are doing it as much as they say they are, or as we may infer from what they say, they must have great diversity of opinion in the commission, and a constant change from day to day in the opinions of the members themselves.

Says Force Is Needed.

"Now we are told that we are not to have the use of force, to cement the nations together on the one hand, and to induce compliance with the obligations of the league on the other. I hope that is not so. But if we get economic pressure only, then we will see how economic pressure works. It did not work very much against Germany, for she had it for four years. But the effect of it will be a constant force, and if we cannot get anything better than that, why, we will thank God we got our hat back.

"Oh, I know you have heard a great deal about the violation of the Constitution. Well, I yielded to no man in the worship of that fundamental instrument, and I worship it the more because there are a good many gentlemen whom I would not trust with that instrument over night. But you cannot find any line in that Constitution which forbids the President going to the place where his highest constitutional duty is, when occasion calls for it. And it has done him good. And it would do some gentlemen in Washington good, too.

"Senator Borah says, at least he is so reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES as saying so—I always use that expression because my experience has been somewhat unfortunate in being quoted wrongly—that we are beginning a series of Congresses that is tending toward Bolshevism; that the doctrine we are to preach is a blow at nationalism, and we are to be Bolsheviki. Well, do I look like a Bolshevik? I do not think you do. Theodore Roosevelt in the last editorial he wrote favored our plan. Was Theodore Roosevelt a Bolshevik? Well, you will excuse me while I laugh at that suggestion."

Mr. Taft asserted it was in no sense unconstitutional to agree that the nation would furnish force to suppress war if it were needed, though he agreed it would be unconstitutional to give an army to Marshal Foch to use when and how he might see fit in the future. He ridiculed the "supersovereignty" objection to the league, declaring that it would be no worse to limit the individual freedom of nations for the sake of international society than it would be to limit the freedom of individuals for the benefit of national society. It is the "German idea of sovereignty," said the speaker, which desires to use the sovereignty of the nation for selfish ends alone which voices that objection.

It was at the night session of the conference that Mr. Taft referred to Mr. Beck's objections to the league, saying:

"Now I want to disagree with Mr. Beck about the attitude of the English people. I have the highest respect for him, but I have other sources of information, and I think I know how the plain people over there feel. I tell you that when the people headed by such statesmen as Lord Grey, Mr. Asquith and Lord Bryce, and all the leading churchmen of England range themselves back of the plan there is no use saying Great Britain is against it. Just because a man has been in intimate touch with things over there doesn't necessarily make him the best witness as to how the people feel. And I want to remind you that when Mr. Lloyd George was campaigning, when he was the issue, he came out flatfootedly for the league, and I think we may well think that he had some idea as to what the people wanted."

Dr. Butler declared that the idea of international union was not so new as people seemed to think. This country, by its ideals and its example, had been contributing to that end for at least a generation, he said.

The reason the United States has not done more in the direction of internationalism, the speaker said, was not one of isolation, but rather one of preoccupation because of the nation's great task of internal development. That preoccupation now, he said, gives way naturally and inevitably, for the country is ready to play its part in contributing to the progress of all civilization.

"It is true of nations as of men," he added, "that they are their brothers' keepers, that they are responsible for the welfare of others, not by vicarious meddling, but by applying the test of service, which is capable of being met by nations just as it is by individuals. One great step that we must take—that we have already begun to take—is to prepare the way for international thinking. The world must come to think of an international breach of the peace just as it thinks of a municipal breach of the peace, and the time has come when an act of aggression on the part of a nation must be thought of not in terms of civil offense but in terms of the criminal offense which it is."

A Grave Mistake.

Dr. Butler paid tribute to the first and second Hague conferences, to Secretaries of State Hay and Root for the instructions they gave American delegates, to Andrew D. White and Joseph H. Choate for their fashion of American representation, and said they then sowed the seeds of a policy which now is about to flower for the good of humanity. He explained how the war had brought Great Britain, France and Italy as well as America already to the brink of the formation of a league and said it was a grave mistake to let the opinion get abroad that the statesmen or the people of any of these nations opposed the formation of a league.

"The Governments and the peoples of all these nations and our own," concluded Dr. Butler, "are ready to build on the ruins of this war a structure that will not again, humanly speaking, be shaken, much less overturned. What is proposed is not some absurd thing, it is not a society without nations, it is a society of nations; it is not the abolition of patriotism, it is the quintessence of patriotism it means the upbuilding and strengthening of national integrity and using it for a high and lofty and moral purpose."

Mr. Coudert began his discussion of the question with the declaration that jurists with their abstract and analytical minds were not qualified to interpret the current movements among minds of men. It is an absurdity, he insisted, to call the league idea an impossibility.

"The league," said Mr. Coudert, "evolved spontaneously when Prussianism burst loose upon the world, and had it not done so, human justice would have disappeared from the earth forever."

"There were voices," said the speaker, "as powerful and persuasive as James M. Beck's that took the lead in saying that the American Constitution was a dream of idealists and theorists which could not be realized. Had there been a reason why this could not have been realized it would have been because of those very ones who said 'it cannot be.' I wish to warn you tonight that without a League of Nations all those nationalistic aspirations now broken into flame in so many parts of the world may well lead all Europe, nay, all the world, into thirty years of warfare, lasting until those flames burned out at last to leave the world a ruin. Called into being because of a world necessity, the League must remain for the same reason perpetuated as the dictate of reason hand in hand with the dictate of justice.

Sovereign Freedom Gone.

Bainbridge Colby said in part:

"I sometimes wonder on what kind of reading the Senatorial mind is nourished The denunciations which various Senators hurl from day to day at the mere suggestion of an organized world peace, seem to me to be characterized by a vast illiteracy, a complete lack of touch with the sober and responsible thought of our own people and of our heroic allies.

"A distinguished Frenchman, who was asked what he thought of Senator Lodge's recent speech in the Senate, in which he treated the proposed League of Nations as the veriest chimera, replied that the speech was very provincial, which indeed it was.

"Chagrin and mortification await our flying squadron of Senatorial denouncers when they waken to the fact that civilization has recorded its judgment without even reading their protests. "They will be like the Irish private who complained to his Sergeant that he was the only man in the line who was in step.

"We talk of our 'sovereign freedom.' We indulge in canting prattle about its preservation. The truth is that it is gone—gone for England, gone for France, gone for Italy, gone for us. The cause of the Entente was on the verge of failure when we threw our decisive strength into the balance, and who will contend that we alone, with the duty upon us of organizing for war, as well as waging it, could have prevailed against the concentrated power of the barbarian alliance? France needed England, England needed Japan, France and England besought Italy for help. All needed us, and we needed all. Thus only was victory won."

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, who returned from Europe last week, said that after conferring with many of the statesmen in England, France and Italy, he was convinced that the League of Nations was at hand, and the only country that can avert the formation of the league was America.

"If," he said, "America does not stand behind the President at this time it will stand alone among the allied nations. There are some Senators in the United States today who are opposed to the League of Nations. Any one who deliberately undermines the work of President Wilson in his endeavor to bring about the league is guilty of moral treason and will be dealt with by the American people in due time. Any leader of the Governments of France, Britain or Italy who would dare get up and publicly declare that he were opposed to the league would not survive politically for twenty-four hours."

In closing, Rabbi Wise said that Mr. Wilson should remain in Paris until he is able to bring home with him a peace that will insure the independence and integrity of the small nation as well as the large. "If no league comes with peace," he asserted, "America will have to become the most powerful military and naval nation in the world."

Dr. Henry van Dyke thus indicated the terms under which Germany might be allowed to participate in the League:

"Shall Germany share in the benefits of such a league? Yes, if she becomes good, we could not and would not prevent her sharing in its benefits—they are for all the world. But shall she be a member of such a league?

"Ah, that is a different question. First of all, she must repent and prove her repentance by her works of restitution and reparation. Second, she must get a solid Government, directly responsible to the people and free alike from convicted liars and bloody Bolsheviki. When those two things come to pass the admission of Germany to the League may be considered seriously, but not before!"

GERMANS DIVIDED ON PEACE POLICY

Two Elements Hope to Weaken the Allies' Resolution by Different Methods.

ERZBERGER FOR YIELDING

Believes That This Method Will Soften Terms—Winterfeldt's Aim to Defy "Brute Force."

By LEONARD SPRAY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 4.—From reliable sources important information reached me as to the circumstances attending the resignation of General von Winterfeldt from his post as Chairman of the German Armistice Commission.

It has been stated that Winterfeldt resigned as a protest against Marshal Foch's extra demand for the occupation of a sector east of Strasbourg. So far as this goes, it is absolutely correct, but it does not go anything like far enough. The German General left, not merely because he objected to this demand or even because, as he says, of the whole general attitude of the Entente representatives, but because in his view and that of the influential circle he represents, the whole Armistice Commission ought to be disowned by Germany.

Before throwing up his hands, he urged nothing less than that the German Government should formally declare that it would have nothing more to do with the armistice proceedings, and would leave the Entente to take any measure they might think fit, even to the occupation of the whole country.

Differed from Erzberger.

There was, therefore, at this point a direct conflict of opinion between Winterfeldt and Erzberger. Erzberger has taken the view from the beginning of the armistice that Germany's primary task was to convince the Entente of her good will and good intentions, and, therefore, he has consistently urged that all the conditions imposed by Foch must be accepted and loyally carried out. This, he believes, is the only way which will open to Germany the possibility of some sort of a peace of reconciliation.

Erzberger, and those who think with him, quite apart from the genuineness or otherwise of the belief mentioned, are playing for time. They believe that with the passage of time and the apparent submissive German attitude through the Armistice Commission, there will grow in strength influences in the Entente countries which are in favor of conciliation.

At the same time they recognize that this policy may miscarry and that notwithstanding their attitude the Entente will still impose what the German people would regard as too harsh conditions. For this possibility they are prepared, holding that even so they at least will have lost nothing, and can still save their faces.

In this transition period they feel that they can assent to whatever armistice demands are made, without being too much burdened with the dissatisfaction of their own people, now preoccupied with cares for everyday existence. This, however, cannot be reckoned upon when it comes to the peace conditions which will, perhaps, be of such character that the acceptance of them would make the position of the German envoys impossible.

May Refuse to Sign Treaty.

In that event they are already prepared formally to refuse to sign the Peace Treaty and to adopt an attitude of passive resistance, allowing the Entente to take whatever measures it may think fit.

From the beginning the Conservatives have had a different view from Erzberger's conception of the position and prospects. What they have wanted for a long time past, and what Winterfeldt himself advocated last week, is a policy of non possumus.

In Winterfeldt's eyes the whole action of Erzberger is idle and fruitless. He believes that the Entente will continually make fresh demands and become less conciliatory the more Germany gives way. Therefore, he urged in effect: "Break off the armistice, declare you can no further yield to brute force, and let them do what they like."

For the moment it has not come to that, but there are indications enough that it will constitute the German Government's policy in the long run. Whatever else has changed in the mentality of the Germans since the revolution they still retain their fatal disability for understanding the psychology of other nations. They are convincing themselves now that the Entente Governments would not be able, owing to the feeling among their own peoples, to maintain indefinitely the military occupation of Germany or even a blockade.

Not to Free Sinn Feiners Now.

LONDON, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Reports from various sources that the members of the Sinn Fein who have been interned in England were to be released were set at naught today by a statement issued from the office of the Secretary for Ireland. The statement set forth that the Sinn Fein prisoners were not to be freed "under the present circumstances." Nevertheless, a Dublin dispatch says that the Lord Mayor of that city announced that arrangements were being made for their early liberation, and it was intimated that Edward De Valera, who is reported to have escaped, is going to the Paris Peace Conference.

Knudsen Cabinet Out in Norway.

CHRISTIANIA, Feb. 5.—The Norwegian Cabinet, headed by Gunnar Knudsen, has resigned. The reason given is that Knudsen's party has ceased to maintain control of Parliament. Speculation as to the new ministry includes the possibility that H. H. Bryn, Norwegian Minister at Washington, will be named as Foreign Minister.

Frelinghuysen Also Opposes Promoting Other Generals Now, but Excepts Crowder and McCain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, of New Jersey expressed the hope in debate today that there would be no "undue haste" in acting upon the bill, presumably originating with the War Department, to give the President authority to confer the permanent rank of General upon Generals Pershing, March, and Bliss and Lieut. Gens. Liggett and Bullard. He said it would be well to wait and see what had actually been achieved by these Generals in the field and at home.

Mr. Frelinghuysen suggested that there were men of lower rank who had served conspicuously in battle who also should be recognized. He urged the Senate to wait and see what responsibility General March, as Chief of Staff, might have had for the "blunders and grave mistakes" of the War Department before conferring higher permanent rank upon him. General March, he said, had "extraordinary, almost autocratic powers."

Senator Frelinghuysen eulogized General Crowder, the Provost Marshal, for his work in mobilizing the army, and said that, unless the President reappointed him on Feb. 15, the General would either drop into civil life or go back to the rank of Colonel. Adjutant General McCain, he said, had done extraordinary work in "shaping the army handed over to him by General Crowder." General McCain, like General Crowder, would go back in rank unless the President intervened. Mr. Frelinghuysen demanded recognition for both these Generals.

Mr. Frelinghuysen discussed the aircraft program, and spoke of the report by Charles E. Hughes against Colonel Deeds, whom the special investigator suggested be disciplined. Instead, however, the Senator said, he was "vindicated" by the Secretary of War.

"Whoever was responsible, directly or indirectly, for the tragedy of the aircraft fiasco," said Senator Frelinghuysen, "which resulted so disastrously, to our men in the field, should have been tried, and, if found guilty, been compelled to suffer the maximum penalty under the law, civil or military. That is the kind of 'vindication' he or they should have received, not a certificate of character from the President or the War Department."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Senator Frelinghuysen concluded his speech today by saying:

"It is all very well for the President to break the precedents of a century that he may head triumphal processions in foreign capitals, sleep in the chambers of royalty, dine off gold plates in the palaces of the modern Caesars, and have his photographs taken with Kings, Queens, and Princesses. But what of the American private who returns to his native shores, dismissed without a dollar in his pocket?"

Senator Kirby, Democrat, of Arkansas, replied briefly to Senator Frelinghuysen. He said that the ratio of complaints to the number of men involved has been exceedingly small.

BIG SHOE BILLS CAN BE CUT

"I will always wear shoes with Neolin Soles," writes Mr. M. Newman of the I. Newman Mfg. Co. of Minneapolis. "They are superior soles in every way, waterproof, more comfortable and more durable. After many months of wear they remain in good condition."

Mr. Newman, and millions of others, have found that the answer to the shoe-bill problem lies in getting soles that wear a long time—Neolin Soles.

They are scientifically made, very tough and yet have the other qualities that soles should have—comfort and absolute waterproofness. Get Neolin-soled shoes for your whole family. They are found nearly everywhere and in all styles. Have worn shoes repaired with Neolin Soles. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

PERSHING HONORS NEW YORK AVIATORS

Several Local Men Among Latest Heroes Who Have Received the Distinguished Service Cross.

LIEUT. S. G. NORRIS IN LIST

B. T. Burt, R. D. Vernam, H. H. George, and P. R. Pyne Also Are Included.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Two more lists of American soldiers who have received the Distinguished Service Cross from General Pershing for extraordinary heroism in action were made public today by the War Department. All of the latest men honored are officers of the Aviation Corps and among them are:

Lieut. H. L. Borden of Newport, R. I.; Lieut. L. G. Irving of Berkeley, Cal.; Capt. C. G. Grey of Chicago, Ill.; Lieut. G. A. Preston of Howe, Ind.; Lieut. J. R. McKay of Wheaton, Ill.; Lieut. Donald Hudson of Kansas City, Mo.; Lieut. John Frost of San Antonio, Texas; Lieut. M. L. Dowd of Paris, France; Lieut. Glen Phelps of St. Louis, Mo.; Lieut. Clinton Jones of San Francisco, Cal.; Capt. Reed Chambers of Fort Huachuca, Arizona; Lieut. S. V. Clarke of Williamsport, Penn.; Lieut. H. P. Neibling of Minneapolis, Minn.; Lieut. Sumner Sewall of Bath, Me.; Lieut. G. C. Carroll of Garrett, Ill.; Lieut. G. R. Nixon of Los Angeles, Cal.; Lieut. W. T. Ponder of Mangum, Okla.; Lieut. J. J. Quinn of Philadelphia, Penn.; Lieut. R. L. Maugham of Logan, Utah; Lieut. W. J. Hoover of Hartsville, S. C.; Lieut. H. C. Rorison of Wilmington, N. C.

The men from this city and nearby places who have been decorated and the specific acts for which they have been honored follows:

Second Lieut. Sigbert A. G. Norris, Aviation Section, observer, 11th Aero Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Dun-sur-Meuse, on Sept. 26. Deeming it impossible to catch their own formation, Lieut. Norris, with Lieut. William Waring, pilot, attached themselves to a formation from the 20th Squadron and engaged in a thirty-five-minute fight with thirty enemy aircraft. Five of the 20th Squadron were lost and the observer of one of the remaining planes seriously wounded. The wounded man had fallen in a position which had made the control of the machine difficult. Lieut. Norris immediately motioned for his pilot to take a position between the enemy formation and the crippled companion, in order to protect it, and continued to fight off the enemy planes until our lines were crossed. Home address, C. R. Freeman, friend, 489 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. William W. Waring, deceased, Aviation Section, pilot. For extraordinary heroism in action near Dun-sur-Meuse, on Sept. 26. Deeming it impossible to catch their own formation, Lieut. Waring with Lieut. Sigbert Norris, observer, attached themselves to a formation from the 20th Squadron and engaged in a thirty-five-minute fight with thirty enemy aircraft. Five of this squadron were lost and the observer of one of the three remaining planes seriously wounded. The wounded man had fallen in a position which made the control of the machine difficult. Lieut. Waring immediately placed his machine between the enemy formation and the crippled companion in order to protect it, and continued to fly in this place until our lines were crossed and the enemy scouts driven off. Home address, Mrs. Lucy T. Waring, mother, Franklinville, Cattaraugus County, N. Y.

First Lieut. Byron T. Burt, Jr., Aviation Section, observer Balloon Section. For repeated acts of heroism in action near Gricourt, between Aug. 4 and 11; near Sommedieue on Sept. 16, and near Avocourt on Oct. 1. On each of these occasions he remained with his balloon, making important observations of the enemy's positions and directing our artillery fire, until his balloon was set on fire by incendiary bullets from enemy aircraft. On one occasion he refused to jump until his companion, a student observer, was safely away. Home address, Mrs. Byron T. Burt, 108 West Seventy-third Street, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. Warren Edwin Eaton, aviation section, 103d Aero Pursuit Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Bantheville on Oct. 10. With one other pilot he engaged an enemy formation of eleven planes, (Fokker type,) though another hostile formation was directly above them. After a severe combat Lieut. Eaton destroyed one of the enemy planes and, with his companion, drove down another out of control. Home address, Mrs. Warren E. Eaton, wife, Norwich, N. Y.

First Lieut. Remington Deb Vernam, pilot, 22d Aero Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Buzancy, on Oct. 10. Successively attacking two enemy balloons, which were moored to their nests, he displayed the highest degree of daring. He executed his task despite the fact that several enemy planes were above him, descending to an altitude of less than ten meters when five miles within the enemy lines. His well-directed fire caused both balloons to burst into flames. Address, Mrs. Philip J. Ross, mother, 66 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. Harold H. George, 139th Aero Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Bantheville on Oct. 27. He displayed great courage in attacking a formation of four enemy planes, (Fokker type,) destroying two of them in a terrific fight and driving the other two back to their own territory. Home address, William H. George, brother, 210 East Tenth Street, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. Percy Rivington Pyne, 103d Aero Pursuit Squadron. For extraordinary heroism in action near Dun-sur-Meuse, on Oct. 23. While protecting three planes on a photographic mission he attacked and drove off five enemy machines, (Fokker type.) Later another German formation of seven (Fokker type) was encountered, but despite the odds Lieut. Pyne swung up into the midst of the enemy and scattered them, diving on one of the Fokkers and sending it crashing to the ground. Home address, Percy R. Pyne, father, 680 Park Avenue, New York City.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TARANTO, Feb. 4.—This port is the scene of feverish activity and indefatigable work. The quays are crowded with merchant ships of the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy. The Italian Government has ordered them to Taranto for repairs, as they were in a dilapidated condition, having received no attention for five years, and parts of machinery being missing.

Mechanics, painters, carpenters, and an army of workmen have been working day and night to repair as quickly as possible these ships to add to the Italian tonnage badly reduced by the war. Since Dec. 2, fifty-four ships have arrived here and thirty others are expected in a few days. Twenty-three have sailed for other ports flying the inter-Allied flag, and the Italian Tricolor.

LINZ PLUNDERED BY MOB.

People of Upper Austria Said to be Maddened by Hunger.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Thousands of persons in the district of Linz, the capital of Upper Austria, have been plundering the food shops and committing other depredations, according to reports from Linz transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Vienna. The people, the reports stated, had become maddened by hunger.

The advices added that the disorders had not yet been suppressed.

On Dress Parade
Whether it's a promenade around the golden horseshoe at the opera or an informal Hello! in the theatre foyer, there's an indescribable comfort in being appropriately togged out. Elegance need not be synonymous with extravagance, for there's a great deal of distinction embodied in our men's evening clothes.

Tuxedo or Full Dress Coat and Trousers, $34.50

Quality is evident in the unfinished worsted fabric. Silk lined throughout, fine tailoring admits this evening apparel to the class of clothing elsewhere considerably higher priced.

ARMY TABLE TELLS STORY OF VICTORY

Allies' Rifle Strength Grew from April On, While Germany's Dwindled Nearly Half.

HER RESERVES ALL GONE

Total Size of American Army at Home and Abroad When Armistice Was Signed 3,703,273.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The story of Germany's supreme effort for military victory in the Spring of 1918, of American intervention on the western front, and of the ultimate crushing defeat of the enemy and the apparent annihilation of nearly one-half of his fighting force was graphically told in figures made public today by the War Department. They dealt with the "rifle strength" of the Allies and the German forces on the western front in monthly periods from April 1 to Nov. 1, and were prepared by the Intelligence Division of the General Staff of the American Army in France. By rifle strength is meant the "number of men standing in the trenches ready to go over with the bayonet."

When Germany struck its great blow last Spring it had about 1,500,000 men so classified, against an allied total of about 1,250,000. By June 1 the Germans reached their peak with 1,639,000 rifles. The allied strength on June 1 was 1,496,000. Shortly afterward the Allies reached a total of 1,547,000, composed of 778,000 French, 515,000 British, and 254,000 American. America's contribution had risen from 65,000 in April. On July 1 Germany's power had begun to wane, and for the first time it was definitely inferior in rifle strength, with 1,412,000, compared with 1,556,000 for the Allies.

In mid-October the American strength had risen to an estimated force of 350,000. On Sept. 1 the allied line was at its greatest strength with 1,682,000, against Germany's 1,339,000. While the Allies had shrunk in rifles to 1,485,000 on Nov. 1, Germany's last hope was gone as she faced that army with only 866,000 bayonets.

	Allies.	Germany.
April 1	1,245,000	1,569,000
May 1	1,343,000	1,600,000
June 1	1,496,000	1,639,000
July 1	1,556,000	1,412,000
Aug. 1	1,672,000	1,395,000
Sept. 1	1,682,000	1,339,000
Oct. 1	1,594,000	1,223,000
Nov. 1	1,485,000	866,000

The sudden decline of the German forces, beginning in June and again apparent in the swift drop during October, was accounted for by the fact that she had drawn into the lines during the Spring every available reserve, expecting to smash her way to victory before Winter came. These reserves were used up in the German attack and the allied assaults which followed, while the American force continued to increase.

In a rough way, the American rifle strength has represented about 20 per cent. of the total American force in France continuously. This accounts for the fact that with a total of more than 2,000,000 men in France on Nov. 11, the rifle strength in October was estimated at around 350,000 men. A similar situation was shown in staff reports as to the total allied strength, reckoned as "ration strength," which was continuously greater than that of the German Army throughout the Spring and Summer last year.

The total strength of the United States Army on Nov. 11, when the armistice was signed, was 3,703,273 officers and men, including the Marine Corps on duty with the army in Europe. On Nov. 11 the American officers and 1,868,474 men, while 1,162 officers and 21,072 men were at sea en route to Europe. The marine contingent in the expeditionary force on that date was 1,002 officers and 31,383 men, making the total European army strength either in France or en route there 2,003,935 officers and men.

In the United States on that date were 1,634,499 army personnel, and in the insular possessions, the Canal Zone, Alaska, &c., 55,735. The total strength of the Siberian expedition on that date was 298 officers and 8,806 men.

	Officers.	Men.	Total.
Army personnel in Europe	80,842	1,868,474	1,949,316
At sea en route to Europe	1,162	21,072	22,234
Total	82,004	1,889,506	1,971,550
Marines (on duty with army in Europe)	1,002	31,383	32,385
Total, including marines	83,006	1,920,929	2,003,915
Siberian Expedition	298	8,806	9,104
Total A. E. F. in Europe and Siberia	83,304	1,929,735	2,013,039
In United States	104,155	1,530,344	1,634,499
In insular possessions, Alaska, &c.	1,977	53,758	55,735
Grand total in army, excluding marines	188,434	3,482,454	3,670,888

AMERICAN GASOLINE ENABLED ALLIES TO WIN

Foch Within Sixty Days of End Warned War Would Be Lost Unless Supply Was Kept Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—That Marshal Foch cabled to officials in this country within two months of the signing of the armistice warning that the war would be lost if America failed to keep up its supply of gasoline, was revealed tonight by the Fuel Administration in an authorized statement, in which it is contended that American gasoline turned the tide of the war.

"Less than sixty days before the armistice was signed," the statement reads, "the situation hung in the balance—just when the American people were accustoming themselves to their voluntary relinquishment of Sunday automobile rides and the observation of 'gasolineless Sundays.'

"But for this and other sacrifices, and the stimulation and direction of production, what might have happened was indicated in a blunt cablegram from Marshal Foch, saying simply:

"'If you don't keep up your petroleum supply we shall lose the war.'

"A still more serious cable was received Oct. 1. It said in part:

"'Senator Bérenger writes highest command informs him that position has become so serious that change in military operations will have to be contemplated unless increased deliveries gasoline at front are made possible.'

"Eighty per cent. of the allied requirements of petroleum products, the Earl of Curson pointed out in a statement made Nov. 21, was furnished by the United States, and Walter H. Long, British Secretary of State for the Colonies, sent special thanks for the work of the Fuel Administration in providing oil, and the activities of the American oil industry.

"Of this fuel, of which the American people supplied four-fifths, Senator Bérenger declared, 'petroleum will have played as great a part in the victory as blood itself, and will have proved the life blood of victory,' and Sir John Cadman, British petroleum executive, used identical words, writing, 'Oil fuel was the life blood of the navy.'

"Appreciations of America's splendid and successful efforts to provide this 'life blood' on land and sea also were received from E. D. Kewan, oil executive of the British Ministry of Shipping; Camille Ceruti of the Italian Military Mission, and other high officials among the Allies.

"The shipment of gasoline and other petroleum products so promptly and in such large quantities was made possible only by the heroic efforts of the petroleum industry working through the national war service in harmonious cooperation with the Fuel Administration."

OPEN VAUDEVILLE INQUIRY.

Pat Casey Says Most Performers Are Only 4 Days Ahead of Sheriff.

The Federal Trade Commission inquiry into the business methods of the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association was resumed yesterday with Pat Casey, its manager, in the witness chair. It is charged that the association is seeking to get all vaudeville talent under its control for the purpose of completing a trust; that it has a blacklist, and that those theatres which refuse to submit to its exactions have great difficulty in presenting attractive bills.

Mr. Casey testified that the association benefited the performers as well as the managers. He said there were 907 vaudeville houses in the United States, and that 48 per cent. of them were members of the association. When all the houses are being operated 8,000 or 9,000 actors are employed in presenting 6,000 acts, he said. Concerning the need of performers for a personal representative, he said that few actors would get up early enough or hustle hard enough to get an engagement for themselves. Most of the booking offices, he testified, are in this city, and that their business is scattered from Maine to California. Casey also said that about 90 per cent. of the vaudeville actors are only about four days ahead of the Sheriff.

In reply to questions asked by John Walsh, chief counsel of the commission, Casey intimated that even such performers as Sarah Bernhardt might find difficulty in getting a contract if the United Booking Offices refused to aid her. The inquiry will be continued.

CAPTAIN NEGLECTS FAMILY.

Army Officer Pleads Guilty to Failing to Support His Children.

Edwin Montgomery, a Captain in the United States Army, stationed at the Hog Island Shipyard, pleaded guilty when taken before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court yesterday to an indictment charging him with failing to support his two children. His wife, Mrs. Mary Montgomery, is now working as a servant. Captain Montgomery was remanded to the Queens County Jail for sentence next week.

Some years ago Captain Montgomery enlisted in the army and was sent to Fort Totten. His promotion was rapid and he was commissioned a Captain. While an enlisted man he was married to his wife, who was a Flushing girl.

Mrs. Montgomery lost trace of her husband, but finally located him at the Hog Island Shipyard. He refused to report to Judge Humphrey on the indictment against him, and it was necessary to have extradition papers drawn in order to bring him into this State. When arraigned several days ago he pleaded not guilty.

Yesterday he appeared before Judge Humphrey and said that he desired to change his plea to guilty, because he believed he was legally guilty but not morally guilty.

Reds to Release Swiss Envoy.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—M. Tchitcherin, Foreign Minister in the Russian Soviet Government, has withdrawn his opposition to the departure from Russia of Eduard Odier, Swiss Minister, and his staff from Russia, according to Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris.

Well fed—yet almost starved

"My little son eats almost as much as a grown man," said a woman to her friend, "but his food doesn't seem to do him any good."

"Do you know what I'd do?" said the other. "I'd put him on Gude's Pepto-Mangan. My boy was puny and weak, and our family physician prescribed Pepto-Mangan. It did him a world of good."

Gude's Pepto-Mangan
"The Red Blood Builder"

In thousands of homes, one or more persons have been helped through some period of feeble health by Pepto-Mangan. Used and prescribed by the medical profession for over 28 years, because it is absolutely safe and beneficial for invalids, convalescents and run-down people of all ages and conditions. Easy to digest, exceedingly pleasant to taste.

Now for a Permanent Position—Telephone Operating

An opportunity for the young woman who threw the weight of her hand and mind into the winning of the war and who is now looking for permanent employment.

WHILE you have been engaged in turning out the things that made fighting possible—while you have been serving in any one of the thousands of capacities in which women contributed so largely to the winning of the war—thousands of telephone operators, "Soldiers of The Switchboard" they have been called, have likewise been engaged in tasks that helped to bring about the Great Result.

But while your work is finished, the real work of the telephone operator continues. Her position is as vitally important today as it was during the active days of warfare, and she will need help in carrying on her important duties during the coming period of reconstruction.

So to you bright, healthy, ambitious young women between 16 and 25, who appreciate the importance of serving the public in a big way, we offer employment as telephone operators with good pay while you learn, increased pay at frequent intervals after you learn, and a good desirable position always.

Telephone operating is an occupation in which the workers are promoted to executive positions and your advancement to one of these positions therefore, is only dependent upon your willingness and ability.

We are interested in all young women who possess the necessary qualifications and we would be pleased to have them call at any Application Office for particulars.

All Smoking Tobaccos are Flavored

"Your Nose Knows"

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco, ". . . on the Continent and in America certain 'sauces' are employed . . . the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves." Your smoke-enjoyment depends as much upon the Quality and kind of flavoring used as upon the Quality and aging of the tobacco. Tuxedo tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate! That flavoring, added to the finest of carefully aged and blended burley tobacco, produces Tuxedo—the perfect tobacco—"Your Nose Knows."

Try This Test: Rub a little Tuxedo briskly in the palm of your hand to bring out its full aroma. Then smell it deep—its delicious, pure fragrance will convince you. Try this test with any other tobacco and we will let Tuxedo stand or fall on your judgment—"Your Nose Knows."

TRAINOR ENTERS DENIAL.

Says He Refused to Help Sell Hines Hospital to Government.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — Milton J. Trainor of the War Department Real Estate Division denied before the Senate Buildings Committee today that he had sought a commission of $100,000 in connection with a contract for the Chicago Speedway Hospital. The charge was made before the committee last week by W. S. Bennet, former member of Congress and counsel for Edward Hines, a Chicago lumber dealer, who made large donations for the proposed hospital.

Mr. Trainor told the committee that men supposed to represent Hines had approached him with a proposal to assist in selling the Speedway Hospital property to the Government for hospital purposes, but that he had declined it.

FATE OF COSTIGAN SHOCKS THE POLICE

ENRIGHT REMAINS MUTE

Commissioner Paid a Hurried Visit to City Hall Before He Announced His Action.

The news of the demotion of Police Inspector Daniel E. Costigan, the foe of vice, to the rank of Captain was received with consternation yesterday by the rank and file of the members of the department. Patrolmen asserted that the act of Police Commissioner Enright practically served notice on them that hereafter no premium would be placed on the fearless fulfillment of their duty.

A former high official of the department who is thoroughly versed in the inside politics of the police situation said last night: "A man who is a friend of former Police Commissioner Woods is not considered much by this administration. Costigan was known to have been a friend of Woods."

Commissioner Enright refused to give any detailed reasons as to his action. When told that, according to report, certain elements in this city had inferred from his action that it would be safe for them to resume business, the Commissioner said he was the best judge of conditions. Costigan, at his new post in the Beach Street Station, accepted his demotion philosophically yesterday and declined to talk of it.

Hylan First Consulted.

Before Police Commissioner Enright announced Costigan's demotion, it was learned yesterday he paid a hurried visit to the City Hall and saw Mayor Hylan. It is understood that Mayor Hylan is familiar with all of the important moves in the department.

It was pointed out by those familiar with conditions in the police department that the downfall of Costigan was concurrent with the rise of Dominick Henry, over whose head Costigan went on making raids on gambling houses on several occasions.

It was further pointed out that simultaneously with the promotion by Commissioner Enright to posts of power in the department of men who were reduced or dismissed by Commissioner Woods, there also went on the demotion and humiliation of men whom Mr. Woods trusted and found honest and incorruptible. Some men dismissed by Commissioner Woods who had recourse to the courts did not avail themselves of this opportunity to fight their cases, the reason being given that they knew they had no chance in court. However, a number of these men have been reinstated by Commissioner Enright, it was said yesterday, while one or two were retired on pensions shortly after their reinstatement.

A report circulated at Police Headquarters yesterday that the contributing cause of Costigan's downfall was his refusal to sanction the opening of gambling houses on the east side at the request of two Tammany district leaders, who complained that gambling houses were open in other parts of the town and they saw no reason why they should be discriminated against. It is understood that Costigan told the leaders that as far as he was concerned he would have no hesitation in closing any gambling houses wherever found.

It was learned that one of Costigan's most successful raids was on the expensively furnished gambling house on West Sixty-eighth Street run by Thomas L. Reynolds. Reynolds, it was learned, was at one time a prominent Tammany politician and a member of the Long Acre Club, which in 1905 nominated him for leader in the Twenty-seventh Assembly District against Thomas F. McAvoy. The latter won. At the time of the raid on Reynolds's place last year Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith asserted that the place had been running for three years, and that Reynolds had made about a million dollars there. Reynolds was convicted as a common gambler and sentenced to ninety days in prison.

Another raid made by Inspector Costigan in the district of Inspector Dominick Henry, who is in high favor with Commissioner Enright, was on the rooms of the Merchants' Club, in East Seventeenth Street, when two men were arrested.

Won't Discuss Costigan's Record.

Commissioner Enright was asked yesterday what specific reasons he had for reducing Costigan, but he refused to make them known.

"The reasons I have are ample and sufficient for me," he said.

Asked if Costigan's removal after his well-known record in the suppression of vice did not require a public statement, Commissioner Enright countered by asking the inquirer if he knew what that record was. On being asked whether that meant any reflection on Costigan, Commissioner Enright said he did not care to discuss that matter. Pressed to explain whether Costigan had failed to make good under his administration, the Commissioner said he could not answer that question.

Mr. Enright also refused to answer questions concerning the break-up of the vice squad and the transfer of its detectives to the suburbs.

Speaking of the holdup of the trolley cars in Queens and the robbery of two saloons and a cobbler's shop in the Bronx Tuesday, Mr. Enright said it was hard to guard the outlying districts, and for this reason the holdup men had been able to "get away with it."

WANT BURLESON OUSTED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A letter written by Basil M. Manley, joint Chairman of the National War Labor Board, to Milton T. Eglin of the local organization of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, made public tonight, states that Postmaster General Burleson has so far paid no attention to protests on the subject of the wage award to telegraphers recently made by that official.

At the same time the Commercial Telegraphers' Union announced that it would hold a meeting Sunday to consider resolutions to be sent to President Wilson demanding the Postmaster General's removal from office. The announcement said that attention would be called to the "mismanagement of the wires under Burleson, Koone, Carlton, and Vail," and that Mr. Burleson has contributed more to make Government ownership "ridiculous" and "a signal failure" than "any other agency in the United States."

It was added that Mr. Burleson "has made the defeat of the Democratic Party in 1920 an assured fact."

'JUST AROUND THE CORNER.'

JUST AROUND THE CORNER, a comedy with songs in a prologue and three acts, by George V. Hobart and Herbert Hall Winslow. At the Longacre.

A City Marshal	Percy Pembroke
Phoebe Larrimore	Marie Cahill
Deputy Joe	Wallace Owen
Henry Pickens	Roy Briant
Sally Ferguson	Clara Mackin
Harvey Wattles, Jr.	Glen Anders
Harvey Wattles, Sr.	Wilson Reynolds
Buddy Hicks	Lorin Raker
Billie Martin	Marie Bryar
William Ward Wilder	George MacQuarrie
Vere Jocelyn	Lulu McGuire
Mrs. Harvey Wattles	Eugenie Blair
Amos Peel	Charles Morrison
Mrs. Wiggins	Margaret Hoffman
The Ellenville Piano Player	Carl Gray

Although it adheres rather doggedly to one of the most popular of the established formulae for dramatic entertainment, "Just Around the Corner," played here for the first time last night at the Longacre, is considerably more amusing than a cold consideration of its ingredients would seem to indicate. The righteous soul from the city—be he man or woman—who invades a rural community and there attempts to make over a ramshackle store into a profitable enterprise, despite the opposition of most of the narrow-minded townfolk, is far from a new figure in the theatre.

The design for plays of the sort is unvarying, but the new play at the Longacre, for all its faithfulness to tradition, is not without its freshness for all that. This latter quality it probably owes in greatest measure to Marie Cahill, who returned to New York after a considerable absence to remind her following that she is still capable of delivering a comedy line with telling, and yet not obvious, effect. It is largely Miss Cahill who sets the play a bit apart from its fellows.

It is, of course, the necessity of reseeking her fortune which drives the heroine, after an explanatory prologue over the telephone, to the town of Wattlesburg. There she picks up a youth who had "gone wrong," a stranded show girl, and a chance passer-through, and with these as her aids she fights the all-powerful Wattles and triumphs after many vicissitudes. The play is peopled with the customary lay figures of the rural comedy—the country editor, the rich man's son, the city-struck girl and the others—but it is workmanlike, contains a liberal sprinkling of good lines, and is for the most part amusing.

The sophisticated playgoer is likely to derive his greatest enjoyment from the performance of Miss Cahill. She is an adept at the art of the seeming impromptu—so much so that she appeared now and then to be overdoing it. It is a style of playing which calls for the same sort of work on the part of her foils, and there were moments last night when she all but disconcerted several of the members of her company. She was enthusiastically, and deservedly, applauded for her singing of two or three songs in the second act. She did so well with them, in fact, that even the baldness of their introduction could be overlooked.

PLAY ANCIENT INSTRUMENTS

Society Gives Enjoyment in Works of Old Composers.

The Society of Ancient Instruments, which speaks in terms of centuries where America would think of years, is already in its third season in New York, and, coming here among the first in wartime, has found a public which was hardly represented last evening in Carnegie Hall. Louis Hasselmans, who last year succeeded Eugene Dubruille at viole de gamba, is now conductor with the Chicago Opera, and has yielded his place in the ensemble to Jean Charron. There reappeared Maurice Hewitt, quinton, and Henri Casadesus, viole d'amour, founder of the society, as well as Maurice Devilliers, bass viol, and Mme. Casadesus, harp-lute.

All five players were heard in "Le Pays du Tendre," by Destouches, and a "Concerto Champetre," by Mondonville, the quaint strings also in a concerto by Philip Emanuel Bach, Mr. Hewitt and Mme. Casadesus in a "Sonatine" by Francoeur, and Mr. Casadesus in a "Divertissement" by Borghi, all seventeenth or eighteenth century composers. Carnegie Hall is a place for orchestra rather than chamber music, but the pure tone of the old instruments carried remarkably, and the cheerfulness of the old composers was enjoyed.

SUES FROHMAN FOR $10,000.

Norman Forbes-Robertson Says He Was Engaged for "Dear Brutus."

Norman Forbes-Robertson, brother of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, filed suit yesterday in the Supreme Court against Charles Frohman, Inc., for $10,000 damages for breach of an alleged contract by which the plaintiff came here from England to play in "Dear Brutus" and was not permitted to fulfill his contract.

Alf. Hayman, general manager of Charles Frohman, Inc., when told of the suit last night, said that Norman was cabled not to come to New York, but came anyway, claiming that he had not received the cablegram, and returned on the next steamer, four weeks before the play was produced here. Mr. Hayman remarked that Mr. Forbes-Robertson must have placed his salary mighty high, as the play had not been running ten weeks yet.

Roosevelt Memorial Services.

Memorial services in honor of Theodore Roosevelt will be held in all the Keith vaudeville houses in New York and Brooklyn at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. There will be addresses, choral singing and motion pictures of scenes from the life of Colonel Roosevelt. The general public is invited.

Bertha Kalich Too Ill to Play.

The illness of Bertha Kalich, who is confined to her home with a severe cold, has compelled a temporary suspension of the run of "The Riddle: Woman," at the Fulton Theatre. No performances were given Tuesday night or yesterday, but it was said that Mme. Kalich will be able to resume her rôle tomorrow night.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Betrothal," recently seen at the Shubert Theatre, was played for the first time on the stage of the Century Theatre yesterday afternoon. It will be continued there indefinitely.

The Shakespeare Playhouse will give a matinee of "Hamlet" at the Plymouth Theatre this afternoon instead of tomorrow, as originally planned.

"The Net," by Maravene Thompson, will be produced at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre next Monday night by Lee Kugel.

Emilie Lea, the dancer, is a recent addition to the cast of "Good Morning, Judge," which will open at the Shubert Theatre tonight.

"The Dancer," by Edward Locke, will be played for the first time in Wilkes-Barre on Thursday of next week.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Society of American Singers will give a special holiday matinee of "Robin Hood" next Wednesday, Lincoln's Birthday, at the Park Theatre, where this old favorite is drawing crowded houses.

Rachmaninoff, who played on tour with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this week in Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia, will be heard with Mr. Rabaud's men tomorrow in Brooklyn.

Arthur Rubinstein, a Polish pianist of great reputation, who arrived too late for the Boston tour, has now reached New York, and will make his local debut in a recital Feb. 20 in Carnegie Hall.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

"Pelleas and Melisande."

"Pelleas and Melisande," music by Claude Debussy, poem by Maurice Maeterlinck, was sung in French for the first time this season by the Chicago Opera Association—and Mary Garden—last night at the Lexington Theatre with this cast:

Melisande	Mary Garden
Genevieve	Louise Berat
Little Yniold	Marguerite La Mare
Pelleas	Alfred Maguenat
Golaud	Auguste Bouillier
Arkel	Gustave Huberdeau
The Doctor	Constantin Nicolay

Conductor, Marcel Charlier.

Once upon a time we called this "precious" lyric work "Wagner and Absinthe," for there are many rumors of "Tristan and Isolde" in it, and the opalescent music, drugged with dreams, has the numbing effect of that "green fairy" no longer permitted in la belle France. Like all epigrams, this is only a half-truth. In the Belgian poet's "The Death of Tintagiles"—so wonderfully interpreted in tone by Charles Martin Loeffler—his marionettes are beginning to modulate into flesh and blood, and, like the mermaid of the fairy story, the transformation is a painful one. We note the achievement of a new manner in "Pelleas and Melisande." Played in English first by Forbes-Robertson and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the piece created a mixed impression in London, though it may be confessed that, despite the scenic splendor, the acting transposed to a lower realistic key this lovely drama of souls. No play of Maeterlinck's is saturated with poesy, replete with romance. There are episodes nearly as intense as the second act of "Tristan." We listen for King Mark's distant, tremulous hunting horns in the forest scene when Pelleas and Melisande uncover their hearts.

The second act begins at an immemorial fountain in the royal park. Here the young Prince sits with the wife of his brother. Melisande is the most convincing full-length portrait of the poet. Exquisitely girlish, she charms with her strange Undine airs. Melisande is enveloped in the haze of the romantically remote. At times she seems to melt into the green tapestry of the forest. She is a woodland creature. More melancholy than Miranda, she is not without traces of her high-bred temperament; less real than Juliet, she is also passion-smitten. You recall Melusina and Rautendelein. Not altogether comprehensible, Melisande piques us with her waywardness, her fascinating if infantile change of moods. At the spring the two converse of the water and its healing powers. "You would say that my hands were sick today," she murmurs as she dips her fingers into the pool. The dialogue is as elliptical as if written by Browning or Henry James. But the symbol floats like a flag.

The mad apostrophe to the hair of Melisande is in key with this moving tableau. Perhaps Maeterlinck took a hint from the mournful tale of his friend, the Belgian poet Georges Rodenbach, ("Bruges-la-Morte") with its reincarnation of a dead woman in the form and features of "a live one." The beautiful hair of the new love serves but to strangle her. Pelleas is more tender.

"I have never, never seen such hair as thine, Melisande. I see the sky no longer through thy locks. * * * They are alive like birds in my hands." The last scene, when Melisande dies of a broken heart, even when read on the printed page is pity-breeding. It is the tragedy of souls distraught. "She must not be disturbed," urges the venerable Arkel. "The human soul is very silent. * * * The human soul likes to depart alone. * * * It suffers so timorously. * * * But the sadness, Golaud, the sadness of all we see. * * * 'Twas a little being so quiet, so fearful, and so silent. 'Twas a poor little mysterious being like everybody." Pascal comes to the mind here. No matter the splendor of human lives, we must each one die alone.

The speech of the poet in its rhapsodic rush merges into Debussy's music. That we shall ever see another such ensemble as at the Manhattan Opera House years ago is doubtful. Last night the performance, under the sympathetic baton of Charlier, was harmonious, the cast adequate. Mary Garden was Melisande. No further praise is needful. All her trumpery rôles, Thaïs, Gismonda, Chrysis, Cleopatra, with their insincere music and pasteboard pathos, are quickly forgotten. But her Melisande is unforgettable.

"Forza del Destino" Repeated.

Verdi's "Forza del Destino" was sung for the sixth time at the Metropolitan last evening, the first of the season's thirty operas thus far to complete the round of all subscription nights. In this melodious old tragedy Caruso and De Luca have renewed a success of their youthful days in Italy, while a young Italian-American girl, Rose Ponselle, has found herself hailed as a star. Caruso and Ponselle reappeared last night, de Luca gave place to Montesanto, while Sophie Braslau sang a second time as the gypsy, with Chalmers and Mardones, and Papi conducted. The audience again was a large one.

The dreadful menace of the cuspidor

From it are distributed the seeds of tuberculosis, pneumonia, grippe and all other diseases of the nose, throat and lungs.

Don't depend upon soap and water to kill germs. Keep some Lysol solution in the cuspidor always.

annihilates all germ life instantly. Its regular use in all the germ-breeding places in the home—cuspidor, garbage can, toilet, sinks and drains—will enable you to make a better fight against disease than disease can make against you.

A 50c bottle makes 5 gallons of powerful disinfectant—enough to last for months. A 25c bottle makes 2 gallons.

Lysol is also invaluable for Personal Hygiene.

Lysol Toilet Soap
Contains Lysol, and therefore protects the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream
Contains Lysol, and kills germs on razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound), guards the tiny cuts from infection, and gives the antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

THE SECURITY OF FRANCE.

"The pressing anxiety of France," says Major Gen. Sir FREDERICK MAURICE, "is to be safe in the future"—to be secure from invasion by German armies. England's safety has been assured by the elimination of the German fleet. England will be less disposed than ever to maintain a large army, but as Germany may plan a war of revenge France cannot afford to abandon conscription. At least, that is the French view at the present time. How shall France be protected from aggression by a League of Nations of which she is a member? General MAURICE answers that she could be protected by sea power. He says:

> It is easy to foresee many cases which might call for armed intervention in the Continent of Europe, in which both we [the British] and America would be unwilling, or even unable, to send our soldiers to fight. The solution seems to me to be that we and America should guarantee to the League the naval power necessary to enforce a stringent economic blockade of any Power which threatened to disturb the peace of the world.

In short, save "the frontier of freedom," as Mr. WILSON has called France, by blockading the German ports in the Baltic and the North Sea. That is exactly what the British, with French assistance, tried to do in the first three years of the great war, failing of complete success because the enemy's submarines had to be reckoned with, not to speak of legitimate objection of the United States to certain blockade methods infringing its sea rights. After America's entrance into the war the blockade was made closer; nevertheless, the German armies almost reached the Channel ports and Paris in the Spring of 1918, and would have done so but for the skillful use of American reinforcements by Marshal FOCH in CLEMENCEAU's figurative "last quarter of an hour." Therefore, it may well be asked, would sea power save France another time—it might be a generation hence, or fifty years—if Germany, better equipped than ever, and depending upon a vast surplus of food, threw down the gauntlet to the League, whether she was a member of it or not, and attacked France? Would France not prefer frontier safeguards? She has intimated as much. In The North American Review for February Lieut. Col. H. H. SARGENT, U. S. A., contends that Belfort saved France from utter defeat in the early days of the great war:

> The German plan was to envelop both flanks of the French army, and it failed because of the "fortifications of the French eastern frontier." That is to say, it failed because of the natural fortification of the Vosges Mountains and the fortresses of Verdun, Toul, and Belfort. But particularly because of Belfort, which commands the narrow pass into France between the Vosges and Jura range of mountains. Had the Germans been able to capture this fortress, the way would have been opened for turning the Vosges Mountains and the fortresses of Toul and Verdun, and the envelopment of the French right wing which, with the left wing and the little British and Belgian armies already enveloped, would no doubt have resulted in the final surrender of the French army and the capture of Paris.

It was the eloquent insistence of THIERS in his negotiations with BISMARCK after the French were beaten to their knees in 1870 that preserved unconquered Belfort to France. The Chancellor's consent was, as the event proved, a strategic mistake of the first magnitude. Great as the debt of France was to British sea power in the recent war, her faith in it is qualified by the belief, grounded in grim experience, that the adjustment of her frontier to provide her with equivalents of Belfort would be the surest guarantee against triumphant aggression by a reconstructed and more powerful Germany. It is idle to endeavor to convince the French that Germany will never wage a war of revenge, that the adventure will not be possible in the future. France has suffered too much in the wasting of her resources in men and treasure to have absolute faith in sea power as a preventive of the making of war upon her by Germany. It is evident that the Peace Conference will have to give weighty consideration to the strengthening of the land defenses of France to assure her equal security with her ally England against invasion. It is because of doubt whether the guarantee will be given her that France shows a certain coolness toward the ideal of a League of Nations.

WELFARE AND REACTION.

The bone-dry bill introduced at Albany to do the bridge-and-crown work for prohibition in this State digresses for a moment from the domain of morals to that of belles-lettres in specifying that the name of the Excise Department shall hereafter be the "Department of General Welfare." That specific welfare is not to be neglected is indicated by the announcement that the patronage of the department will remain intact.

While New York State is thus confessing her eleventh-hour conversion to the blessings of general welfare imposed by the moral guardians of the community, Connecticut hastens to proclaim herself drink's last citadel. Forty-four States have ratified the prohibition amendment; two more are frantically clutching at the tailboard of the band wagon; New Jersey procrastinates; but Connecticut refuses to ratify. For this deliberate turning aside from the moral pathway, this sin against light, there is only one penalty severe enough. Let Connecticut be solemnly proclaimed outcast by the comity of dry-cleaned Commonwealths; let her be formally and specifically exempted from the operation of the prohibition amendment. Nay, more; make her a Devil's Island for the unregenerate of the rest of the country; if any man kick against the pricks, rebel against the enforcement of morality, let him be shipped to Connecticut, there to end his abandoned days in the company of his own kind.

BREAD AND MEAT.

Congressmen who are discussing the price of wheat in connection with the Government's billion-dollar operation will be glad to have it called to the attention of the country that they show indifference to what is said or done "in another place," to use the parliamentary phrase. The market knew on Tuesday, although the Government price fixers did not, that Argentina, England, Italy, and France had signed the cereal convention between them, and that Argentina had decreed an export price equivalent to about $1.53 per bushel for wheat, .745 cents for corn, and oats .456. That represents an advance over last week of about 22 cents on wheat, 20 cents on corn, and 9 cents for this month's delivery. As Argentina is lending the money to buy some $200,000,000 of produce there is a nice little Government profit in stopping the bear operation which has frightened Washington more than Buenos Aires, because Washington knew so little about what was passing in the southern half of the continent.

That the War Trade Board is more market wise than Congress would seem to be shown by the removal of the embargo on our exports of several food grains, including corn but not wheat, in time to anticipate deliveries from Argentina and Australia. Eighty-seven cargoes of these and other goods will be taken to Europe on an equal number of Dutch vessels simultaneously released from Government requisition. The markets reflected these facts, if the debates did not, even though the release of the ships and the goods cannot have the same effect as under normal conditions. Owing to difficulties of exchange, foreign purchases need Government assistance, and our sales are through Government agencies. The market price is not free, but the control is benevolent and intelligent.

Accordingly, it is possible to discuss the Government's billion-dollar operation in a lower key than before this week. We feel free to remark, as we did when the Government made its engagement, that it was not well arranged. The Government bound itself to buy, but did not bind the farmers to sell. They were free to avail themselves of any price above the Government's, but the Government could not call for deliveries at a price which might have made good its risk and loss if the market movement favored it. In effect Government sold a "put," but did not hedge in any degree with a "call." Now the price fixers are floundering about and depreciating both the counsel of Mr. HOOVER, who says that all the wheat will be needed to feed the starving, and of Mr. BARNES, President of the Federal Grain Corporation, who thinks that the last crop was handled well enough to justify like control through the next harvest. The talk at Washington is all about the division of assumed losses between producers and consumers. To put it another way, Congress is debating whether to cheapen bread by paying farmers' profits out of tax money, thus assuming a deficit.

It is announced that the loss on the Australian Government's wheat price guarantee was $68,000,000, larger in proportion than ours. England estimated its loss on the bread subsidy at $200,000,000, has realized a loss of $300,000,000, and faces one of a round half-billion, perhaps. Foreign buyers of our foodstuffs think they have a grievance against what Broomhall calls a guarantee of a fancy price for wheat. That is not fair. Foreign buyers would have suffered more if our market had not been depressed when the price was soaring, with the result of producing the comparative abundance which now threatens a loss that there is reluctance in taking responsibility for. The loss is not likely to be excessive, and the blame is not a fair reproach. Perhaps Australia, Argentina, Canada, and India may undersell our guaranteed price next harvest. Nobody knows. There is a large present and prospective supply, but there is no such presentation of the demand. How many bushels will be taken at what price depends to a large extent upon finance as well as upon supply and demand. The price of breadstuffs will depend upon our generosity with our credits as well as upon what the starving would rather promise to pay than to starve. There is more in the price of bread than dollars and cents, but the gentlemen at Washington who are most eloquent say less about humanity than about profit and loss, and show as much political as economic sense. There is a demand that the hog price fixers shall be prosecuted, and the cattlemen demand that Government shall pay them a better price than the meat trust, even though meat eaters would pay more if the trust were driven from the field. The price of cotton has not been regulated, and yet there is as much trouble about that as about meat and bread.

AMERICAN REDS.

By unanimous vote the Senate has instructed the subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee "to inquire concerning any efforts being made to "propagate in this country the principles of any party exercising or "claiming to exercise any authority "in Russia, whether such efforts "originate in this country or are "framed from abroad, and further to "inquire into any effort to incite the "overthrow of the Government of this "country or all government by force, "or by the destruction of life or property or the general cessation of industry." A comprehensive inquiry that needed to be made.

It is impossible to understand why any sane American, not hired to encourage the Bolshevist work for the destruction of industry, communication, knowledge, civilization, should want to turn his prentice hand to general ruin. Generations of ignorance and tyranny have bred in Russia disciples dense and obfuscated enough to follow fanatically the subtle architects of Russian misery and oppression. In the United States exists every right of freedom and every opportunity for the redress of grievances. It is a prosperous, an enlightened, a just, an ever-bettering frame of society and government that our domestic incendiaries seek to destroy. They must import their principles of subversion. The pretended causes of complaint, the dreadful remedies, if destruction and cruelty are remedies, they must import. It is a foreign pest that these dabblers in fatal state medicines seek to acclimate here.

It will be interesting to know why they do it, who of them are paid and who work for love of general confusion; who are the amateurs of the drawing-room, toying with dynamite; who the reckless, sinister plotters for their own hand in hoped-for loot or power; respective parts of bigotry, weakheadedness, foreign sympathies, deluded ignorance, megalomania in this movement to set up anarchy in the United States. The proposed inquiry is to be searching. If there are genuine brothers and sisters of Bolshevism here, the unfolding of their plans and purposes and methods will be instructive.

Senator WEEKS is confident that "Bolshevism will have no force in this "country once the evil is understood "by the rank and file of Americans." They do understand it. They see its workings demonstrated in Russia. They have seen the Spartacan faction trying bloodily to force it upon Germany. The American people understand Bolshevism. They don't understand, how can anybody understand, who its American abettors are, how they hope to transfer it to this alien soil. The I. W. W. have imitated or anticipated Bolshevism feebly, but to the extent of their imagination and capability. Doubtless such I. W. W.'s as are now out of jail make good, active Bolshevists. The Judiciary Subcommittee will turn inside out the cerebral convolutions of the missionaries of eternal smash. Stranger skulls the world has never seen.

SLAVES AND SUPERMEN.

The noble soul of GERHART HAUPTMANN is affronted by the suspicion that 800,000 Germans are to be held as "slaves" in France to repair the wanton devastation of German armies. "For a realization of this idea," he says, "there is not the slightest moral "or reasonable possibility, but it may "be that morals and reason will be "thrown overboard. Think of it—"Germans, Christians, republicans, "Europeans, to be the slaves of "France." Against this infamy he invokes the memory of LAFAYETTE, the progress in the moral feeling of mankind which abolished slavery—until 1914.

Of course, for hundreds of thousands of allied prisoners of war to be slaves in Germany, forced by blows and starvation to work for their enemies, was a different sort of slavery. For hundreds of thousands of Belgian workingmen to be carried off from their homes and worked to death in German mines and factories was a different sort of slavery. For thousands of French and Belgian women to be forced to submit to the brutalities of the German troops was a different sort of slavery. These were "Christians, republicans, Europeans," but they were not Germans.

HAUPTMANN never protested against slavery when the masters were German and the slaves French. When ROMAIN ROLLAND, early in the war, called on him and the other "intellectual" leaders of Germany to express their opinion not of the attack on France, not of the invasion of Belgium, not even of the slaughter of noncombatants, but of the destruction of treasured monuments of the past, of "warfare against the human spirit," HAUPTMANN answered. And his answer was summed up in one of its contemptuous phrases—"War is war." We Germans are going to battle with HOMER, NIETZSCHE, SCHOPENHAUER, or the Bible in every soldier's knapsack; our victory means the independence of Europe, and the end justifies the means.

At that time we could suppose that HAUPTMANN, like the ninety-three professors, might have been terrorized by the military power, that he dared not speak his own mind. Nothing prevents him today from saying what he thinks, and it appears that he thinks that it is an excellent thing to force innocent French and Belgians to be slaves in Germany, but an outrage to compel German soldiers to repair the damage that they have done. His views might be studied with profit by those among us who have lately begun to praise the Germans and condemn the French.

THE DEMOTED INSPECTOR.

What were the real unavowed controlling reasons for relieving Police Inspector "Honest DAN" COSTIGAN from his post as chief of the First Inspection District, reducing his rank to that of Captain and putting him in command of the Beach Street Station with mightily inferior duties and opportunities for diminishing important vice and crime, work that he has performed with striking fearlessness, integrity, and success in one way and another for nearly a generation? Commissioner ENRIGHT says orphically or triflingly that there was one more Inspector than the budget allowed, "and that is one of the reasons why I have reduced COSTIGAN."

Mr. COSTIGAN is noted for his independence. The work of his Vice Squad in repressing gambling, bookmaking, and various other thriving illegal and demoralizing trades was excellent and memorable—and the squad was scattered. He has had a prominent part in bringing to justice some great criminals. He has made enemies whose hatred is an honor. What powerful enemies in the municipal administration or elsewhere have succeeded in humiliating him and lessening public confidence in the integrity and effectiveness of the police force at a time when slackened discipline, the reaction against authority, the contagion of disorder left by the war, the sudden throwing out of employment of restless spirits used to high wages, make the protection of property and life more difficult than ever in New York?

Commissioner ENRIGHT has shown a vigor and efficiency that were hardly expected of him, not from personal reasons, but because the mysterious intrigues and political influences that had so frequent an ill effect upon police management in the past were sure to reappear. It cannot be pleasant for him to know that the gamblers and bookmakers are chuckling over the demotion of Inspector COSTIGAN. People cannot help asking themselves why a police officer believed to be specially competent and honest reaps punishment, not reward, from the masters of the Police Department.

For his own sake, for the reputation of the department, to prevent the growth in it of the feeling that promotions and demotions are made for other causes than good or ill performance of police duties, Commissioner ENRIGHT should explain thoroughly the causes of Inspector COSTIGAN's reduction. If it was justified, let the fact be known. If it was not justified, the responsibility should be fixed. The air of unreality in the Commissioner's unexplaining explanation is irritating, and, unless replaced by one that really explains, must lead the public to the most unhappy theories.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Inquiries Left Unanswered. Complaints in great numbers are reaching this office, and other newspaper offices, presumably, from near relatives by blood or marriage of American soldiers abroad, and the burden of these complaints is not only that nothing has been heard from these men for weeks, and sometimes for several months, but that repeated applications for information addressed to the War Department bring no replies of any kind.

These cases probably are not very numerous as compared with the whole number of men who have been, or even with that of those who still are, in the American armies. They form, however, a considerable group, and each of the people in it has sympathetic friends to whom what constitutes a real and legitimate grievance against the Government has been rehearsed. The result is a widespread feeling that the officials in Washington either are incompetent to perform what the relatives and their friends rightly think is an important duty, or else that those officials are indifferent to the perpetuation of cruel anxieties which they could calm if they chose to take the trouble to do it.

Something of incompetence there doubtless is, and something of indifference as well, but it would be only fair for those who feel sure that much of both exists to remember the difficulties created by the movements of millions of men in a foreign land, 3,000 miles away, and that the War Department has had on its hands many other tasks besides the one of supplying civilians with information about individual soldiers, and that not a few of those other tasks ranked in importance above that one.

A Special Bureau Is Needed. Even after all due allowance has been made for both the difficulties and the impossibilities that work against keeping the friends of soldiers constantly or promptly informed as to where the soldiers are, and in what state of health, there remains adequate basis for complaint and resentment in the fact that the War Department so often refuses, or at any rate fails, to give any indication of even trying to get the desired information. That letters remain unanswered is not proof, of course, that no action has been taken on them, but when the action, if taken, does not produce results within a week or two, it would be only common kindness for the department to notify the anxious wife or parent of what had been done, with an assurance, as confident as the circumstances warranted, that the desired news would soon be obtained.

This would involve the writing of a good many letters, but the cost would be small, as costs go these days, and if a special bureau were created to attend to this matter and nothing else the ill feeling now in existence could soon be removed or reduced to a minimum. The bureau should have a simple name that all could understand, and, with the advertising the newspapers would gladly give such an agency, the public would soon know exactly where to apply for the information it wants and ought to have.

That the War Department already has and uses facilities for doing work of this sort is true, but obviously it is not sufficiently energetic and systematic in the performance of the task, and—it lets too many letters and telegrams go too long without replies.

Highway Robbery Reviving. It is not to be supposed that our Police Commissioner and his subordinates of various ranks have failed to notice the astonishing activities of the over-enterprising persons who suddenly have gained fame as "the bandits in the green car." But such efforts as are making for the apprehension of these thoroughly modernized Turpins have had no results at the moment of present writing, and recent events in this vicinity inspire less of belief than of hope that the capture of the robbers is any nearer at hand than is that of the perpetrators of several most abominable murders recently committed in the metropolitan district.

So conspicuous is the vehicle used by these bandits, and so hard is it to hide for long any automobile in constant use, that the catching of them would be easy—in a book—for a Sherlock Holmes, and ought not to be impossible for detectives with something less than his genius for deduction. The details of these robberies point toward amateur criminals rather than at professionals, and their success seems to be due rather to audacity than to skill—the audacity being a good deal helped, to be sure, by their luck, as yet, in not encountering anybody made of heroic stuff and willing to take a chance rather than submit to wrong.

The docility shown by all the selected victims has had its reward—they are all alive, and that is certainly something, especially from their own point of view. But their meekness is likely to encourage other amateurs to take up an industry seemingly safe as well as profitable, and combining with those attractive qualities an element of the romantic as romance used to be presented in dime novels and now is offered by the movies to delighted multitudes who learn their manners and morals from the illuminated screen.

Quarreling Over a Trifle. There seems to be some misunderstanding as to what it is in the way of hours, and especially of time for luncheon, that the British strikers are demanding. None of the employers is insisting that the men shall work for eight hours continuously, and there is no objection to the taking of a half hour, or even of a whole one, for rest and food. What is demanded by the men is that the luncheon recess shall be taken out of the eight hours, at the cost of the employing corporation—to get eight-hour pay, that is, for a day of seven or seven and a half hours, with an incidental chance to make a little overtime if eight hours of work be completed.

The wish to do this is comprehensible enough, but from a distance it does not seem quite reasonable. Still less does it seem sufficiently important to justify, or even to explain, strikes that disorganize the whole industry of a country.

GALLANT LITTLE WALES.

When foe of England haughtily
  Her liberty assails,
Throughout her realm on land and sea
  One single will prevails:
To rally to the Mother's side,
To fight her fight with love and pride;
And none obeys with swifter stride
  Than loyal little Wales.

From Snowden's towering crags they come,
  From fair Llangollen's vales,
From Pembroke's busy whir and hum,
  That mock Caermarthen's gales.
Where shrieking shrapnel cleaves the sky,
And where the bullets thickest fly,
'Tis there you'll hear the battle-cry
  And battle songs of Wales.

When night unrolls her sable screen,
  The dead men tell no tales,
And ghostly silence stalks 'til e'en,
  The stoutest spirit quails.
Ah! then from out the gloom there floats
A harmony of silver notes
Upsoaring from a hundred throats—
  The melodies of Wales!

The singers sleep where lilies bloom,
  Far off from Cambria's dales;
But o'er each well-beloved tomb
  There blow the scented gales
That waft from Cambria's heathered hills,
Her wooded glens, her rocks and rills,
All fragrant with the daffodils
  Of gallant little Wales.

VILDA SAUVAGE OWENS.

DRY MEN DRAFTING A BILL FOR ALBANY

DRUGGISTS FACE PROBLEM

Restrictions on Use of Alcohol, They Say, May Cause Increase in Prices to Consumers.

William H. Anderson, New York State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said yesterday that the bill which the league would support to carry out in this State the Federal prohibition amendment would be introduced in the Legislature at Albany on Monday night. The work of drafting the bill, Mr. Anderson said, was in the hands of a committee of lawyers and men of affairs, and the final draft would be completed on Friday or Saturday.

Mr. Anderson denied the report from Albany that the league favored an enforcement law which would declare that any liquid containing more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol was an intoxicating liquor.

"What Mr. Beattie said in Albany," Mr. Anderson continued, "was that the United States Government collected internal revenue on all liquids containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol. I don't want to say at this time what percentage of alcohol the league believes should be held to be intoxicating."

If the law passed by the Legislature for the enforcement of the Federal amendment specifies that any liquid containing a very low percentage of alcohol is an intoxicating liquor, manufacturing chemists, druggists, and manufacturers of perfumes and patent and proprietary medicines will be affected. Nearly every proprietary and patent medicine, it was said yesterday, contained anywhere from 8 to 38 per cent. of alcohol and many perfumes contained as high as 93 per cent. of alcohol. Moreover, there were few drugs, it was said, that did not require a considerable percentage of alcohol to dispense and preserve them.

"If," said one druggist, "we are compelled by a law passed at Albany for the enforcement of the Federal Prohibition amendment to reduce materially the amount of alcohol now used in the compounding of drugs the drug business will be hard hit. What is more, consumers will be obliged to pay from 100 to 1,000 per cent. more for their drugs. Without the alcohol preservative no druggist will lay in large stocks. That will mean that his goods will cost him more and the consumer will pay the increase.

"All drugs containing syrups must contain enough alcohol to preserve them, else they will spoil in two or three weeks. It might be contended that the druggists themselves might buy the bases of the drugs and dispense them in whatever quantity was ordered. There are few druggists in these days who could do that if they wanted to, and the suggestion is entirely impractical anyway."

There was a report in Brooklyn yesterday that Long Island brewers were making plans after the Federal amendment became operative on Jan. 16, 1920, to manufacture beer containing 2 per cent. of alcohol and put the burden of proof on the Government that such a beverage was intoxicating. No confirmation of the report was obtainable.

Regarding the report that he had given an opinion to the effect that the Federal Prohibition amendment is unconstitutional and that he had been retained to attack the amendment, Charles E. Hughes issued the following statement yesterday afternoon:

"In view of what has been published I think that I ought to say that there is no truth in the statement that I have given an opinion to the effect that the prohibition amendment is unconstitutional. I have given no opinion upon the subject. There is also no truth in the report that I have been retained to assail the amendment. I have no connection with the matter."

WANTS ROOSEVELT STORIES

Permanent Memorial Committee Will Publish a Volume of Them.

An appeal to friends and admirers of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for stories and anecdotes concerning him was issued yesterday by the special committee appointed by the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee to collect and edit characteristic incidents and episodes in his life. Here is the appeal, which was issued from the national headquarters of the committee:

> In pursuance of the plan to collect and publish a memorial volume of anecdotes concerning Theodore Roosevelt the undersigned committee appointed by the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee hereby makes an appeal for voluntary contributions of brief characteristic personal stories of Roosevelt. Now, at a time when his many friends are thinking of him, when memorial meetings are being held, a harvest of interesting and valuable material can be gathered and preserved. It seems important that this material now so widely scattered and so unshaped should be brought together, classified, and published in a volume somewhat like "Stories of Lincoln."
> Roosevelt touched life at so many points and with such zest and humor that the committee feels confident of a swift and generous response, and the volume, which will be a most valuable historical record, will be published later under the auspices of the committee. The proceeds of its sale will be used to advance the project of a permanent memorial monument.
>
> The stories should be brief, and each should embody a single picture or episode of Roosevelt's life. They should be sent to Hamlin Garland, Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee, Room 2[illegible], 1 Madison Avenue, New York City. All manuscripts not available will be returned to their writers on request.

> FINLEY PETER DUNNE,
> BRANDER MATTHEWS,
> GERTRUDE ATHERTON,
> BLISS CARMAN,

> JULIAN STREET,
> OWEN WISTER.

In making public the appeal the committee announced that it was being sent to the leading newspapers in the United States and to publications in South America and Europe. Announcement was also made yesterday that the largest contribution received thus far by the committee was from Julius Holz, publisher of the New Yorker Herold, a German language newspaper. Mr. Holz, who donated $10[illegible], was a close friend of Colonel Roosevelt, it was said, and frequently visited the former President while he was ill in Roosevelt Hospital.

Two services in memory of Colonel Roosevelt will be held in Trinity Church on Sunday, one in the morning at 11 o'clock and the other in the afternoon at 4. The service in the afternoon will be under the auspices of the American Defense Society, of which Colonel Roosevelt was Honorary President. His last message on our duty after the war was addressed to this organization. Major Gen. Leonard Wood has sent a letter to Dr. Manning to be read at this service.

ART NOTES.

American Water Color Society and Civic Club Exhibitions.

The fifty-second annual exhibition of the American Water Color Society opened yesterday with a private view in the galleries of the National Arts Club. The Alexander M. Hudnut prize of $200 went to Childe Hassam's "Mt. Beacon from Broadway, Newburgh," a beautiful composition, strong in color, and with the vitality of light and air characteristic of Mr. Hassam's work, whatever the medium. This picture is one of a group of several by the same artist holding a place of honor in the exhibition and dignifying it by their exceptionally fine quality. The Hudson River and its banks form a very difficult subject in art, and many a good painter has been shipwrecked in the attempt to translate into pictorial terms the stately dignity of the Highlands. That Mr. Hassam has succeeded was perhaps to be expected, considering his discipline and his selective vision, but the painter, nourished on impressionism as he has been since the receptive days of his student period, is not as adequately prepared as the disciples of older schools to attack monumental material. It shows the sturdy substance of Mr. Hassams' talent that, with his special interest in the problems of atmosphere and the shimmering garment of light that drapes all natural forms, he has rendered impressively and vigorously the great bulk of the hills bordering the noble river, their mighty structure, and the volume and force of the river's flow as it passes endlessly by them.

The exhibition includes many other agreeable items. Among a number of pictures by Felicie Waldo Howell her "Public Library" is the best, although a short memory finds it difficult to reconcile the date, 1919, with the snowy environment. Let us hope, not prophesy. Tony Nell's pushcart crowd is handled more expertly than her mother and child group, which is empty rather than synthetic. In the pushcart group the bulbous back of the woman in the foreground is admirably realized, and the animated gestures and poses of the other figures are lifelike and amusing. Among the architectural subjects Florence Robinson's doorway is notable for its excellent draftsmanship, and Alice Schille's two pictures of children are more than usually defined and coherent while keeping the freedom of touch characteristic of the artist.

The Civic Club Exhibition.

The Civic Club, at 14 West Twelfth Street, announces a free exhibition of drawings, etchings, lithographs, and water colors by a representative group of New York artists. Among those exhibiting are George Bellows, Cornelia Barns, Jerome Myers, William Auerbach-Levy, Boardman Robinson, John Sloan, Maurice Sterne, and William Zorach.

The Civic Club has devoted the use of the art gallery, formerly that of the Salmagundi Club, to furthering the aesthetic side of civic life in New York without any thought of material benefit. The pictures in the present exhibit were selected by the artists themselves as their favorites for the occasion.

The exhibition, just opened, will continue until Feb. 24.

Paintings by A. Vincent Tack.

At the Kraushaar Galleries a retrospective exhibition of the work of Augustus Vincent Tack is open until the fifteenth of this month. One of the earliest paintings is a girl's head, in sallow browns and yellows, with a broad fluent brushwork, very charming in its quiet tone and sympathetic characterization.

The middle period is represented by a romantic group in picturesque costumes, rich in color and rather artificial in lighting, the whole picture looking as though it might have been painted from characters in a Sir Henry Irving version of a Shakespearean play.

Through this phase the artist worked toward a more brilliant and decorative style. The "Palace of Enchantment," an overmantel for a room which he has decorated in Greenwich House, is a fine example of his latest manner.

OWE ROADS $381,000,000.

Director General Hines Continues Testimony Before Senate Committee

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Government still owes the railroads about $381,000,000 for rental, Director General Hines told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today. Senator Kellogg remarked on the fact that the Railroad Administration was asking Congress for an additional appropriation of $750,000,000, "for all purposes, including settling up 1918 accounts," as Mr. Hines explained, this amount being in addition to the $500,000,000 revolving fund. Mr. Hines explained that the actual loss to the Government would be "only about $200,000,000."

"What is the cause of the sickness of the roads? Is it a question of finances or inability to operate profitably?" asked Senator Underwood of Alabama.

"I should say it is largely a question of finance, but there are questions of operating economies," Mr. Hines answered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (Associated Press.)—In his testimony today Director General Hines expressed the opinion that a permanent solution of the railroad problem could not be found without a reorganization of railroad companies on the basis of invested capital, or without consolidations to eliminate the wide difference between the strength of various roads. If this were not done, he said, one road would make excess profits with the same prescribed rates on which a weaker line would starve. The public and labor, he feared, would always feel suspicion of "watered capital," if this reorganization were not effected.

PLAN NEW HARBOR TREATY.

New York Commission Named to Act with New Jersey Body.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—New York State took steps today to remake with New Jersey the New York harbor treaty to permit development of the port. Following a conference with Governor Smith, legislative leaders succeeded in putting through the Assembly a resolution naming the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and various Senators and Assemblymen as a commission to meet a similar legislative body representing New Jersey in the near future.

The harbor developments will call for expenditures amounting to millions of dollars and tentative plans will provide for defining a harbor zone within which the new board will have power to take or buy all property necessary to the improvement. Power also will be given the board to issue bonds to cover the cost of acquiring such property and of developing it. The West Side Improvement and the Brooklyn Marginal Railroad, according to the plans, may be taken over by the board, but this has not yet been determined.

The new treaty when agreed upon will have to come before the Legislature and be acted upon before it can bcome operative, even after Congressional approval.

19 STAND BY JONAS AND QUIT GREETERS

EXPECT OTHERS TO FOLLOW

Flushing Asks Mayor's Committee to Return Funds Collected There.

Ten members of the sub-committee on Permanent Memorial for American Soldiers Who Perished in the War yesterday resigned in a body from the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee, in protest against the efforts of supporters of William Randolph Hearst, a member of the Mayor's Committee, to dictate the course of Nathan S. Jonas, the Chairman, and other members of the Executive Committee. Nine other members of the General Committee also sent their resignations to Borough President Reigelmann, and Daniel Lipsky, Chairman of the committee, said that scores of other letters of resignations from members were in the mails.

A letter signed by all the members of the Memorial Committee except Edward M. Bassett, the former Public Service Commissioner, who was absent in Buffalo, was sent to Borough President Reigelmann after a meeting yesterday. Those who signed it were Frederick B. Pratt, Alferd T. White, Edward C. Blum, A. Augustus Healy, A. C. Bedford, William Hamlin Childs, Andrew D. Baird, Herbert K. Twitchell, Frank L. Babbitt, and James H. Post, who was Chairman of the meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music last week, when the Hearst adherents tried to prevent James M. Beck from fulfilling the request of the Victory Committee to deliver an address.

"We regret deeply that we are now constrained to resign," said the joint letter, "but we feel unwilling to remain as members of any committee where freedom of action is impossible. Enough funds have already been contributed to insure a proper welcome by Brooklyn to our returning soldiers, sailors, and marines, and we feel, therefore, that no embarrassment need be caused in the welcome home celebration by our resignations.

"To our minds the provision of a permanent memorial is quite distinct from the welcome home celebration, and is a subject requiring prolonged study and very careful consideration, which can best be attained if put in charge of a special committee independent of the general committee and clothed with full powers."

Nine Quit Committee.

The Honorary Vice Presidents who resigned from the general committee yesterday in protest against the Hearst influence were Dr. Lewis S. Pilcher, department commander of the G. A. R. for this State, and Major William Francis Campbell, who has just returned from service overseas. The other resignations were from Herbert F. Gunnison of The Brooklyn Eagle, Theodore Thonet, Past Grand Regent of the Royal Arcanum in this State; D. B. Seaver, a merchant; Mrs. Howard S. Hadden, Herbert E. Muller, Frank Day Tuttle and R. Navarro, making a total of nineteen resignations reported during the day.

Approval of the action of Chairman Jonas in resigning when Borough President Reigelmann and the Hearst sympathizers sought to cause the withdrawal of the invitation to Mr. Beck to speak at the Academy meeting was expressed yesterday by Bishop Frederick Burgess of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island. He is a member of the committee, but said yesterday he had not decided to resign. Several other members of the committee expressed approval of the protest against attempts to influence the committee and said they were considering sending in their resignations.

A different manner of protesting against the membership of William Randolph Hearst on the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to the homecoming troops was taken yesterday by the Community Welcome Home Committee of Flushing, L. I. Through its Chairman, William T. Yale, who was also Chairman of Local Exemption Board 185 under the operation of the selective draft law, the committee requested the Mayor's Committee to return all money collected in Flushing by the members of the Police Department.

Chairman Yale said it was apparent to him that the money collected in Flushing and other parts of the city was to be used in welcoming the Manhattan soldiers, leaving Flushing to organize a separate welcome if she wished to give her soldiers an adequate greeting. If the Mayor's Committee gives up the money it is to be supplemented by additional subscriptions and used in a Flushing celebration. It is planned also to decorate the ferry slip at Long Island City, where many of the soldiers are landed on their way to the Long Island camps.

TRANSIT JOB FOR PARSONS.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—It was reported here tonight that Governor Smith had sent a cable message to William Barclay Parsons, who at present is a Major General with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, where he has been engaged in the construction of military railroads, asking him to undertake the task of completing the unfinished portions of New York City's dual subway system.

It was after Governor Smith had conferred with Senator Thompson that this report began to circulate. Senator Thompson is head of the Senate Committee on Public Utilities, which has charge of pending legislation to reorganize the Public Service Commission, and to place under separate supervision the construction of subways and the regulation of public service operations in New York City, which, under the present law, are performed by the Public Service Commission for the First District.

About 25 per cent. of the work on the New York subways remains to be completed, involving the letting of contracts aggregating some $50,000,000. This task would fall to Major Gen. Parsons should he accept.

After today's hearing on the public service bills a compromise measure framed to meet Republican objections is being considered. This would provide for a three-headed commission in New York City; two Commissioners to exercise quasi judicial and regulatory functions and the third to be known as Commissioner of Rapid Transit Construction. The bill would provide for practically complete separation of construction and regulation of rapid transit operations.

REVENUE BILL READY.

Its Adoption to be Moved by Kitchin in House This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Copies of the text of the new War Revenue bill will probably be available tomorrow morning, as the final draft has been sent to the Government Printer.

It is the understanding that Representative Kitchin will move the adoption of the law in the House Friday or Saturday. Action on the bill may be asked in the Senate Saturday, or early next week.

It is reported that the bill may raise a little more than the $6,000,000,000 asked by the Secretary of the Treasury. One estimate is that the yield will be about $300,000,000 above the $5,978,466,000 which the Senate Committee figured would be raised before the conferees incorporated several compromise provisions in the final draft.

NEUTRAL NATIONS TO GET MORE GOODS

Allies Lift Embargo on Many More Commodities to Holland and Scandinavia.

VESSELS ALSO RELEASED

All Guarantees Against Re-export to Germany, However, to Continue in Effect.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—As a result of negotiations conducted at Paris, Norway, Sweden, Holland, and Denmark are to be permitted to import increased quanties of essential commodities from the victorious associated nations, and a large part of the 910,079 tons of Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian shipping now under charter to the Shipping Board is to be returned.

Simultaneous announcements of the outcome of the negotiations were made tonight by the War Trade Board and the Shipping Board. Under the agreement, the four Northern European neutrals will be allowed to increase materially their imports of cotton, wool, and leather and their manufactures as well as petroleum and its products, edible and inedible animal and vegetable oils, tobacco, and coffee.

The Shipping Board announced its readiness immediately to begin releasing to the Scandinavian Governments the shipping now under charter, or to cancel the contracts and return the vessels direct to their owners. It was specified, however, that such vessels as might be required for the use of the Commission for Relief in Belgium of European civilian relief or of the Governments associated with the United States in the war would be retained until their contracts expired.

Dutch ships seized by the United States already are being released as rapidly as their present voyages or commitments are completed, and the same procedure will be followed with respect to the other ships.

There are now under the Shipping Board control 81 Danish ships of 373,246 deadweight tons, 61 Norwegian ships of 278,405 deadweight tons, 46 Norwegian sailing ships of 118,427 tons, and 31 Swedish steamers of 144,911 tons.

The War Trade Board called attention to the fact that the limits as to quantity of imports by the northern neutrals of many commodities, including clothing, machinery, and rubber tires, had been entirely removed some time ago, and said that licenses to export those commodities as well as cotton, wool, leather and the others on the list made public tonight would be drafted freely to American exporters. The new arrangement provides, however, that all guarantees against re-exportation of the commodities to enemy countries are to be strictly enforced.

Lynch-Riegelmann.

The marriage of Charles E. Lynch, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lynch of St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, and Miss Ethel Riegelmann, a niece of Borough President Edward Riegelmann, and daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Riegelmann of Montclair, N. J., took place last evening at the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn. The Rev. Father Fitzgerald of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church officiated, and Borough President Riegelmann gave the bride in marriage. Harold FitzPatrick was the best man and Miss Dora Gibbs of Montclair was the maid of honor. The bridegroom is the Vice President of the Charles E. Lynch Shoe Manufacturing Company of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Mrs. Lynch is a lawyer, and at the time she was admitted to the bar was the youngest woman lawyer in the city.

Miss Roth Wed to Lieut. Searls.

WOOD AS MAGAZINE WRITER.

To Contribute Articles to Metropolitan, But Not as an Editor.

In reply to a report that General Leonard Wood was to become contributing editor to the Metropolitan Magazine, in succession to Theodore Roosevelt, Henry J. Whigham, editor of the Metropolitan, said last night that General Wood was to contribute an article to the issue of April 8. This will probably be followed by other articles, but Mr. Whigham said that he wanted it understood that the General was not becoming an editor, nor was he to hold a place on the regular staff.

The contributions of General Wood would be on national questions, Mr. Whigham said, and he understood that the first article would deal with the subject of national service. The whole matter was, he said, quite indefinite, and he could not say what other articles the General would write, or how often.

'HOBEY' BAKER IS HONORED

Princeton Holds Memorial Service for Famous Athlete.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 5.—A warm tribute to Captain "Hobey" Baker, the Princeton athlete recently killed, was paid by President John G. Hibben of Princeton University at memorial services here today. Six aviators, sent by the War Department, acted as a guard of honor, and a large number of students and visitors attended the services, which were held in Trinity Church.

"The deep feeling of our hearts today finds but poor expression in words for our admiration and love for Hobart Baker," said Dr. Hibben. "Ever since he entered the university he has been the pride of Princeton. We had hoped soon to welcome him home with his honors and his laurels, and it was with a passion of grief that the great company of his friends heard of his death. At the close of his university career he had not only the reputation of a gallant athlete, but the fair record of a conscientious and consistent devotion to the daily tasks connected with his academic work."

Captain Baker was killed in an airplane accident on Dec. 21.

He was visiting Great Britain on a mission to present the moral aims of the war. Mr. Bains-Griffiths was born in Wales in 1868 and came to the United States in 1886. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the Kansas City University and his Master's degree from Harvard. He was the author of several books.

RUDOLPH ARONSON, COMPOSER, DEAD

Built the Casino Theatre, and Under His Management "Erminie" Had Its Long Run.

AUTHOR OF 'SWEET SIXTEEN'

His Musical Writings Consist of 150 Works, Including Scores of Orchestral Pieces.

Rudolph Aronson, for many years prominent as a theatrical manager and composer, who was the originator and builder of the Casino Theatre, Thirty-ninth Street and Broadway, and its first manager, died Tuesday night at the home of his sisters, the Misses Aronson, 233 West 107th Street. Mr. Aronson had been ill since last July and hope for his recovery was abandoned some days ago.

Mr. Aronson was born in New York City 61 years ago and was educated here and abroad. While he began his theatrical career as manager of the Metropolitan Concert Hall, which was on the site of the present Broadway Theatre, it was the building of the Casino Theatre which brought Mr. Aronson prominently to the attention of the public and the theatrical world as a manager and producer of musical entertainments. On this theatre he operated the first roof-garden in America. The Casino became the recognized home of light and comic opera in New York, and it was there, under his management, that "Erminie" was produced and had a record run of 1,200 performances. Under his management such stars as Lillian Russell, Francis Wilson, De Wolf Hopper, and Jefferson de Angelis first attained popularity. Mr. Aronson was manager of the Casino for sixteen years and had also managed the Bijou Theatre. A famous incident was that of the rival productions of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" in New York on Oct. 1, 1891, by Aronson at the Casino in the afternoon, and in the evening of the same day, at another house, by Oscar Hammerstein.

Mr. Aronson had composed more than 150 musical works, including scores of orchestral pieces and a few light operas. He composed "Sweet Sixteen" and was the author of two marches named for Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, and he recently completed a Victory march.

He was at one time proprietor of the Hotel Metropole, this city, and in August, 1910, on his return from a visit to Porto Rico, he announced the formation of the Porto Rico Hotels and Springs and Development Company, capitalized at $1,000,000, which was organized to build modern hotels in five of the principal cities of the island. He was President of the company. He went to California in 1915 and returning a year later announced that he was arranging to build a Casino in Los Angeles. But most of his time in recent years had been devoted to composing.

CHASE IS CLEARED OF BETTING CHARGE

MAY COME TO NEW YORK

Manager McGraw on Way to Cincinnati to Complete Deal—Much Hearsay Testimony.

Hal Chase, the Cincinnati first baseman, charged with gambling on baseball games, was exonerated yesterday by President John A. Heydler of the National League. The hearing was held at a secret session last week, when evidence was submitted from Manager Mathewson, three of the Cincinnati players, and Manager McGraw and Pol Perritt of the Giants. This evidence all proved to be more or less hearsay, and, after giving the matter careful consideration, President Heydler ruled that Chase was not guilty.

The player was not reprimanded, but President Heydler gave a hint of what would happen to players in the future who are found guilty of betting on games. Mr. Heydler said: "Any player who, during my term as President of the National League, is shown to have any interest in a wager on any games played in the league, whether he bets on his club or against it, or whether he takes part in the game or not, will be promptly expelled from the National League. Betting by players will not be tolerated."

Because of Chase's indifferent playing last season in Cincinnati and because of the discord he caused among the players, he will not be taken back by the Reds. Manager McGraw of the Giants is now on his way to Cincinnati and it is believed that while he is there he will make a deal whereby Chase will come to the Giants. It is believed that Chase will come to New York as part of the transaction whereby Pat Moran went to the Reds as manager. Before the deal is settled it is likely that Mathewson may be retained by the Giants to coach the pitchers and act as McGraw's first assistant.

In announcing his finding in the case yesterday, President Heydler said that he believed that the Cincinnati Club has been justified in bringing the charges even if they hadn't been substantiated. He said that last season there were so many rumors and so much gossip in Cincinnati that an investigation was necessary. There had been so much careless talk by Chase himself and by others that an atmosphere of distrust was created among his team mates.

Chase was suspended last August by Manager Mathewson, and it now develops that the charges which were brought against the player were of a general nature, alleging violation of Rule No. 40 of the league constitution, which relates to "Crookedness and its penalties." A short time after Chase was suspended he brought suit against the Cincinnati Club to recover his salary. This amounts to something like $1,600, and it is understood that Chase's attorneys will not push this case against the Redland Club.

Mr. Heydler said that he had made a careful effort to corroborate the testimony which was given at the hearing, but it was of such a general character that it was not convincing. A number of assertions were made against Chase which were not substantiated.

Mr. Heydler said that Chase did not take baseball or anything else seriously, and many of the things he says in joking spirit are construed otherwise. President Heydler said that Chase made an excellent witness. He said that as far as betting was concerned he bet on only two ball games since he has been connected with the sport. Once he bet on a post series game between Cincinnati and Cleveland, and he also bet on one game at the Polo Grounds when he was a spectator in the grand stand.

The President of the National League said that Chase, having been exonerated of the charges against him, was entitled to start again with a clean slate, and deserved fair treatment. President Heydler's finding in the case is as follows:

"This matter comes before me as President of the National League on the complaint of the Cincinnati Club against Hal Chase, a player under contract with that club for the season of 1918. When the charges were filed I was acting President of the National League, and objection was made to the hearing of the evidence until the formal election of a President. This, with an adjournment granted at the request of the player's attorneys, postponed the hearing to Jan. 30, 1919, on which date all testimony offered was heard. The player appeared in person and by his attorneys. Further investigation and inquiry, and examination of the official records, have since been made, that every available fact bearing on the matter might be established.

"In substance, the player was charged with making wagers against his club on games in which he participated. In justice to Chase, I feel bound to state that both the evidence and the records of the games to which reference was made fully refute this accusation. In one game in which it was intimated that Chase bet against his club the records show that in the sixth inning, with two men on bases and the score 2 to 0 against his team, Chase hit a home run, putting Cincinnati one run ahead.

"All available evidence has been carefully taken and considered. If the charge were proved it would follow as a matter of course that the player would forever be disqualified from participating in National League games. Under such circumstances I would not hesitate to so decide, as the interests of the public and of the game of baseball are far more important than the fate of any individual. These interests it is my clear duty to protect, no matter what the effect may be on players or clubs

"My conclusion and finding, after full consideration of the evidence, is that it is nowhere established that the accused was interested in any pool or wager that caused any game of ball to result otherwise than on its merits, and that Player Hal H. Chase is not guilty of the charges brought against him."

Chase refused to talk when informed of the verdict, but his lawyers issued a statement for him which declared that legal action would be continued to obtain "full redress" from the Cincinnati Club, which caused his suspension "without cause" and held up payment of his salary.

SMITH SIGNS WITH GIANTS.

Manager McGraw Has Confidence in Former College Pitcher.

George Smith, the former Columbia pitcher, signed a contract with the Giants yesterday. Smith played with two or three clubs last season and showed so much ability at times that Manager McGraw still believes that he is a coming star.

The Giants booked two more exhibition games yesterday. They will play the Boston Red Sox at Spartansburg on April 10 and will play at Winston-Salem, N. C., on April 11.

NEUSTADT IS VICTOR AGAIN.

Joseph Neustadt, a young Brooklyn amateur, continued his unbroken string of victories in the national amateur Class C championship, 18.2 balk-line billiard tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn last night. In his fifth game of the final round play Neustadt defeated Sydney Brussel by a score of 150 to 108 in twenty-seven innings. The victor averaged 5 15-27 and had high runs of 23 and 21. Brussel averaged four points and had high runs of 23 and 13.

The contest was one of the most interesting of the tournament. Neustadt got off to an impressive start and led throughout. Always, however, Brussel was a dangerous rival, until after the twentieth inning, when Neustadt, with a closing display of brilliancy which has not been equalled in any of the previous matches, swept to a convincing successful margin. This despite an impressive run of 23 which Brussel made in his twenty-sixth inning.

In the other match of the evening C. J. Steinbugler disposed of J. R. Langdon in a long drawn out contest of forty-nine innings by the score of 150 to 129.

The scores:

J. Neustadt—3 10 2 0 2 13 2 0 12 0 7 1 2 5 4 3 1 2 5 5 1 2 21 12 0 23 12—150. Average, 5 12-27. High runs, 23 and 21.

OTIS WINS FIRST BLOCK.

Leads Cannefax in Three-Cushion Carom Match.

C. S. Otis of Brooklyn defeated Robert Cannefax of St. Louis, a former champion, last night in the opening block of their three-cushion carrom billiard match at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. The score was 50 to 32. Otis, showing excellent form, completed his string in seventy-two innings. His highest run was three. Cannefax had a cluster of two as his best effort.

The match will be continued tonight and tomorrow night. The match is at 150 points in blocks of 50 points each night.

ST. PAUL'S DEFEATS TRINITY

Garden City School Five Wins Basket Ball Game, 26 to 16.

St. Paul's School basketball team easily defeated the Trinity School five on the former's court at Garden City, L. I., yesterday, by a score of 26 to 16. The Long Island schoolboys accumulated an insurmountable lead in the opening half, which ended with St. Paul's in the lead by 20 to 5.

WINS TEN STRAIGHT GAMES.

Barnard School Five Defeats Clason Point, 20 to 10.

Barnard School's basket ball quintet registered its tenth victory yesterday by trouncing the Clason Point Military Academy five on the Barnard court, by the score of 20 to 10. The successful team scored its winning margin in the second half with a snappy and well organized attack.

LOYOLA SKATERS WIN GAME.

Defeat Mamaroneck Hockey Team by Score of 3 to 0.

Loyola School's hockey seven trounced the Mamaroneck High School septet last night in a brilliant game at the Brooklyn Ice Palace by a score of 3 goals to 0. Keresey, the victorious team's centre, figured in all three of his team's goals. In the first period he scored the only tally on a long shot which sizzled past Kane, Mamaroneck's goal.

After eight minutes and twenty-three seconds of play in the second period, Nelson took a pass from Keresey and registered a goal, and a short time later Keresey passed the puck to Stoneham, son of one of the owners of the New York Giants, who scored the third goal.

MATTY BACK ON FEB. 15.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—President August Herrmann today repeated the statement he made when he signed Pat Moran as manager of the Cincinnati Nationals last week, that Christy Mathewson would not be further considered as eligible for leadership of the Reds.

Herrmann has received a reply to his cablegram to Mathewson asking about the latter's future plans. Mathewson's message was brief, merely stating that he would land in America on Feb. 15. No mention was made as to his future plans.

CHILDS CUP RACE MAY 17.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The University of Pennsylvania will open its rowing season on April 12 with the Navy at Annapolis, it was announced today by John A. Brown, Chairman of the Pennsylvania Rowing Committee. On May 17 the Quaker crews will compete in the Childs Cup races at Princeton and on May 31 the American Henley, which will be rowed on the Schuylkill River in this city.

MINNESOTA BARS FULTON.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 5.—The Minnesota Boxing Commission, meeting here late today, voted to bar indefinitely Fred Fulton, Rochester, Minn., heavyweight fighter from boxing or sparring in Minnesota rings.

No reason was given, but it is understood the Commissioners took the action after discussion of Fulton's statement made recently in San Francisco that Jack Dempsey had "double-crossed" him in the fight of July 27 last.

PENN-COLUMBIA TILT OFF.

Quaker Wrestlers, Not Yet Ready, Cancel Tonight's Match.

The University of Pennsylvania wrestling team canceled yesterday its date for a dual match with the Columbia matmen which was to have been held in Philadelphia tomorrow night. The Quakers, in asking Columbia's assent to an abandonment of the meet, said their team was not ready for a hard match. They suggested that the match be scheduled for Feb. 28, to be held in Philadelphia.

Shreveport Is After Big Bout.

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 5.—An offer of $100,000 to bring the proposed Willard-Dempsey fight to Shreveport was wired to Tex Rickard, promoter of the bout, tonight by a syndicate of local oil men. The message said that the laws of Louisiana would permit the holding of a twenty-round contest.

Yale Calls Baseball Candidates.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—A call for Yale 'Varsity baseball candidates was issued tonight. A meeting of the candidates will be held tomorrow night.

NORSE GIRL WINS FROM MISS CASSEL

Three of the contestants in the women's invitation singles at the Heights Casino, Brooklyn, reached the semi-final round yesterday. These were Mrs. de Forest Candee, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, and Miss Marie Wagner. Mrs. Candee, who put Miss Sears of Boston out of the tournament on Tuesday, defeated Miss Adele S. Cragin yesterday at 6—2, 6—2. The Brooklyn player kept Miss Cragin on the defensive from the start, and as the play progressed several interesting rallies developed. Miss Cragin was best at the net, and although her service was not as vigorous as Mrs. Candee's she compelled her to be alert at all times.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Claire Cassel in the round before the semi-final at 6—0, 6—1. Miss Bjurstedt has almost recovered from her bad cold, and she showed flashes of her best game at times yesterday. The match was not as one-sided as the score would indicate, because on several occasions Miss Cassel made the Norse girl extend herself to make her winning point. Miss Marie Wagner went into the semi-finals when she won from Miss E. Gott at 6—0, 6—2.

There was lively competition in the doubles and play was continued through the third round. The teams to reach the semi-finals were Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Rawson Wood, Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Claire Cassel, Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleanora Sears, and Mrs. W. H. Prichard and Mrs. D. C. Mills. Miss Bjurstedt and Miss Sears won yesterday from Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Mrs. Samuel Waring.

The finals of the doubles will be played on Saturday morning and the finals in the singles are scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

The summaries:

Singles.—Fourth Round—Mrs. de Forest Candee defeated Miss Adele Cragin, 6—2, 6—2; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Claire Cassel, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss E. Gott, 6—0, 6—2.

Doubles.—Second Round—Mrs. Albert Humphries and Miss Bessie H. Holden defeated Mrs. L. Gouverneur Morris by default; Miss Caroma Winne and Miss Gertrude Della Torre defeated Miss Julie Brown and Mrs. R. Earle, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleanora Sears won from Mrs. Edward Raymond and Mrs. B. Briggs by default.

Third Round—Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Claire Cassel defeated Mrs. Albert Humphries and Miss Bessie Holden, 6—3, 6—2; Mrs. W. H. Prichard and Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Miss Caroma Winne and Miss Gertrude Della Torre, 2—6, 6—2, 6—1; Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleanora Sears defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Mrs. Samuel Waring, 6—0, 6—3.

COLUMBIA OARSMEN WORK.

Between fifty and sixty candidates reported for 'Varsity and freshman rowing at Columbia yesterday, when the first general call for candidates was made. The practice began on the rowing machines in the university gymnasium under the direction of Fred Plaistead, acting head coach. Because of the confusion attendant upon the opening of the second term, many prospective candidates did not report, and for that reason the registration books were held open.

According to Plaistead, the most significant feature of yesterday's turnout was the fact that about thirty freshmen reported for the first-year crew. The freshmen were so numerous that they more than filled the rowing machines and some of them had to be accommodated later when the 'Varsity practice was held.

The 'Varsity men were not as numerous as the freshmen, but among them were several candidates from last year's crew, including Steinschneider, bow oar; Jack Kraus, and Jim Parkes. Barrett Brown, stroke of the 1918 crew, will be on hand within a week, as well as three or four others who rowed in last Spring's 'Varsity combination.

Jim Rice, who resigned as head coach last June, was an interested spectator when the practice got under way.

YALE DOWNS COLUMBIA.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—Yale defeated Columbia at basket ball tonight, 43 to 21, the visitors' defense badly crumbling in the second half. They held Yale to a 23 to 11 lead in the first, but Eli's scoring machine shot repeated baskets past them in the second.

Hamill and Van Slyck were in good form for the home team, while Weinstein and Farrell shone for Columbia. Van Slyck and Tynan were compelled to retire temporarily with cut foreheads. Only one substitution was necessary when, with only twenty seconds remaining, Johnson was compelled to retire because of four personal fouls.

The lineup:

Yale, (43.)	Position.	Columbia (11.)
Horton	R.F.	Tynan
Vanslyck	L. F.	Farrell, (Capt.)
Hamill	C.	Johnson
Stradell, (Capt.)	R. G.	Weinstein
Alderman	L. G.	Kiendl

Goals from floor—Yale, Horton, 7; Stradella, 1; Vanslyck, 1; Hamill, 6; Alderman, 3. Columbia, Weinstein, 4; Farrell, 1; Tynan, 1; Johnson, 1; Keindl. Goals from foul—Vanslyck, 7; Farrell, 3. Referee—Ed Thorpe. Time—20 minute periods.

WHITE OWLS LEAD AT POLO.

With Handicap They Beat Foxhunters, 10 to 9, at Durland's.

A handicap of two goals caused the defeat of the Foxhunters' polo trio last night in the Phillips Cup tournament at Durland's Riding Academy. The recipients of the handicap were the members of the White Owls team, and the latter aggregation won after a spirited contest by 10 goals to 9. Murray Wilder and H. Winn each scored three goals for the successful team while Otis Coleman accounted for the remaining two.

The lineup:

White Owls, (10.)	Foxhunters, (9.)
No. 1—M. Wilder.	No. 1—H. Levinsky.
No. 2—H. Winn.	No. 2—A. Bartels.
Back—O. Coleman.	Back—Dr. Blackwell.

Handicap—White Owls receive two goals. Goals—Wilder, 3; Winn, 3; Coleman, 2; Levinsky, 3; Bartels, 6; Dr. Blackwell. Penalties—Dr. Blackwell ½ point for foul; Bartels ½ point for foul. Time of periods—10 minutes.

Margolies, the Boxer, Dies.

Irving Margolies, former amateur bantamweight boxing champion, who recently entered the featherweight ranks in the professional ring, died yesterday from influenza. Margolies contracted his illness shortly after his winning bout with Freddie Reese, a semi-final to the Benny Leonard-Johnny Dundee contest at Newark on Jan. 20. It was the first time that Reese had been knocked out in his ring career.

Go See and Ride in the Essex

All interest is being centered on the Essex. It is the car the trade has talked of for more than a year. Production was to have begun on the Essex last spring, but conditions delayed the start until now.

The exhibit includes the cars in the show and the demonstrators that are maintained outside. Everybody is urged to ride in them.

Don't Fail to See the Essex Also Ride In It

The enthusiastic endorsement everyone is giving to the Essex when they see it is emphasized ten-fold when they have ridden in it. So for that reason everyone who stops at the Essex exhibit is also being asked to take a ride in the car. That plan is being followed in connection with every automobile show and at every Essex sales place. More than a quarter of a million have ridden in the Essex.

It is the most talked of car of the year.

Instead of advertising its qualities, the Essex is allowed to speak for itself. Men everywhere are saying the finest things about it.

Has Economy of the Light Car, Comfort and Endurance of the Costliest

People talk of its beauty and the elegance of its appointment. They compare its qualities with those of fine and costly cars. Its lightness is admired because of its advantages in economy of operation. The roughest roads are used to reveal its sturdiness and riding qualities, so rare in light cars. Everyone is surprised at its power, flexibility and acceleration. And those who know other cars of similar weight and price class, marvel at its speed.

Since you are going to the automobile show your visit will not be complete unless you see and ride in the Essex.

Why This Should Be Your Car

Doubtless you will pause before the Oakland Sensible Six Coupé on view at the Show to admire its good appearance and comfort—these are apparent to even the casual glance.

What should concern you most, however, is this car's capacity for constant and economical performance, for gasoline and tire mileages surprisingly high.

The foundation of the Coupé, as of all Oakland models, is the standard 44-horsepower Oakland Sensible Six chassis which in the service of more than 100,000 owners has thoroughly made good.

The merit of this chassis, and the comfort built into the roomy body above it, represent a value not exceeded anywhere in the present automobile market.

Oakland occupies Space 22 at Madison Square Garden. The models on display are: the Touring Car, $1177; the Roadster, $1177; the Sedan, $1766; and the Coupé, $1766. Additional for wire wheel equipment, $75. All prices delivered in New York.

GARMENT WORKERS TO CONTINUE STRIKE

Union Decides to Pay Benefits to Comrades Fighting Manufacturers.

10,000 RETURN TO WORK

Small Dress Contractors and Jobbers Meet Demands, Including Boycott.

One-third of the strikers in the women's garment trade in this city will go back to work this week, according to Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who said last night that settlement had been reached with the Dress Contractors' and Manufacturers' Association, composed of 350 of the smaller manufacturers of dresses, and employing 10,000 persons, and that an agreement had also been reached with the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' Association, which is composed of jobbers. Mr. Schlesinger was jubilant over this partial victory, and said that he believed it the beginning of the end of the garment workers' strike, although as yet the larger manufacturers had refused to grant the demands of the union.

The Dress Contractors' and Manufacturers' Association, he said, has agreed to all the terms of the union, including the forty-four-hour week, increase in wages, and a review by the union of the case of each person discharged. They have also agreed, Mr. Schlesinger said, not to do any garment work for manufacturers who have not agreed to the terms of the union. The organization, he said, had deposited $20,000 as a guarantee of its good faith. A similar amount has been deposited by the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' Association, composed of jobbers, who have agreed not to buy or have any garments made in non-union shops, nor sell garments to concerns which have not agreed to the terms of the union.

The strike began its third week yesterday, having been declared on Tuesday, Jan. 3. Mr. Schlesinger announced that arrangements had been made whereby the union would begin next Monday the payments of strike benefits to workers, the amount to depend upon what the union believes necessary to maintain individuals during the remainder of the strike. This money, he said, will come partly from the treasury of the union and partly from an assessment which will be made against those returning to work in shops that have agreed to the union demands.

Mr. Schlesinger said that the union is prepared to continue payments each week of strike benefits until the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, against which the strike is principally directed, signs an agreement in accordance with the terms of the union. So far, said Mr. Schlesinger, the members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association have refused to consider any settlement with the strikers until the union surrenders its demand for the right to review the cases of discharged employes. He said that the union would never agree to this proposal. Ninety per cent. of the strikers are women and girls, he said. Three or four thousand were engaged yesterday in picket duty. A big demonstration is planned for next Monday, when, Mr. Schlesinger said, there would be about 15,000 on picket duty.

Magistrate William A. Sweetser, at the Jefferson Market Court, yesterday disposed of twenty-seven strike cases, the defendants belonging to the Skirt and Waist Makers' Union. Max Levine, counsel for the defendants, who were arrested at different times and places, pleaded guilty on behalf of most of them. Sentence was suspended in ten cases where the defendants had shouted "Scabs," while fines of $5 each were imposed where the strikers had refused to move when ordered by patrolmen to do so. All but three of the defendants were women and girls. Several cases of interfering with patrolmen in the performance of their duty were adjourned until Feb. 10.

5,000 NOW OUT IN PASSAIC.

Employes of Three More Mills Join Woolen Workers' Strike.

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 5.—The strike of woolen and worsted weavers and spinners, started yesterday by the walk-out of 1,100 employes of the Gera Woolen Mills, gained headway today by a strike of employes of three other mills of the six which form the big combination in this region. There are now nearly five thousand men and women striking, and it is said that unless their demands are promptly met they may be joined by as many more.

The first protest today was at the Botany Worsted Mills, where 1,500 persons left their weaving machines shortly before noon. This was unexpected, as an effort of the employes yesterday to enforce their terms had been successful. Nearly one thousand spinners at the New Jersey Worsted Spinning Company and one thousand weavers of the Forstmann and Huffmann Company at Garfield also walked out.

These four companies, together with the Passaic Worsted Spinning Company and the Garfield Worsted Mills, form the manufacturers' organization known as the Industrial Council of Passaic Wool Manufacturers. At the headquarters of the organization no statement could be obtained as to the stand the manufacturers will take.

The workers several weeks ago demanded a forty-eight-hour working week. The manufacturers agreed to this, with the provision that the employes would work fifty-five hours, with time and a half pay for all work over the forty-eight hours. This seemed to satisfy the weavers at the time, but the demand now is for a forty-four-hour week at 50 cents an hour.

[illegible]T TO END PATERSON STRIKE.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 5.—The Paterson Chamber of Commerce today took a hand in the strike of 27,000 silk workers in suggesting to Louis Magnat, Secretary of the various labor organizations, that the workers appoint a committee to confer with the manufacturers' committee to reach an understanding, the results of which can be submitted to the War Labor Board. Many labor meetings were held today, and at a number of them the workers showed a disposition to decry the activities of the War Labor Board.

At a meeting of 400 silk strikers in the Institute Hall today to discuss plans for bringing the employers to terms, there was condemnation of those disposed to accept a 47-hour working week. The I. W. W. called the meeting and the speakers were of various nationalities.

Two Italian speakers, one Polish or Scandinavian and one American, appealed to the strikers to stand pat on their demand for a 44-hour working week. They described themselves as representatives of the International Workers of the World, the Workmen's International Industrial Union, and the Socialist Labor Party. One speaker, Rubenstein, who said he was a representative of the Socialist Labor Party, denounced Louis Magnant as being aligned with the "bosses" in trying to influence his followers toward the 47-hour proposal.

SAYS BUILDERS HERE VOTED FOR LOCKOUT

Leader of Bricklayers' Union Declares a Nation-Wide Strike May Result.

William J. Bowen, President of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union, with headquarters in Indianapolis, declared last night that the Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association of New York had voted a lockout against building trades unionists in this city. Mr. Bowen asserted that if the action of the employers was carried out every unionist employed in Canada or the United States on construction in which New York construction firms were interested would lay down his tools.

The announcement of an impending continent-wide strike was made by the union leader at the Park Avenue Hotel following a conference with local leaders. Mr. Bowen said that he, with William Dobson, International Secretary of the Bricklayers' Union, arrived in this city on Monday. He said that he came to straighten out the small wage differences existing between the carpenters' locals and the Building Trades Employers' Association. A preliminary conference, he said, was held on Monday and a date set for yesterday.

According to Bowen, the conference was staged in the association's headquarters in the Marbridge Building, Sixth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. The union leader's version of the matter was that he and his associates told the employers that they had come to this city to arbitrate the difficulties of the carpenters, because in the unions' opinion, "something affecting the carpenters would soon affect the allied building unions."

"When we put our proposition up to the employers," said Bowen, "they repudiated us. They, speaking figuratively, slapped us in the face. They said they would refuse to discuss any differences until the men now out returned to work. A short time after our conference the Board of Governors at 3:30 o'clock voted to put in force a lockout.

"The result of this action will mean that thousands of our members returning from France will be unable to obtain employment. There will be no new construction in this city, and the already high rentals of apartment houses will not come down, because, in the absence of additional building, there will be no competition. When the news of this action by the employers in New York gets through the country I predict a continent-wide strike."

Mr. Bowen was asked whether the international organization, of which he is the head, would order a strike. He declared that no strike order would be issued, but that the men would walk out on sympathy. In this connection Mr. Dobson displayed a telegram from Norwich, Conn., which reported the building trade unionists there as having heard of the afternoon's action by the employers, and as already voting to quit the job.

The union leader was uncertain as to how many men would actually stop work. He said that if the sentiment he expected developed he thought 2,000,000 building workmen in this country and Canada would halt work.

Charles J. Kelly is Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association, and other members of the body are Ronald Taylor, Fred B. Tuttle, Albert N. Chambers, and J. P. Ryan. None of these could be reached last night at the late hour chosen by the union leaders for their announcement.

WANT UTILITIES RETURNED.

Merchants Oppose Government Ownership of Roads and Telegraph Lines

The Merchants' Association adopted resolutions yesterday favoring the return of the railroads and the telegraph and telephone systems to private control and operation under such conditions as will render them as serviceable to the public as when the Government took possession of them. The resolutions relating to the railroads say that they should not be returned to their owners until "Congress shall have considered and enacted constructive legislation to provide for the highest permanent efficiency of railroad operation and utilization of railroad properties and equipment, and for the adequate compensation of the capital invested in railroads sufficient to protect railroad credit and to insure the extension of transportation facilities to meet the commercial needs of the country."

It was also resolved that the suggested legislation should be passed speedily, so as not to delay the return of the roads to their owners beyond the one year and nine months' period after the signing of the peace treaty provided for in the act authorizing the taking of them by the Government. In order to permit the enactment of this legislation it is resolved that Congress, by joint resolution, require that the operation of the roads by the Government be continued as provided.

The resolutions also state:

"The Merchants' Association is opposed to ownership and permanent operation of public utilities by the Government, and believes that the telephone and telegraph systems should be returned to their owners."

TILTS MARK O'LEARY TRIAL.

Defendant Personally Cross-Examines Government Witnesses.

At the continuation yesterday of the trial before Federal Judge Hand and a jury of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, charged with conspiracy to obstruct the draft, Assistant District Attorney James W. Osborne, Jr., succeeded in reading to the jury the names of many of the members as contained in the membership book of the American Truth Society. Arthur O'Leary of counsel for his brother took exception to the proceeding.

The trial was enlivened during yesterday's session by frequent tilts between O'Leary and the Government's attorneys. At one point in the trial, while O'Leary was personally conducting the cross-examination of Arthur Wiener, one of the Government's witnesses, H. Snowden Marshall, special counsel for the prosecution, objected to his method of questioning.

"If you send me to jail for 100 years I have some rights in this court!" O'Leary yelled in a loud voice. "It is these injustices that are spreading Bolshevism throughout the country. It is not justice alone for myself that I am asking. I am trying to vindicate American justice."

Judge Hand ordered him to continue his cross-examination of the witness. The trial will be resumed this morning. The trial of Scott Nearing, which was to have begun yesterday, was adjourned until this morning. The trials of Herman Wessels and Albert Paul Fricke for treason were adjourned yesterday until Feb. 10 and 17, respectively.

PROHIBITION REPORT DENIED

No Protest by British Investors, Says Embassy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—At the British Embassy and the State Department denial was today made of the statement published this morning that the British Government had called the attention of the State Department "to the advisability of having the money in hand with which to compensate British investors for the losses occasioned to them by the destruction of the brewing and distilling business through prohibition."

Frank L. Polk, acting Secretary of State, said he had never heard of the matter. At the embassy the statement was made that no communication dealing with the effect of prohibition on British investments in the brewing and distilling business had been received.

Cormorant, Mine Sweeper, Launched

The Cormorant, the eighth mine sweeper to be built for the Government by the Todd Shipyards Corporation in Brooklyn, was launched yesterday at the Tebo Basin, foot Twenty-fourth Street, that borough. Marie Alliare, the fourteen-year-old daughter of John Alliare of the hull department of the yard, named the ship. Congressman-elect Thomas H. Cullen made a brief speech, and there was music by the employes' band. The Cormorant is a combination mine-sweeper, mine-layer, and coast defense vessel. She is 180 feet in length and is considered to be the most up-to-date craft of her class afloat.

Sale of Veilings Increases.

The sale of veilings has been increasing at such a rate as to make it doubtful whether they can be delivered at the specified time. Among the out-of-town buyers who have been in the market were many from Canada. The latter, it is said, have been and are still buying much. Duplicate orders from the local trade are very numerous, especially in the novelty lines. One of the firms said that buyers are placing orders of twice the normal size this year in the hope that they will be able to receive half of the amount ordered.

Trying to Cancel Orders.

Believing that the prices on the better grade of men's Spring hats will be lower, some of the retailers are inclined toward canceling orders. In most cases the cancelations are being refused by the manufacturers. As most of the material used in the Spring lines was bought on a rising market there is very little chance of lower prices. It was said, however, that there is likely to be a reduction on the Fall lines, possibly from 1[illegible] to 15 per cent.

Prices of Some Chemicals.

There has been a better export trade in chemicals, and the accumulated stocks of several products have been materially reduced, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Manufacturers are still unwilling to make concessions in price on account of the high cost of labor and raw materials. The market is in the hands of dealers, but buyers are holding out for lower prices on domestic business. There were no advances in prices. Ammonia alum, soda ash, calcium acetate and zinc chloride are lower; metallic mercury has been reduced $[illegible] a flask, and is now selling at $98, having gone below the $100 mark for the first time in many months; chloral hydrate is twenty cents a pound lower, owing to cheaper raw material. Wood alcohol is eight cents a gallon higher because of scarcity. Denatured alcohol is lower.

Among the new French model hats imported is one in which the material resembles old-fashioned haircloth. It is really a glossy batavia, says the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America. It is beautifully draped on a turban in contrasting shades of grass green and black. The top of the turban is round, and is plainly fitted with a swirled draping of haircloth, forming a tire brim. From beneath this draping a tiny, plainly fitted brim is discernible in grass green, from which dangles a glycerine ostrich pompom on the left side.

Lack of Vim to Gray Goods.

The lack of vim, which has been so much in evidence in the local gray goods market, was again noticeable yesterday. Neither buyers nor sellers showed much desire to trade, and such transactions as were reported were not for any large quantities nor for delivery beyond the next two or three weeks. In 39-inch printcloths second hands let out some 68-72s at 10¾ cents, while first hands sold 38½-inch 64-60s, 60-48s, and 64-56s at 9¼, 8[illegible], and 9 cents, respectively. Sales were also made of 56-60s, four-yard, sheetings at 13 cents, and of twills, sateens, and venetians to the clothing trade at fairly low prices.

Export Trade in Cut Glass.

Owing to the present labor conditions in the cut glass industry, it is very difficult for some of the manufacturers to fill the orders that are on hand. This season's business is far above the average, especially on the high-class decorated glassware, including plain and hand painted gold incrustations. The export trade has increased to a great extent, as very good business has been started with Japan, South America, China, and Australia.

Madeira Embroideries.

One of the firms selling Madeira embroideries stated yesterday that the price of these goods for Fall delivery will be increased possibly 25 per cent. When conditions were more normal, some of the firms booked large orders for future delivery, and this is now causing them much anxiety. In view of the present scarcity of merchandise very few orders are being solicited, as it is almost impossible in some instances to secure complete lines.

Travels of Some Socks.

How a case of men's woolen socks was footballed around the market until it reached its original owner was made known yesterday by one of the local jobbers. During October, 1917, the jobber bought the socks from a mill at $3.75 a dozen. He later sold them to a retailer for $4.50. In turn the retailer sold them to a traveling salesman for $6. After the armistice was signed the salesman offered them to the jobber at the price he paid for them, but the latter refused to take them.

To Help Tetxile Exports.

A committee representing the Textile Alliance Export Corporation will sail for Europe Feb. 8 on the steamship Adriatic. The party is composed of J. R. Munn, President of the corporation; Ralph Helmer, who will have charge of the company's interests in England; E. E. I. Martin, whose headquarters will be in Paris; T. A. Post, who will proceed to Brussels, and Victor E. Gitwillig, who will go to Scandinavia. Comprehensive lines of samples representing the woolen and cotton industry both in piece goods, yarn, knit goods, and blankets have been furnished by some of the principal manufacturers of these goods.

FURS SOLD FOR $1,000,000.

Pelts Offered by Alien Property Custodian Bring $90,000.

Receipts yesterday at the third day of the fur sale in Masonic Temple, Twenty-third Street, at Sixth Avenue, totaled about $1,000,000, making an approximate total for the three days of $3,000,000. The bidding yesterday was brisk and the prices well maintained. As a general thing yesterday's prices were about 1[illegible] per cent. higher than obtained last week at the fur sale in St. Louis.

A feature of the sale yesterday was the offering of thousands of pelts by the Alien Property Custodian. These attracted many bargain hunters, and at times the bidding for different lots was keen. The goods brought about $90,000. A large consignment of pelts, the property of [illegible] Ariowitsch, were sold through Joseph F. Guffey, Director of the Bureau of Sales of the Alien Custodian's office. The lot included 8,500 flying squirrel skins, fox, white, Japanese coneys, moles, mink, ermine, kolinsky, and astrachans.

The sale began with the offering of 37,749 kolinsky skins, and then in the order given these pelts were disposed of: Badger, 4,769; Persian lamb, 528; leopard, 38[illegible]; raccoon, 56,850, and skunk, 143,725. The range of prices of the day were: Kolinsky, 30 cents to $2; badger, 10 cents to $1.35; Persian lamb, $1.25 to $1.50; leopard, $3 to $17.25; raccoon, $1.30 to $[illegible], and skunk, $1.75 to $8.50.

At the sale today the largest item will be 73,200 mink skins. This will be the last offering of the day. Other offerings will include 34,179 marmot skins, 30,591 civet cat, 1,884 hair seal, 850 flying squirrel, 4,132 Japanese marten, 33,084 Japanese mink, and 450 stone marten.

The sale will continue tomorrow and Saturday, and the feature of the last day's sale will be the offering of bearskins, which include 23 polar and 27 grizzly pelts.

ASKS $1,000,000,000 TO HANDLE WHEAT

EUROPE'S PRESENT DEMANDS

Call for 165,000,000 Bushels More This Season—Enemy Countries Must Accept Other Grains.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Julius Barnes, head of the Food Administration's Grain Corporation, asked Congress today through the House Agriculture Committee to delegate broad powers to President Wilson as a means of making effective the Government's guaranteed price for the 1919 wheat crop. He asked for an appropriation of at least $1,000,000,000 with authority to borrow more if necessary on the credit and property of the Grain Corporation, and authority to buy and sell wheat and wheat products at home and abroad for cash or for credit. He also asked that to the President be given import and export embargo powers, authority to build or requisition storage facilities, and to license dealers, millers, and elevators, control over exchange trading, and authority to give preferential rail service on American railroads and steamships in transporting cereals to markets at home or abroad.

Mr. Barnes said of the present wheat crop that, after deducting 100,000,000 bushels of wheat for seed and 470,000,000 bushels for home consumption, there would be left available for export 348,000,000 bushels. He said of this amount 180,000,000 had been exported up to Feb. 1 last, and against this the following commitments were to be applied to wheat or wheat flour: European allies, 100,000,000 bushels; Commission for Relief in Belgium, 20,000,000; European neutrals, 15,000,000, and European relief, 30,000,000 bushels.

"These exclude," Mr. Barnes said "any contribution to enemy countries, which may be satisfied with rye and other grains, should we be short available wheat."

The Grain Corporation, the witness said, now has on hand the equivalent of 143,000,000 bushels of wheat to meet demands for the rest of this crop year, which is estimated at 165,000,000 bushels. Outside of the Grain Corporation's holdings there are apparent stocks in the country of about 100,000,000 bushels, he said, and an estimated amount still to come from the farms of not more than 150,000,000 bushels. He said that there was no indication that there would be a reduction in the price of bread.

Mr. Barnes said he believed it would be impossible to continue the present personnel of the Grain Corporation, as all of the officials desire to return to private enterprise. He expressed the belief that the Food Administration would be out of existence before the 1919 wheat harvest.

The witness said neither he nor Mr. Hoover had any form of legislation to urge and that suggestions he made were merely to cover the principles of operating methods that might be developed later.

INFLUENZA VIRUS FOUND.

Germ of Trench Fever Also Isolated by British Army Surgeons.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The viruses of trench fever, influenza, and some forms of nephritis have been isolated and identified, according to a report submitted to the Director General of the Army Medical Service in France by a number of army medical officers who have been investigating the causes of these diseases.

According to this official statement, the virus in each case has been proved to be a minute globular cell varying in size and behavior in the three types of disease.

Investigations which have been conducted have also resulted, it is believed, in the isolation of the germs of mumps, measles, and typhus, the causes of which have hitherto been obscure and the bacilli of which have never before been isolated.

OPPOSE LUXURY TAX.

Retail Clothiers' Association Will Protest to Congress.

The Retail Clothiers' Association of New York at its meeting yesterday in the Hotel McAlpine voted as an organization to send protests to the Senate and House of Representatives against the so-called luxury tax. A committee, headed by Maurice Brill, has already been to Washington to protest. Yesterday's action was the official expression of the entire body.

Mr. Brill said that the committee found Congressmen who favored the measure and yet did not have clear ideas as to what it contained or its effect if enforced. Other speakers were Otto H. Buehrman, Arthur Freeman, G. A. O'Reilly of the Irving National Bank, and Nathan Lemlein, the retiring President.

Says Bonds Were Christmas Gift.

The ownership of $100,000 Montana Coal and Iron Company bonds will be determined in a suit which went to trial yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Sears, brought by the Menasha Woodenware Company, a Wisconsin corporation, against Mrs. Madeline English Landeck. She testified that the late Charles R. Smith, President of the plaintiff corporation, who was an old friend of her family, gave her the bonds in Chicago as a Christmas present. Witnesses called by her attorney stated that the bonds belonged to Mr. Smith and were not the property of the woodenware corporation.

Color Card Innovation Promised.

At the annual meeting of the Textile Color Card Association, which was held yesterday morning, all of the officers and Directors of the previous year were re-elected for another term. It was announced that the 1919 Fall season card would probably be issued some time during next month, and would contain an innovation of great importance, which heretofore has never appeared on any card.

A Wide Field For Investment

In buying securities it is best to take a broad view of the investment field.

Such a view is afforded by our monthly bond circulars, which present a list of from fifty to seventy-five issues of high-grade bonds and short-term notes.

Our February offerings will be furnished upon request for AG-203

The National City Company

Main Office: National City Bank Building
Uptown Office: Fifth Ave. & 43rd St.
Correspondent Offices in 35 Cities

6½% YIELD ON FUNDS, PLUS SHARE IN PROFITS

These bonds offered are the securities of a well-established company. The business has been in successful operation for over sixty years.

The average net income for the past three years has amounted to over four times the interest on all bonds outstanding.

The Company manufactures a product for which the demand has for several years exceeded the supply.

Circular T-53 is descriptive of this offering and will be sent upon request.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Little Disturbed by Smelting Company Dividend Reduction—Steel Market News.

The stock market refused to become excited yesterday over the unexpected reduction of the American Smelting and Refining Company's quarterly dividend, and, while the metal issues naturally lost ground, the rank and file of railroad and industrial shares moved in irregular fashion. The turnover was about the same as the day before, and offerings in many prominent stocks were so easily absorbed as to leave them with gains at the end of the day. The general character of trading was the same as it had been for some time past, denoting unconcern on the part of the public in regard to particular developments in industry. For the copper stocks, of course, the Smelting dividend alteration was of much importance. Coming as it did immediately after producers had emphasized the large surplus stocks of metal, the cut called attention to possibilities of a similar occurrence among other dividends. In the second half of 1918 the American Smelting and Refining Company made a poor showing, but it had been believed rather generally that the 6 per cent. rate could be maintained. The Directors' action aroused the inference that they had recognized signs of no more than a moderate income for some time ahead, presumably during the period before the market is able to digest the copper produced with unusually high costs.

The relative stability of prices in the face of rather unfavorable news and developments this week has promoted study of underlying conditions. Comment of the market place is not devoid of opinions to the effect that much of the uncertainty and inactivity of the readjustment period has been met with indications of confidence by prominent stocks, and bonds as well. Every day which passes brings the interval of light buying of steel, copper, and manufactured goods the nearer to the day when the markets will open up, and it is safe to state that the time already passed over has not borne out the expectation of speculators in stocks who thought two months ago that quotations would suffer a heavy reaction.

In the steel trade the comment of some of the more prominent producers at least reflects a feeling that realization of the country's opportunity for meeting foreign competition will by and by overcome the hesitation now in evidence in many lines and rapidly bring about the renewal of sales abroad. This it is expected will tend to expand buying at home. Export sales, of course, will depend to a large extent on credit arrangements which the buyers can arrange in this country, and in connection with this it may be said that the good offices of bankers and business men who have gone abroad in recent weeks are expected to bring results at a not distant date. At the present time buying of steel continues light. The Iron Age reports that the output of pig iron in January was at the rate of about 106,500 tons per day, a total lower than was reported for any month last year except the first three, which were snowbound. The comparison indicates a substantial falling off of output, and this presumably runs parallel to operations at steel plants, yet comparisons are likely to seem more unfavorable than they actually are when one considers the background of pre-war production.

The call money market was somewhat firmer than the day before, the minimum being 4½ per cent., against 4 per cent. on Tuesday. The movement was not of a character to attract much attention, however, and the expectation of continued easy money for some time was in evidence.

Trading Irregular on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Trading on the Bourse was irregular today. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 65 francs. Exchange on London was at 25 francs 98 centimes, while the new 5 per cent. loan was quoted 91 francs 85 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

European Financing.

The suggestion is heard that in the financing of Europe, in which the United States is expected to play such a prominent part, one method to be adopted will probably be the listing of a considerable number of foreign bonds and stock issues on the New York Stock Exchange, not necessarily new issues, but some of those which now stand as collateral for the big loans arranged here before the entrance of this country into the struggle. In this respect, it is tentatively suggested that a syndicate might take over some of this collateral and attempt to distribute it here, using the Stock Exchange market as an adjunct to this distribution.

Puts and Calls.

On Tuesday, when American Smelting was quoted in the neighborhood of $70 a share, a "put" was sold on 100 shares at 3 points under the market. Yesterday the market was 3 points under the put and the happy purchaser was looking for more "papers." And there were plenty to be had. Among the attractive ones heard were puts on Tobacco Products, sold early in the day at about 77½, for 1⅛ per cent., good for thirty days. Steel privileges were offered at about 3 points either way, while Bethlehem Steel B papers were about 2 points "up" and 3 points "down."

Of the $75,492,450 due on Jan. 30 last in this district on account of the final payment on the Fourth Liberty Loan, all but $25,500 has been paid, according to the Federal Reserve Bank. There were 1,204 banks concerned in the operation, and payments were made in the following manner: Certificates of indebtedness, $15,944,500; advice of credit, $46,851,411; cash, $12,671,039, for a total of $75,466,950. The balance of $25,500 still due represents, according to the bank, merely the amount "yet to pass through its books."

Little Foreign Buying.

Despite the assertion of British steel producers that they are being undersold in their own market by foreign concerns there is little evidence in this country at least that any large orders for Great Britain, or for other foreign countries for that matter, are being filled by American companies. There is a domestic demand for steel but of rather small volume as compared with that which was evidenced last year at this time. But the foreign demand is practically nil. Now and then an order of fairly sizeable dimensions appears. Only yesterday it was announced that the French Government had placed an order for ship plates to the extent of about 1,300 tons. This, however, was an order which had been here for some time, having been allocated by the War Industries Board, but not actually negotiated for by the American producer until recently.

Readjustment Plans.

Although there is a disposition to accredit a great amount of readjustment of industry from a war to a peace basis, it is a fact that with many companies the actual plan for bringing about the change in operations has not even been undertaken as yet. This is mainly because it is difficult to have the foresight at the present time to direct the war-expanded facilities of a company into channels that will surely prove profitable under conditions of peace. In the case of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, for instance, plans for entering new fields are under consideration but as yet no definite step has been determined upon. The fact that readjustment of industries is progressing with caution is, however, taken to be one of the most hopeful signs of the future. A hasty reorganization would naturally be more liable to error which might entail real hardships and further readjustment at a later time when foreign producers were in a more secure position.

Equipment Orders.

In considering the position of the equipment companies somewhat too much stress has been laid on the uncertainty of the railroad situation of the United States. It was argued that conditions here were such as to preclude the placing of big orders by the carriers. The world market was quite disregarded. During most of the period of the war it appears the carriers in countries not directly related to the war have been cut off from their normal replacement and increase of equipment. As evidence of this the American Locomotive Company has received orders from the Argentina for twenty Pacific type locomotives and the South African Republic has also sent forth orders to the Montreal Locomotive Company, a subsidiary of the American Locomotive Company. One company is reported to be working now on an order for 150 locomotives to be sent to Italy.

After Foreign Trade.

The news that the United States through the Department of Commerce is campaigning for the development of American foreign trade was accepted with general approval in the financial district yesterday, although there were those who expressed a desire to see speedy legislation which would remove the restricting paragraphs from the existing laws and enable the American shipowner to operate on a more even scale with foreign shipowners.

The speculative element attributes the present quiet market to the fact that annual reports from leading industrial and other concerns are being awaited before traders commit themselves to either side. It is a recognized fact that many of the big concerns have written off their inventories as a safeguard against the uncertainties of the raw products markets during the readjustment period, and many of the traders want to see definite reports and be able to analyze them before they become active in the market again.

Food for Thought.

The reports of Director General of Railroads Hines's testimony before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce which stated that he favored the turning back of the carriers to private ownership as soon as possible unless the Government would entertain a proposal to improve them did not come as a surprise to bankers and railroad men. They have been convinced for some time that Mr. Hines would carry out the plans of his predecessor, and it is remembered that Mr. McAdoo in asking bankers for their opinion as to an extension of the span of Federal control for a period of five years was reported to have offered as an alternative an immediate return of the railroads under antebellum conditions.

Buy Dome Mine Stock.

A syndicate headed by J. S. Bache & Co. has purchased from the De Lamar estate its holdings of about 600,000 shares in the Dome Mines and Dome Extension Mines. This stock will not be offered for sale now but will be kept by the syndicate in anticipation of appreciation in the holdings. The Dome Mines have been shut down for some time, but it is expected that operations will be resumed in about three months, as labor conditions are said to be better in the Dominion than at the time the shutdown was ordered.

INTERBORO'S 1918 REPORT.

Gross Income Increased, but There Was Drop in Net.

The report of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for December, 1918, shows an increase in gross income of $41,296 to $3,782,224, compared with December, 1917, figures, while net after taxes decreased $449,9[illegible] to $1,214,939, and total income increased $70,804 to $1,941,269. Surplus after charges decreased $336,546 to $431,887.

The report for six months shows that gross increased $284,146 to $19,953,159, net after taxes decreased more than $2,600,000 to $5,945,434, and total income decreased $404,600 to $9,61[illegible],716. The item of surplus after charges amounted to $871,850, which was a decrease of $2,662,381 over the corresponding period in 1917.

To Issue Federal Tax Booklet.

The Bank of the Manhattan Company will issue a booklet on the new Federal tax law, which will be available for distribution as soon as the law is enacted. The booklet will contain the full text of the income tax, war excess profit tax, and other provisions of the Revenue act, together with explanatory summaries.

Dependence on Investments

Almost all successful Americans hope sometime to be more or less free from business cares and to benefit in later years from their early thrift and foresightedness. Financial freedom can ordinarily be gained only through good investments.

We invite attention to the extraordinary income now available from many securities that can be depended upon for years to come. At the moment $1,000 can be made to buy as large an income as $1,500 would a few years ago.

SMELTING DIVIDEND CUT TO 4 PER CENT.

Directors Reduce the Quarterly Rate from 1½ to 1 Per Cent.

WALL STREET IS SURPRISED

Directors of the American Smelting and Refining Company yesterday reduced the quarterly dividend disbursement on the common stock from 1½ per cent. to 1 per cent., thus placing the junior issue on a 4 per cent. annual basis, as compared with the regular 6 per cent. rate which has been in force since December, 1916. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the preferred. The common stock dividend is payable March 15 to holders of record Feb. 26 and the preferred dividend is payable March 1 to holders of record of Feb. 11.

The action of the Directors in cutting the common dividend had a pronounced effect on the stock market. Despite the unfavorable reports as to the copper industry which came from Washington the stock opened only a fraction below the close of 70¼ on Tuesday. From the opening to the close of yesterday's session the stock receded, the decline being hastened when the dividend cut was announced. The junior issue lost more than six points on yesterday's trading and ended the day at 63⅞, and eighth above the lowest point touched.

For some time there has been discussion of the possibility that the dividend on American Smelting and Refining common would be reduced, this being partly influenced by the fact that the last report for six months of 1918 showed a surplus over dividend requirements of only $113,872, as compared with the surplus for the full year preceding of $9,513,099. This fall in surplus was considered as a possible forerunner of a reduced dividend, but Wall Street was surprised yesterday when the cut was made. The anticipation was that the 6 per cent. yearly rate would apply to the last quarter, even though some of the amount might have to be made up from surplus, which is $27,069,266.

The stagnation which has prevailed in the sale of copper since the signing of the armistice, it is believed, has affected the company's earnings. A factor of greater influence in bringing about the dividend reduction, it was thought in some quarters, was the unpropitious outlook in the copper industry for the immediate future as indicated in reports from Washington, following conferences between the miners, the producers, and Secretary of Labor Wilson. It was asserted there that the surplus supply of copper amounted to about 1,000,000,000 pounds, and that there was practically no buying demand. European countries are flooded with surplus supplies of copper, and some of them have declared an embargo against the metal until the holdings of the Governments have been disposed of.

Part of the present difficulty that confronts the copper industry, it is believed, has been brought about by the continued high production which prevailed after the signing of the armistice, when demand was suddenly cut off. Recently many of the copper companies have adopted a policy of curtailing production, and some are now working at not more than 45 per cent. of capacity, with a further closing down of operations probable. There is also talk that the price of copper may fall well below the 23 cents which the larger producers are still asking. In such a case the companies, it is pointed out, would be facing a serious loss on the present supply of copper, which was mined under high cost conditions.

LITTLE DEMAND FOR COTTON

A slow and irregular movement characterized yesterday's cotton market opening. Near months were generally down, while the new crop options were unchanged to 10 points up at the outset. There was little demand and not much pressure of sales, and the market hung fire for a time, then moved up a little, on an average less than 20 points, and finally reacted, closing at net losses on the day of 15 to 25 points for the active months.

The labor situation again came close to dominating the market. The local ring traders professed not to be much impressed by the news of the day, but after some early short covering these traders generally were numbered among the sellers. Just where other big speculative centres stood yesterday would be difficult to say, chiefly for the reason that both buying and selling orders appeared to come from Liverpool and the South, and neither the buying nor the selling was in great volume.

Reports from Lawrence, as well as from cities and towns in Georgia and the Carolinas, spoke of spreading strikes, and while the news was not as bad as it was on the previous day, it was quite bad enough. At Lawrence some new mills shut down and there were several shutdowns in the South.

Advices from abroad indicate that the troubles there are in no wise diminished. However, there is an almost universal belief here that the spinners will, sooner or later, be forced to meet the demands of the operatives. Thus the consumption of cotton will be virtually unaltered in quantity, and this is the chief consideration of the cotton market. The same argument applies to the American labor situation, and this, no doubt, is one of the reasons, if not, in fact, the chief reason, for the only moderate influence of labor troubles in present cotton prices. It is admitted, of course, that current consumption will fall off, but it will be compensated later. The ginning report for January is expected to show a big decrease, and the February report will probably show a greater decline, but a good deal of ground should be recovered later.

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH, Trustee

The Philadelphia Company was incorporated in Pennsylvania in 1884. It owns or controls an extensive gas producing and distributing system in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, furnishing the greater part of the entire gas supply of the city of Pittsburgh. It also controls, through stock ownership, the electric railway system in Pittsburgh and vicinity. It also controls the Duquesne Light Company (through ownership of its entire common capital stock) which does substantially all the commercial electric light and power business in Pittsburgh and in the greater part of Allegheny and Beaver Counties, Pennsylvania.

The Notes are to be a direct obligation of the Philadelphia Company and are to be collaterally secured by pledge of 200% in par value of that Company's First Refunding and Collateral Trust Mortgage 5% Bonds.

The properties and securities covered by these Notes are valued at more than $101,000,000, or over twice the entire $41,931,000 funded debt of the Company, including these Notes.

These $10,000,000 Notes and $9,794,000 Debenture Bonds (ratably secured under the First Refunding and Collateral Trust Mortgage) aggregating $19,794,000 are thus secured through a first lien on properties and securities valued at more than $49,000,000, or over twice the amount of this indebtedness.

Net Income of the Philadelphia Company after deducting Operating Expenses, Taxes, and Depreciation for the last 3 fiscal years ended March 31, and the 12 months ended December 31, 1918, compare with Fixed Charges as follows:

Net Income	$4,852,056	$5,829,173	$6,245,74[illegible]	$6,433,983	$7,031,436
Fixed Charges	1,940,547	1,906,825	1,796,49[illegible]	2,131,868	2,097,991
Balance	$2,911,509	$3,922,348	$4,449,24[illegible]	$4,302,115	$4,933,445

Present Annual Fixed Charges including interest on these $10,000,000 Notes are $2,204,050. Net income for the 12 months ended December 31, 1918, was $7,031,436 or more than three times these charges.

Sinking Funds for the retirement of the Company's funded debt aggregate $789,000 per year, of which $400,000 per year must be applied to retire these Notes by purchase at not above the redemption price or to call by lot, if not so purchaseable.

The Company has an uninterrupted dividend record from 1885 to 1919 with the exception of the year 1897, and its average annual dividends on the Common Stock have been over 6%, which is the rate now being paid on $42,943,000 Common Stock.

The Personal Side of a Trust Company

IN considering the Trust Company as executor, many persons imagine that such relationship precludes the personal touch so likely to be desired by relatives and other beneficiaries. This is far from true.

On assuming the duties of executor this company at once establishes the closest possible relationship with those interested through an executive officer, who makes it his business to acquaint himself as fully as consistent with the many and varied details involved.

His services are thenceforth highly individual and personal. He is responsible to this Company, which in turn is responsible to the estate and to the Court.

Trust Company executorship costs no more than individual. Let us explain some of the many advantages.

The undersigned Trustee has in its possession a majority of the stock, both preferred and common, of the following companies:

New Orleans Railway & Light Company,
The Memphis Street Railway Company,
Knoxville Railway & Light Company,
Birmingham Railway, Light & Power Company,
Houston Lighting & Power Company,
Little Rock Railway and Electric Company.

This stock is pledged and is being held to secure the payment of the 5-6% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the American Cities Company.

Several of the above-named companies have sent out notices of annual meetings of stockholders to be held in the near future. Until an event of default happened under the Indenture securing said bonds the American Cities Company had the right to demand the voting of this stock at such meetings, but said right has been forfeited by the happening of an event of default as defined in Section 3 of Article Six of said Indenture. Therefore, notice is given to the bondholders that any suggestions from them relative to the voting of said stock will be considered by the Trustee, and such action will be taken by the Trustee upon demand of the requisite number of bondholders, as is authorized under the Indenture, upon such bondholders complying with the terms and conditions thereof. Prompt action on the part of the bondholders is necessary, as time presses.

SAYS CITY IS PAST LEGAL DEBT LIMIT

TELLS OF VALUE BOOSTING

Done in Mayor Gaynor's Time, He Says—He Favors Sesselberg Taxation Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—New York City has exceeded its constitutional limit, Robert E. Dowling, prominent New York real estate operator, told the Assembly Cities Committee this afternoon, the outstanding funded debt of the city, he said, was nearer 20 per cent. than 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of its taxable realty that the Constitution permits.

The members of the committee sat up in amazement when Mr. Dowling spoke. He said that the violation of the constitutional prohibition against reckless piling up of public debts had been made possible by arbitrary and criminal boosting of real estate valuations in the city for purposes of taxation.

"Within the last few days," said Mr. Dowling, "I have been offered property assessed at $1,150,000 for $490,000, and I will give you the address of the property if you want me to. That is merely by way of illustrating how this arbitrary boosting of values has worked.

Gaynor Began It, He Says.

"The thing began with Mayor Gaynor. He wanted to complete a certain portion of the subway system and found that the city could not, within the debt limit, secure the money that was needed for the purpose. Mayor Gaynor is dead, and I hate to say it, but what he did cannot possibly be defended. Without the slightest attempt at concealment he issued peremptory orders to the municipal Tax Commissioners to increase real estate assessment already made by $650,000,000 to enable the city to borrow $65,000,000 more than it had a right to borrow. No other Mayor could have done that and got away with it and, as I told Mayor Hylan some little time ago, if any other Mayor tried to, we will do our best to have him removed."

Mr. Dowling was speaking in favor of two bills introduced by Assemblyman Henry Sesselberg of Richmond. One limits the taxation on real estate in New York City to 2 per cent. The present tax rate in New York is from $2.36 to $2.40 on each $100 of valuation. The other bill does away with the indebtedness exemption in the personal property tax law.

At the opening of the hearing, Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward J. McGoldrick, told the committee that the New York City authorities were preparing a series of measures dealing with taxation and would like to have action on the Sesselberg bills deferred until all could be considered together. Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig are both opposed to a real estate tax rate fixed by law, but it is understood that the Sesselberg bills will be passed and sent to Mayor Hylan for his approval.

Mr. Dowling urged that that course be adopted. He said that William R. Hearst, who is a member of the committee appointed by Mayor Hylan to devise a scheme for raising new revenues, had warned him against having the Sesselberg bills presented to the Legislature.

Up to Hylan, He Declares.

"Send the bill down to the Mayor and see whether he has the nerve to veto it," said Mr. Dowling. "It is up to him. He says he believes in the principle embodied in this bill, but does not see where the money with which to run the government of the city is to come from if you make it a law."

Mr. Dowling said that the lawmakers should not permit the Mayor's apprehensions to deter them from enacting the Sesselberg bills.

"The only way to limit the expenditures of the city," he continues, "is by curtailing the power of taxation. If this Legislature does not put restraint on the Board of Estimate it will make no difference what other taxes you may provide. If New York City should get $50,000,000 out of the proposed new State income tax it would make no difference. They would just spend that much more and charge up the rest against real estate."

Mr. Dowling drew a gloomy picture of the condition of the mortgage market in New York, due, he said, almost entirely to the fear of constantly rising tax rates.

"The savings banks and insurance companies have their safes filled with mortgages on which they cannot collect," he said. "If the banks tried to collect they would go to the wall. Unless you do something to correct the situation you will not, as now, have a few people coming here and speaking with great restraint before you, but you will have a furious mob marching on the capital to make clamorous demand for justice."

Mr. Dowling and other speakers who appeared before the committee said that mortgages were being called every day and were not being renewed except at greatly reduced figures. The committee was told that owing to prohibitive taxation more than to war conditions this had become the fixed policy of the big mortgage corporations, and that it would work incalculable hardship on persons of moderate means who were trying to buy homes.

Regarding the other bill, which takes out of the personal tax law the provision which permits persons subject to this tax claim indebtedness as an offset, Mr. Dowling said it was this provision which made the swearing off of personal taxes such an easy thing and that as a result men with many millions of personal property in New York City escaped personal property taxes entirely. Real estate, Mr. Dowling said, suffered in proportion.

"Under the present law," he said, "it is not possible to collect personal taxes from any one whose credit is good. All he has to do is to take a certain part of his hoarded securities, put them up as collateral for a loan equal in amount to the assessment against him, and then go before the Tax Board and swear off."

Former Judge Walter H. Knapp, President of the State Tax Commission, appearing before a sub-committee of the Joint Legislative Committees on Taxation this afternoon, advocated a State tax on all incomes, regardless of source or size, to be divided between the State and the locality where collected. The only possible exception, Commissioner Knapp said, might be income from Federal bonds which probably could not be taxed in this State. Such a tax, supplemented by a tax on business and on tangible personal property, would tend to materially ease the tax burden on real estate, in his opinion.

Senator Julius Miller of Manhattan introduced a bill today providing that 50 per cent. of the tax collected under the inheritance tax law should revert to the locality where raised. Under the present law the State takes all. Figures assembled by Senator Miller show that $37,493,112 was raised in revenue from this source in New York City between 1913 and 1917. He said his proposal was fair and that the revenue was needed to make up for the loss in excise revenues.

MIDVALE NET PROFITS DROP.

$5,023,997 for Last Quarter, Compared with $10,882,037 in 1917.

The Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company for three months ended Dec. 31, 1918, reports net profits after charges and war taxes of $5,023,997, as compared with profits of $7,793,627 for the preceding quarter, and profits of $10,882,037 for the December quarter of 1917. The profits of the quarter just passed were equivalent to $2.51 a share on the capital stock. In the preceding quarter the profits were equivalent to $3.89 a share, and in the December quarter of 1917 they were $5.44 a share.

As compiled from the company's quarterly reports the net profits for the year 1918 are indicated to have been $29,163,408 after charges and war profits taxes or equivalent to $14.58 a share on the stock. This compares with net profits of $34,235,503 for 1917, this amount being equivalent to $17.12 a share. No figures are available as to the reserves for Federal taxes.

DIFFER ON IRON OUTLOOK.

"No Buying," Says Iron Age; "Improved Greatly," Says Review.

Divergent views as to indications in the steel industry are expressed by The Iron Age and The Iron Trade Review. The former holds that no buying movements in either domestic or foreign trade are visible, and the latter, contends that the last week has seen the outlook brightened by a better sentiment in trade circles and heavier bookings. The Iron Age says:

"Though needs on all sides are admitted, no one seems to discover how to take the initiative to establish conditions attractive enough to result in a deal. There is every likelihood that the world's mental sickness following the shock of stopping the war will show no betterment before Spring.

"Further slight reductions in ocean freight rates are a help in the export outlook, but transportation costs, four and five times the former normal charges, lead to expectations of other downward readjustments. Pig iron sellers find their prices still higher than those quoted by English furnaces."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Sentimentally the first real signs of improvement since the adjustment process began have developed in the iron and steel market during the last week. It must be emphasized, however, that the tangible results of this improvement in the way of heavier bookings are not important. Such improved bookings are reflected, for instance, in somewhat better buying of steel bars by some of the Eastern jobbers, by better specifications all around of wire products, &c. From a statistical standpoint the situation has improved greatly. Contraction of mill operations seems to have reached the point where it more nearly balances against the flow of miscellaneous new business plus the tonnage being ordered against the blacklogs previously accumulated."

Convicted for Unpaid Income Tax.

Seymour L. Rau, a life insurance broker, was convicted in the Federal District Court yesterday on an indictment charging him with failing to make any income tax return for 1916 and 1917. The defendant's income, it was said, made him liable for a tax for the two years of more than $300. Prosecutor George M. Curtis, Jr., stated that the conviction was the first one obtained on such a charge. Federal Judge Knox will sentence Rau tomorrow.

SEES NATION BEGINNING FINANCIAL RECOVERY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Definite evidences of the beginning of financial recuperation following abnormal war conditions were set forth today by the Federal Reserve Board in a review of the forthcoming February reserve bulletin. These evidences are: Increase of bank balances at financial centres, a tendency toward lower rates for money, lessening of the amount of paper held by Federal Reserve and Member Banks, inflow of gold coin and gold certificates at banks, indicating greater confidence in the financial situation, and lessened demand for money, and decline in the volume of Federal Reserve notes outstanding, demonstrating the elasticity of the Federal Reserve system.

The board deplored evidences of the relaxation of wartime economies, saying that the industries of the United States and other countries would soon need quantities of capital, and that it behooved Americans to continue to be thrifty and pile up reserves of credit.

"The return of active production and consumption is being retarded," the board observed, "by high expenses of production."

Despite big exports of foods and raw materials in December, the board believes that "we are still facing the problem of finding or making a market for our manufactured goods in foreign countries, in which we can hardly hope to make the desired success so long as prices continue upon a level higher than that existing in other countries." It also says:

"Those countries which first succeed in readjusting their costs of production and restoring their industry to a normal level of values will be the most successful in developing their exports and controlling the markets of consuming nations the world over."

MAY MOVE TO WASHINGTON.

Bankers Vote on New Headquarters for Association.

Members of the American Bankers Association are receiving copies of a referendum asking their expression of opinion on a resolution adopted by the Administrative Committee on Jan. 24, that the headquarters of the association be removed as soon as possible to Washington, D. C. While New York bankers will probably remain apathetic on the question it is believed in some quarters that the replies from out-of-town bankers will not favor the plan by an overwhelming majority.

The association has had its headquarters in New York for more than thirty years, and it is believed in some quarters that opposition to the plan will follow. The matter has been brought up at this time as the result of the establishment recently of a Washington office of the State Bankers Association.

PROPOSALS.

CITY HALL.

New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 8628, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of the bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $600,000.00 in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. The bonds shall be paid for in cash as fast as said bonds can be signed and delivered. All bonds will be delivered within thirty days from the opening of said bids. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Further particulars and information will be furnished on application to the Public Belt Railroad Commission or the undersigned. The final opinion of Wood & Oakley, lawyers, Chicago, Ill., as to the legality of this issue will be furnished to the successful bidder if so desired.

A. G. RICKS,

Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans.

Total Authorized Issue, $25,000,000

Dated March 1, 1919 Due March 1, 1922

Interest payable March 1 and September 1, in New York and Chicago. Redeemable in whole or in part at the option of the Company at 101 and accrued interest upon sixty (60) days' published notice. Coupon notes in denomination of $1,000, registrable as to principal only, and exchangeable for fully registered notes of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 denomination.

CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

These notes will be a direct obligation of the Southern Railway Company and are to be secured by deposit with the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, as Trustee, of $43,500,000, par value Southern Railway Company Development and General Mortgage 4% Bonds which are secured by a general mortgage upon practically the entire property of the Company.

The proceeds of this note issue will be applied toward the retirement of the $25,000,000 Two-Year 5% Gold Notes maturing March 2, 1919, and secured by the same collateral, which will be pledged for this issue.

In the ten and one-half year period ended Dec. 31, 1917, the surplus earnings of the Southern Railway Company over all charges for interest and rentals aggregated $66,364,517.91. During this period the company distributed $10,800,000 in cash dividends, the remaining $55,564,517.91 being devoted to the improvement of the property and to strengthening the company's financial position.

Under Federal control during the calendar year 1918 the railway operating income as reported by the United States Railroad Administration was $29,291,869.72. The basic standard return to the Company under the Federal Control Act is $18,728,536.63 subject to the Company's pending claims for allowances in excess of this figure. Other corporate income for last year is estimated at $2,200,000. After providing for estimated fixed charges and war taxes for the year 1918 aggregating $15,200,000, the Company also retired equipment trust obligations amounting to $3,296,000.

Under private ownership for 5½ years ended Dec. 31, 1917, the balance after payment of all interest charges and rentals averaged $7,851,480.62. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1917, the balance after payment of all interest charges and rentals amounted to $14,037,415.

These notes are offered if, when and as issued, strictly subject to prior sale and advance in price.

AUTO SHOW'S SALES BREAKS ITS RECORD

Many Predict Demand During Coming Year Will Be Greatest in Industry's History.

DISCUSS AIRCRAFT ENGINES

Automotive Engineers Are Told Engine Development in Air Service Will Not Greatly Affect Autos.

There was no falling off yesterday in the large attendance that has made the present automobile show in Madison Square Garden and the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory so great a success. More orders for quick delivery of new cars were taken than on any preceding day and this eagerness on the part of the buying public indicated what so many men in the industry have predicted that the coming year will witness the largest demand for motor cars in the history of the industry.

A prominent engineer who has been attending the show during the week said, after a careful comparison of the leading makes of 1919, that the general average for what might be termed the composite car of the year ran toward a wheelbase of 120 inches, six-cylinder motor L head and bloc cast, with a bore of approximately 3¼ inches and stroke of 4½ inches, tires 34 by 4 inch and the price $2,128. This average does not include the Ford car and the price was reached by averaging the values of the chassis models and not the number of cars produced. The average car of the year has a water cooled motor, horsepower rating of 33, centrifugal pump equipment, lubrication by the combination splash and pressure system, single ignition being used, the clutch of the disc type bring part of the unit power plant, the gearset of the ordinary three speed selective type and the drive being through a propeller shaft to a spiral bevel pinion and ring gear to the floating rear axle.

One of the newer cars in the Armory is the Phianna, of which a chassis, showing every detail of mechanism and a limousine fitted with a custom-built body, are shown. The design of the car throughout is aimed at simplicity and sensibility. Extra long cantilever springs are used to insure the utmost comfort in riding and the rear axle construction, equipped with dual torque arms and triple compensating service brakes, is a great prevention to skidding on wet pavements. The Phianna is shown by the Morton W. Smith Company.

The Dort exhibit in the Garden exhibition hall includes a stripped chassis, showing the simplicity of the four-cylinder engine; a five-passenger sedan finished in blue and green, and a roomy five-passenger open touring car. The Auburn cars, close by, show a new body design, the bevel edge body having been adopted this year. The feature of the new models is the four-passenger sport car, finished in dark blue.

All of the Jordan cars in the Armory have aluminium bodies. It is more costly than other material. Edward S. Jordan, President of the company, who has been at the show throughout the week, says that the saving of weight in the use of aluminium means economy in fuel and tire consumption while contributing to the neat appearance of the closed models.

The Haynes cars, of which four attractive open and closed models are shown, are practically unaltered from the standard models, the body design revealing refinements in graceful, straight lines. Aluminium is being used for the bodies this year, the first time for almost four years. The newest type is the roomy seven-passenger touring car, fitted with wire wheels, an extra but very neat equipment. The other three models are the "fourdore" roadster, sedan, and coupe. The Haynes is one of the few makes providing both 6 and 12 cylinders for the same sized chassis. The 6-cylinder motor is in more general use, but there is a steadily increasing demand for the 12-cylinder type.

Many members of the Society of Automotive Engineers, which is holding its annual session in the Engineering Societies' Building, attended the show in the evening. At the afternoon conference Henry M. Crane, Chief Engineer of the Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation, discussed the possible effect of aircraft engine development in automobile practice. He said that airplane engine design will not have any great effect upon automobile engineering, at least not in cars for passenger and freight service. With racing cars the conditions more resemble those peculiar to airplanes, but any material reduction in weight of motor car engines would be at the expense of durability and ease of construction and repair. Indirectly the motor car industry will profit by many of the lessons and experiences obtained during the war with airplane construction and operation.

Lieut. Col. Herbert W. Alden, who has recently returned from overseas, read an interesting paper on the war efficiency of tanks.

"It is doubtful if any new means of warfare has had so hard a time getting started and securing its just consideration as has the tank," he said. "Thanks, however, to its inherent worth it has steadily advanced and demonstrated its value, and now is universally accepted as an indispensable arm of the service. Its future is secure. Its development has only just begun, and it is still in its infancy.

"Nearly all of the tank mortalities resulting from direct artillery hits have occurred when tanks were standing still, either awaiting orders or unable to move for mechanical reasons. Thus it has been demonstrated very conclusively that against artillery fire the best protection of the tank is its own speed and mobility, and not the armor which it carries."

Edward S. Jordan, President of the Jordan Motor Car Company, entertained his sales force at dinner in the evening at the Hotel Claridge, and the Cutting-Larson Company, distributers for the Oldsmobile cars, gave its annual dealers' dinner at Reisenweber's. C. H. Larson, Chairman of the Show Committee, presided.

SAVINGS FUNDS INCREASING.

A rapidly increasing return of funds to the savings banks of the city is shown in figures compiled by the Savings Bank Section of the American Bankers' Association. During the months of November and December last the increase totaled $42,645,193, whereas the first twenty days of last month showed an increase of $32,458,449. In connection with this the association says:

"While the increase in savings since Nov. 1, 1918, seems unusual, still, when compared with the figures at the time America entered the war, there is not shown any net increase as the result of the addition of depositors' interest on the books of the banks. Most of the increase from Nov. 1, 1918, to Jan. 20, 1919, was reported as returned hoarded funds, and not normal increase."

$25,000,000 SWIFT ISSUE.

Six Per Cent. Debentures Will Be Payable on Aug. 15, 1921.

Swift & Co. dispatches received in this city yesterday announced the completion of arrangements to issue $25,000,000 6 per cent. debenture notes to be dated Feb. 15, 1919, and to mature Aug. 15, 1921.

The advices from Chicago quoted L. A. Carton, Treasurer of the company, as saying that the issue will be underwritten by the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, and the Merchants Loan and Trust Company. It was also reported that the first-named institution will manage the syndicate.

REPORT GAIN IN SALES.

The report, just issued, of Montgomery, Ward & Co. for the year of 1918 shows net profits after allowances for war taxes amounting to $4,390,181, which was equivalent after the deduction of preferred dividends to $12.78 a share on the 300,000 shares of outstanding common stock of no par value. In the preceding year $12.60 was earned on the same stock. Total sales during the year amounted to $76,166,848, which compared with $73,512,645 in 1917, $62,044,336 in 1916, and $49,308,587 in 1915.

War taxes are shown to have increased in the year to $2,000,000 from $1,289,594 in the preceding year.

FORM LIQUIDATION PLAN.

Proposal of Stockholders' Committee of American Malting Company.

A committee for the first preferred stock holders of the American Malting Company has announced a plan of liquidation of the company and the formation of a new company to be known as the American Grain Products Company. Under the terms of the offer to be made by the new company the first preferred share holder of the old company will receive approximately $30 in cash, and may subscribe to the extent of 70 per cent. of his holdings in new stock of the American Grain Products Company. The subscription price of $36 a share is to be paid by the company.

The organizers of the new company will receive 5,500 shares of the 55,000 shares of stock, and agree to take over so much of the remainder as shall not be subscribed for by the stockholders of the old company to the extent of providing a cash capital of at least $1,500,000. The stock of the new company is without par value, and its book value is figured at $36 a share. As about 90 per cent. of the preferred stock holders voted not long ago in favor of liquidation it is believed that the plan will be received with favor.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices were firm at the close of the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, though final quotations were below earlier high levels. The feature of the session was the heavy depression in smelters, due to the unexpected reduction in the dividend from 6 to 4 per cent. The pressure in this issue caused declines in the other copper issues, which closed fractionally lower, recovering in the final moments of the session. Trading was in small volume and professional in character.

INSTRUCTION.

AUTOMOBILE MECHANICS

TRAINED for EXPERT GARAGE WORK.

In addition to our regular day and evening shop and driving course, we now offer, with new quarters and equipment, a practical course in Automobile Repair work.

Our intensive, individual instruction gives in four months, eight hours a day, a knowledge that would otherwise take years to secure. Repair work will be given on cars that must see actual service.

The instruction includes the use of machine tools and lathe work necessary to make tools and repair parts. It is the only school in New York where repairs are actually made, as well as taught.

Check your interest, mail coupon and further particulars will be sent.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

One of the most important of the many big realty deals which have taken place in the financial district during the last few weeks was closed yesterday when the Postal Life Building at 35, 37, and 39 Nassau Street and 56 and 58 Liberty Street was sold to strong financial interests reported to be the National Bank of Commerce.

The property consists of a fifteen-story office building on the southwest corner of Liberty and Nassau Streets, adjoining the National Bank of Commerce on the north and the Guaranty Trust Company on the east. It is opposite the large site recently purchased by the United States Government for the new Federal Reserve Bank and is directly across the street from the Mutual Life Building.

The consideration was about $2,500,000, according to George R. Read & Co., who sold the property for the Incas Realty Company, a holding corporation controlled by the Postal Life Insurance Company, represented by Senator Charles C. Lockwood. Title to the property will be taken in the name of the City Real Estate Company, represented by Walter Lindner of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

The buying in the financial district started with the purchase by the Federal Government of practically all of the block bounded by Nassau Street, Liberty Street, William Street, and Maiden Lane. It was followed closely by the acquisition of 74 Broadway by the Central Union Trust Company.

Other recent transactions include the purchase of the old insurance building, corner of Pine and William Streets, by the Bank of America; the purchase by the National City Company of the old Mechanics and Metals Bank building, at 52 Wall Street; the purchase of 42 Broadway by a large steamship company; the purchase of additional land at Fulton and Ann Streets by the National Park Bank; the purchase of the J. & W. Seligman building, at South William Street, by Wilcox, Peck & Hughes, marine insurance; the leasing of the banking rooms in the old Central Trust Building, at 54 Wall Street, to J. & W. Seligman, and the reported acquisition of additional land for the Bankers Trust Company.

The Postal Life owned no real estate until several years ago, when it took over the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society, with the approval of the State Department of Insurance. In this transaction it acquired all of the old Provident Savings real estate. Later it effected a big trade by which it disposed of the property 80 and 82 Wooster Street, 3 East Seventeenth Street, the property southeast corner of 106th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, and an office building at Atlanta, Ga., and secured the new insurance and banking building, 511 Fifth Avenue, southeast corner of Forty-third Street, which is now occupied by the Postal Life Insurance Company.

The Postal Life two weeks ago disposed of a loft building at 140-144 West Twenty-second Street, to Frederick Brown. Two other important realty transactions are now under negotiation by the company, and if they go through it will dispose of practically all of its remaining real estate except its home office building, 511 Fifth Avenue.

During the last two months strong financial interests have made bids for the Postal Life Building, at 511 Fifth Avenue.

Times Square Lease Involving About $3,000,000 Pending.

Negotiations are pending for a long lease of one of the most valuable corners in the upper Times Square section involving a total rental of more than $2,500,000 and with the proposed improvement will exceed the three-million-dollar mark.

The transaction involves the seven-story structure on the block front on the north side of Fifty-first Street, extending from Broadway over to Seventh Avenue, which has been occupied by Healey & Co., auto and coach builders, for a number of years and whose tenancy expires next May.

The property has been owned by Henry A. C. Taylor for many years, and has a frontage of 100.6 feet on Broadway, 161.9 feet on Fifty-first Street, and 100.5 feet on Seventh Avenue, with a northerly line measuring 166.3 feet.

It is understood that the lease is for twenty-one years, at about $65,000 per annum, with the privilege of renewal. Frederick Winant, agent for the property, refused to discuss the transaction yesterday.

Sanatorium for Ninetieth Street.

Three four-story dwellings, occupying a combined area 60 by 100.2, at 48, 50, and 52 West Ninetieth Street, were purchased yesterday by an unnamed physician, who will convert the property into a sanatorium. Title to the property is held by the M. K. L. Realty Corporation, Edwin A. Richard, and Sarah Spingarn, who also sold another house in the same block for conversion into small apartments. The M. Morganthau Company acted as brokers.

Private Dwelling Sales.

The four-story private dwelling on a lot 20 by 100 at 44 West Ninetieth Street was sold by Mrs. Sarah Spingarn to a buyer who intends to alter the house into small suites. The property was held at $30,000. M. H. Tropauer negotiated the deal.

I. Randolph and Edward Jacob sold the four-story and basement dwelling on a lot 30 by 34 at 519 West End Avenue, southwest corner of Eighty-fifth Street, held at $40,000, to the Clare Realty Company. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale.

Walter M. Wechsler, attorney, purchased a four-story house on lot 20 by 102.2 at 110 West Eighty-sixth Street, from Sophie Sterns. L. J. Phillips & Co. negotiated the sale of the property, which will be remodeled into small apartments.

Esther Perelman has sold to a Mr. Lewine 312 and 314 East Eighth Street, a six-story new law house, arranged for five families on a floor and containing four stores on a plot 50 by 100 between Avenues B and C.

Brown Buys Heights Apartment.

Frederick Brown, operator, purchased the five-story apartment at 562 West 191st Street, on plot 51 by 98, from the Ardshane Realty Company through Nehring Brothers. The property, held at $70,000, houses twenty families.

Resale in West Harlem.

Samuel Kaufman, a retired merchant and heavy holder of Manhattan real estate, bought the six-story elevator apartment on a plot 50 by 100 at 230 West 113th Street, near Seventh Avenue, which was bought earlier in the week by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum from the Metropolitan Company. The house is arranged for two families on a floor and shows an annual rental of $11,000.

Holding Company Buys Three Bronx Flats Held at $150,000.

The Morgenstein Brothers Syndicate sold to the Tiffany Holding Corporation 2,027, 2,023, and 2,015 Monterey Avenue, three five-story new law tenements each on a plot 50 by 100. They show a gross rental of about $24,000 and were held at $150,000.

The Bronx Market.

The six-story elevator apartment, 85 by 125, at the northwest corner of Intervale Avenue and 163d Street, was bought for cash by Charles Siegel Levy from the E. R. A. Realty Company, D. H. Jackson, President. The deal, which involves $175,000, was arranged through L. J. Greenberger and A. D. Phelps & Damiane as brokers.

The Union Chemical Glassware Company, Inc., purchased from James F. Walker, son of the President of the Colonial Bank, two five-story apartments on plots 25 by 100 each at 2,516 to 2,520 Grand Concourse and Boulevard near Fordham Road, held at $150,000. The sale was made by A. H. Levy.

Arthur Wolff and Paul L. Loewenwarter, executors of the estate of William Ollendorf, sold the three-story brick dwellings on a lot 19.86 by 96 each at 2,393 and 2,395 Walton Avenue to Cohn & Pittman, operators. Samuel Cowen negotiated the sale.

A client of Isaac Hyman has purchased the two five-story buildings at 733 and 735 East 152d Street, adjoining the corner of Jackson Avenue, each on lot 25 by 120. The annual rental is about $6,000. The property was held at $40,000.

Frederick Brown has bought from Charles Colgate of Italy the thirty-family five-story apartment house at 1,034 Franklin Avenue, on a plot 54 by 201, near 165th Street. It was held at $70,000. Robert M. Bush & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

Brooklyn.

Samuel Berger bought the thre-story frame store and flats on plot 20 by 87 at 4,200 Fort Hamilton Parkway from the Lawyers Mortgage Company. A. J. Murphy was the broker.

The three-story brick store and apartment building located on a plot 110 by 20 on Flatbush Avenue, 127.10 feet north of Albemarle Road, has been sold by Gertrude Langenwalter to an investing client. The sale was negotiated by the McInerny-Klinck Realty Co.

Charles W. Martyn, executor, sold to Mrs. Dora Mikkelson the two-story and basement dwelling at 276 Tenth Street. Edward L. White leased for a term of years the garage at 142 Eighth Street. Both deals were made by F. C. Sauter.

Canadian Sells Westchester Property.

George Clarke of Toronto, Canada, sold his property at the corner of King Street and Lincoln Avenue, Rye, to Mrs. F. H. Bontecou of Manhattan. The property is improved with a large residence, gardener's cottage, and many outbuildings. An additional 100 acres, owned by Mr. Clarke, are leased by Mrs. Bontecou with an option to purchase. The entire property is held at $200,000, and the deal was negotiated by Fish & Marvin.

Mrs. F. C. Clifford purchased a plot on the corner of Monroe and Harwood Avenues in the Philipse Manor section of Tarrytown from the estates of Tappan Zee, Inc., through the Robert E. Farley organization.

Studebaker Company Takes Manhattan Lease.

The Studebaker Corporation of America has leased for its service station, for a term of twenty-one years, the new fireproof steel and concrete building at 217-223 West Seventy-seventh Street, adjoining the theatre at Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street. The building, which has been under construction for nearly two years, has just been completed by the Jay Estate, owner of the property. It has six full floors, and represents the latest improvements in service building construction and equipment. It is unusual in that it has light on all four sides. The Studebaker Company has subleased the large building recently constructed for its service station and assembling rooms at Anable Avenue, Long Island City, to the National Casket Company. S. Osgood Pell & Co., represented by G. M. Mabie, were the brokers.

Commercial Leases.

Henry Lehman of the Lehman's Publishing Company has leased the store at 138 West Thirty-second Street from the Gilsey Estate for a term of years. Henry Brady negotiated the deal.

Henry M. Rosenberg leased the store at 3,786 Broadway from Melville H. Bearns for a five-year term. Porter & Co. were the agents.

L. Wagner leased the northwest corner of Third Avenue and 170th Street, recently purchased by the Isear Realty Corporation, operator, for a net rental of $30,500. Louis Silverman was the broker.

The Tidewater Electric Company leased the store and basement at 44 Park Place for a term of years through George R. Read & Co., with the Potter Estate.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Pressure is generally low tonight, except in the Central Valleys, the Northwest, and the Pacific States, but with very irregular distribution, and since Tuesday night there were rains in the Southern States, light, scattered snows in the lake region and the Northwest, light rains and snows in Pennsylvania and New Jersey and northeastward, and rains and snows over the Northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains; elsewhere the weather was fair.

Temperature changes were not of consequence, except in portions of the Central West and Southwest, where it is considerably warmer.

Rain will fall Thursday morning along the South Atlantic Coast, and snow Thursday night or Friday in the upper lake region, but with these exceptions there will be no precipitation of consequence in this forecast district during the next two days. It will be somewhat warmer Thursday in the upper lake region, the Ohio and Lower Mississippi Valleys.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate northwest, with fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest, becoming variable Friday, fair; South Atlantic Coast, moderate to fresh north, except variable off the Florida Coast, rain Thursday, fair Friday.

FORECAST: TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York, Southern New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Thursday and Friday, no decided temperature change.

Northern New England—Fair Thursday and Friday, little change in temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

Baker, Addressing Waterways Congress, Declares Any Other Course Unthinkable.

NO FEAR OF BOLSHEVISM

Daniels Rebukes Those Who Tremble at That Spectre and Predicts Era of Prosperity.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Eradication of the evils of competitive warfare between water and rail transportation, development of the nation's inland waterways and its harbors, and their full utilization for the promotion of the national prosperity were urged today at the opening session of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress. Optimism concerning economic readjustments also was sounded by most of the speakers.

Indorsing the purposes of the congress, Secretaries Baker and Daniels urged against the competitive warfare which has prevented full use of the waterways for transportation in the past, and both predicted an era of industrial expansion. In this connection they discounted the fear of Bolshevism in this country, the Secretary of the Navy saying there "is no more danger of Bolshevism taking hold in America than there is of the Kaiser entering the streets of Washington."

Secretary Baker, in discussing the relation of waterways to the war and to the financial burden put on the nations of the world by the war, said improvement of rivers and harbors would be a material factor in increasing foreign commerce, for which ships now were being built. The waterway improvements, he said, also would furnish useful and profitable work for thousands upon thousands of men.

In this connection he declared it to be "an unthinkable thing that any soldier who put on the uniform of his country and either fought or was in training to fight in this war, will be allowed to remain without a job if he wants one."

"The Chambers of Commerce of this country," he said, "the chambers of industry, the large captains of industry, the organizations of manufacturers, everybody in this country, owes the men who made this country safe."

Secretary Daniels declared that the railroads broke down under their increased burden after America entered the war, while "the waters have run idly to the sea," and said the railroads "naturally broke down because they were built on a peace-time program based on the destruction of water traffic."

No matter what the national policy regarding transportation should be, Mr. Daniels said, water and rail transportation must go hand in hand, and not one bale of cotton, nor ton of ore, nor carload of steel, should go by rail if water transportation was available.

Secretary Daniels rebuked those "who tremble at the spectre of industrial depression and Bolshevism," declaring that "the man who bets on American prosperity is always going to win." He urged spending the public money for public improvements as contributing to the nation's prosperity, and warned against the expectation of the return of wages and prices to prewar standards.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SAILS.

The French liner La Lorraine sailed at noon yesterday to reopen the New York-Havre service with nearly 1,000 passengers of whom about 400 were in the cabin and the remainder Polish soldiers, who have been recruited in this country.

Among the first cabin passengers was Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby, and is going to France to see the grave of her son, Quentin Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt was dressed in deep black, and was seen off by Captain Archie Roosevelt, and her daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth. After spending some time in France she will go to Italy to visit her sister, Miss Emily Carew, who has a villa along the Riviera, near Genoa. Mrs. Roosevelt will be met at Havre by her son, Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Derby, and Captain Kermit Roosevelt.

HOUSE OF REFUGE INQUIRY.

Senator Thompson Assails Management of Institution for Women.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Following an attack by Senator George F. Thompson upon the management of the Western House of Refuge for Women at Albion this afternoon, Attorney General Newton announced that Deputy Attorney General Wilbur W. Chambers had been appointed to investigate the charges of mismanagement. The home is for wayward girls and women and has many New York City inmates. Mr. Chambers will begin his inquiry early next week.

Senator Thompson accused the Superintendent of the institution, Mrs. Flora Daniels, of neglect of duty, inefficiency, and of "sanctioning practices in violation of the Penal Code." His attack was made when he explained why the Senate Finance Committee had refused to report out for confirmation the nomination of Mrs. Pearl Elias of Buffalo as manager of the institution. He said Mrs. Elias had failed to direst that Mrs. Daniels perform her duties properly.

HALTS ROOSEVELT CRITIC.

Milwaukee Socialist Silenced in Legislative Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 5. — Senator Louis Arnold, a Milwaukee Socialist, was stopped by Lieut. Gov. Dithmar today in the midst of an exposition of Bolshevism in the course of which he said that Theodore Roosevelt's language in 1912 was that of a Bolshevist. The presiding officer ruled that Arnold was out of order in the midst of the uproar which he was creating.

The fight was over the erection of a monument to Colonel Roosevelt. The question was whether the monument would be erected in Milwaukee or Madison, and Arnold began attacking the plan to put the monument in Milwaukee. He said he never agreed with Roosevelt but once, and that was when he wrote socialism into his platform. He said it was a Bolshevist platform. He also said that suppression would cause a spread of Bolshevism, and that the erection of a monument to Roosevelt would not stop the progress of Bolshevism. At this point the uproar began.

Senator Bird declared that Milwaukee needed a Roosevelt monument as an exemplar of the true Americanism that the Rough Rider preached.

HAVE HONEYMOON AIRPLANE

An airplane named "The Honeymoon Express" by the Dayton-Wright Airplane Company, its designer and maker, has been brought to New York for display at the semi-official aeronautical exhibition which will be held in Madison Square Garden and the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory from March 1 to March 15. It contains three seats, one for the pilot and two for the bride and groom. It is lavishly upholstered, and contains a heating apparatus for the comfort of the passengers. A telephone between passengers and pilot and a wind shield are other features of the plane.

A shipload of air trophies, airplanes used by our "aces" abroad, enemy planes captured, and types of foreign aircraft will be on exhibit, it was announced yesterday. A fifty-passenger hydroaeroplane will also be shown by the Government.

1,776 TROOPS ARRIVE FROM MARSEILLES

SHE BRINGS 132 CASUALS

Major Robertson of Rockefeller Institute Returns After Twenty Months' Service Abroad.

The first transport to bring troops to New York from the Mediterranean by way of the Strait of Gibraltar was the Duca d'Aosta, which arrived yesterday morning from Marseilles with 1,776 officers and men and docked at the foot of West Fifty-seventh street, North River. On board were the 331st Field Artillery complete, 60 officers and 1,282 men, Battery E of the 339th Field Artillery, a detachment of the 333d Field Artillery, and 132 casual officers. The artillery units consisted of troops coming chiefly from Illinois, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Minnesota and Missouri.

Major O. H. Robertson of the Rockefeller Institute returned on the Duca d'Aosta. He went to France in May, 1917, and has served ever since with the base hospitals there and in Flanders. Another New Yorker on board was Lieutenant Leslie Cooper of Morristown, N. J., son of the late Rear Admiral Cooper, who was with the first pursuit group of the 27th Aero Squadron. He fought on the Argonne front.

Army officers on the transport said Marseilles swarmed with soldiers from all parts of the world who had been brought to France to fight for the Allies. There were Australians, New Zealanders, Arabs from Algeria, and duskier warriors from Morocco with yellow fezes; Tonkinese, Bengalese infantry and lancers; Goorkhas from the slopes of the Himalayas with their curved creeses; Senegambians, Maltese, Chinese, Mongolians, Maoris, Malagash, Sudanese, Papuans and Fijians.

Won Rank and D. S. C.

One of the young officers to return on the Duca D'Aosta wearing the Distinguished Service Cross was Lieutenant Martin Frank Constantineau of Lowell, Mass., who was a private when he left the United States in the regular army. He won the cross and his commission at Château-Thierry on July 23 for bravery on the field. As Corporal in charge of a platoon Constantineau found his little party surrounded by Germans. They succeeded in fighting their way through, but when he reached the American trenches the Corporal found that three of his men had dropped in No Man's Land from the effects of gas. He made three trips under the fire of the enemy's field and machine guns, rescuing one of his men each time until he collapsed, just after dragging the third unconscious soldier inside the lines.

Lieutenant Frank F. Hughes of Atlanta, Ga., who served one year in the American Air Forces, had his machine shot down while 10,000 feet in the air and laid in a shell hole for three days, subsisting on rain water and dandelions. Lieutenant Harrison R. Tucker of Fairmount, Va., a member of the 93d Aero Squadron, who returned yesterday after an absence of seventeen months, flew at St. Mihiel, the Argonne, Château-Thierry, and also had six months with the Italian Army. Lieutenant M. P. Kelly of St. Paul, Minn., also attached to the 93d Aero Squadron, fought in the Verdun sector and has two airplanes to his credit.

The French liner Espagne is due to arrive from Bordeaux this afternoon with 422 officers and men, including Casual Company 29 of New York, and casual companies of Pennsylvania and Illinois. The Hampden, with twenty-one officers and men, which left Bordeaux on Jan. 7 and had to put to Bermuda on Jan. 28 for coal and provisions, and the Zacapa, with seventy-five casual officers, six men and seven officers of the 87th United States Coast Artillery and twenty-six nurses, are also due in port.

HAVANA PAPERS TIED UP.

Compositors on All Dailies Join Job Printers' Strike.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 5.—All Havana printing plants are at a standstill tonight, and no newspapers will appear tomorrow because of a strike of linotypists in sympathy with fellow-unionists in the job printing offices who have been out two weeks.

The Cuban Government endeavored to bring about a settlement of the printers' strike yesterday and today, but was unsuccessful. The strikers declare that, if tying up the newspapers fails to bring victory, then a general strike of all unions will be called.

The linotypists and other employes of the newspapers recently threatened a strike if large wage increases were not granted and their demands promptly met.

KAHN OPPOSES ZIONISM.

Californian Regrets That President Has Indorsed It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Regret was expressed today by Representative Julius Kahn that President Wilson had come out openly in favor of an independent Jewish State proposed. The Californian said in an interview today that consideration of this question should have no place at the peace table.

"My principal objection to it," said Mr. Kahn, "is the division of one's affiliation with the country in which he lives, the creation of a divided allegiance. I am an American, for America first, last, and all the time; no other country appeals to me. One of the great dangers of Zionism is the fact that the non-Jew will begin to look upon the American Jew as having a lurking desire always to return to the so-called Jewish homeland—that the Jew will be accused by the non-Jew of being merely a sojourner in the United States, using the benefits, opportunities, and advantages that he can get by residence here with the ultimate object of becoming a Palestinian and a resident of the Jewish State. There are comparatively few Jews of that character in this country, yet the overwhelming majority will be charged with entertaining the desire to return.

"I have another objection to Zionism. Even in this country the Zionists carry their national flag—the blue star of David in a white field. I maintain that the Jews in this country have the right to carry but one flag, the Stars and Stripes, under which so many of their coreligionists gave up their lives on the field of battle. This country has been their Zion for 140 years. They ought to be so loyal to the flag of the United States as to leave no desire whatever in the heart of any man of the faith to carry any other flag.

"I regret that the President has seen fit to come out openly in favor of the Jewish State proposed by some of the English statesmen. I believe that if he had consulted the views of those members of the Jewish faith who have lived in the United States for many years, he would have found that an overwhelming majority of them is opposed to Zionism."

Conferees Report $6,070,000,000 Measure to House—Its Early Passage Expected.

BREAKS ALL TAX RECORDS

Greatest Revenue Raiser in History—Levies Heavily on Incomes and Profits.

GOES AFTER PENNIES, TOO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The War Revenue bill, as agreed upon in conference, and the largest money bill in history, was submitted today to the House, and it is predicted that it will be adopted without alteration. It is estimated that the proposed legislation will produce $6,070,000,000 in taxes.

Corporations and individuals with large incomes will be hit hardest, but those who escape paying their part of the war's cost will be few in number, as the provisions make considerable inroads upon the incomes of persons with small salaries, and even the customer of a soda water fountain will pay his penny for each 10-cent purchase.

The single man, for instance, who paid a tax last year of $40 on an income of $3,000 (his exemption remains at $1,000) will this year face a tax of $120, for the rate has been increased to 6 per cent. The married man taxed on not more than $4,000 will face the same ratio of increase, but his exemption, as heretofore, will be $2,000. Men commanding larger salaries will in addition pay 12 per cent. on all over $4,000 of their incomes and be subject to a surtax, which increases gradually from 1 per cent. as the taxable part of his income mounts above the first $5,000. A man with a net income of $1,000,000 will pay $694,030 of it in personal income tax.

So-called luxuries and semi-luxuries are taxed from 5 to 10 per cent.; the theatre admission tax of 10 per cent. is retained, with additional taxes on speculation in tickets; the tax on distilled liquor for beverage purposes jumps to $6.40 a gallon and the tax on beer to $6 a barrel. Persons renting passenger automobiles must pay taxes of $10 and $20, according to the seating capacity of the cars; billiard and pool parlors pay their homage to the cost of war, and in innumerable ways taxes reach out to confront every one of the nation's 100,000,000 population. Transportation, telephone, and telegraph service are under the tax provisions.

A feature of the bill which will undoubtedly attract much attention queerly enough provides for the expenditure of money instead of its collection by tax. This is Section 1406, which provides for the payment of a bonus of $60 to persons in the military or naval service upon his or her honorable discharge. This was substituted by the conferees for a Senate proposal to pay one month's salary additional to enlisted men and officers when discharged. The flat $60 rate puts all on the same basis.

Another feature of the bill provides for the restoration of the two-cent letter postage rate, effective July 1, 1919, as provided in Section 1,401, with the additional provision that letters written by soldiers or sailors on overseas duty shall be handled postage free.

The conferees left in the provision which makes the whole District of Columbia and, therefore, the nation's capital, bone-dry as soon as President Wilson signs the bill. Only the foreign embassies and legations, which are accorded diplomatic immunity, escape this fate.

The bill provides for taxation of the income of President Wilson and all other Federal officeholders, but does not encroach on the salaries of State officials.

Subsequent Legislation.

The efforts of the Senate conferees to abolish the high zone rate on second class postage were futile, and the present system will continue temporarily at least. The Senate proposal, which was Section 1,402, has been stricken from the proposed legislation. It has been reported that an effort may be made in the Senate to change the present law at a later date and abolish the present zone system.

There is a report also that an attempt may be made to obtain later a substitute for the luxury tax provision by the passage of a joint resolution by Congress. These changes will not be sought, however, until after the present revenue bill is acted upon by Congress.

The subject of corporation taxes is bound up in a tangle of technicalities which affect depreciation, amortization, obsolescence and other important provisions which must be determined upon in arriving at taxable income for 1918 and 1919. The majority of the so-called "relief measures" or "cushions" inserted in the original House draft of the bill by the Senate amendments remain in the conference report, but a safeguard against abuse is incorporated in the

Gas in German Cars Causes Tunnel Deaths

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Two railway coaches recently handed over to France by Germany played an important part in a puzzling accident on the Paris-Metz Railway line last night, in which five persons lost their lives. Sixteen persons were injured.

Train 47, bound for Metz, had just entered the tunnel at Nanteuil, when the passengers occupying the two German coaches began to experience trouble in breathing and strong, obnoxious gases began to fill up the coaches.

The passengers smashed the windows, but as soon as fresh air came in contact with the gases the coaches became a mass of fire. The passengers, in terror, fled to the tracks in the dark tunnel. A train going in the opposite direction crashed into them and five were killed.

Of the sixteen injured, all of whom were treated at the hospital at Château-Thierry, eight suffered only from the effects of asphyxiating gas. An official statement given out by the railroad company says:

"The fire in the coaches was not due to any defect in the lighting or heating apparatus nor to a hot box. The presence of the obnoxious gases is still unexplained. Both coaches were consumed by the flames."

TROOPS ON GUARD IN SEATTLE STRIKE

ENTIRE CITY IS TIED UP

Street Cars Stopped, Schools Closed, and Newspapers Suspended.

SEATTLE, Feb. 6.—Federal troops from Camp Lewis are quartered tonight in Seattle and Tacoma to "stand ready for any emergency," as army officers said today, in connection with the general strike this morning of 45,000 union men, in sympathy with 25,000 shipyard workers who walked out on Jan. 21 to enforce demands for higher wages.

Major John L. Hayren commands the contingent of 800 soldiers in Seattle, and General Frank B. Watson has under him in Tacoma, thirty-six miles from here, two battalions and a machine-gun company. Equipment of the soldiers included 200 hand grenades. Authority for the use of troops was granted by Secretary of War Baker upon advices from Governor Ernest Lister.

Thirty-five thousand union men in the vicinity of Seattle quit work today, labor leaders said, but in Tacoma the response was not so general, and the principal unions involved there were the carmen, timber workers, barbers, and retail clerks.

Street cars stopped running in Seattle, schools closed, restaurants and theatres closed their doors. Newspapers suspended and other industries ceased operating. Twelve "soup kitchens" were established by culinary unions to feed strikers and others who depend upon restaurants for meals. Patrons of the kitchens were lined up and served in military mess fashion. Barber shops closed and elevators stopped running.

Only emergency telegraph business from Seattle was handled by the telegraph companies. The telephone system continued in service.

The city government is prepared for any emergency, Mayor Ole Hanson said, and ten thousand extra police will be sworn in if necessary.

"Any man who attempts to take over control of municipal government functions here will be shot on sight," Mayor Hanson declared when told of a statement by Senator Thomas in the Senate today.

"Strikers have not taken over government functions in Seattle," the Mayor said. "They will not be allowed to take over any government functions despite their published statements that they intend to operate the light plant and help police the city. The seat of city government is still at the City Hall."

Police Have Machine Gun.

Seattle police said they were ready for any emergency. A big truck carrying a machine gun, with sand bags built up around its edges, stands at the police station. Three former army Lieutenants have been assigned to the truck. Motor cycle police were instructed to watch sharply for offenders who might possibly spread tacks on the streets to puncture automobile tires. For several days stories of enormous sales of tacks for this purpose have been circulated here.

A statement issued by the Strike Committee of the Central Labor Council, which is directing the strike, said the walkout was a success. All lines of industry in which union workmen were employed were crippled, the statement said.

Steamship operators and others were worried over the handling of fresh fish shipments, due from Alaska, and fruits and vegetables coming from California, because of the strike of the longshoremen who, defying their international officers, have virtually tied up coastwise and off-shore traffic.

Vessels coming here to discharge, it was said, would be diverted to other ports nearby. Two Japanese steamers,

UNIONS PROPOSE TO OPERATE ROADS WITH FEDERAL AID

BACKED BY 2,000,000 MEN

Brotherhoods and Federation Indorse Scheme Already Embodied in a Bill.

BONDS FOR STOCKHOLDERS

Profits to be Divided, but Government to Meet Deficits by Taxation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Two million railway employes, representing, they say, with their families, eight million persons, are in favor of a plan which will be presented to Congress tomorrow, recommending Government ownership of the roads, and their operation by a corporation formed from the employes and run upon a co-operative basis. The proposal will be presented to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, by Glenn E. Plumb, long associated with the four great railway brotherhoods as counsel.

The plan has been endorsed by the executives of the brotherhoods who represent 400,000 men, and by the executives of the railway unions which come under the head of the American Federation of Labor, representing about 1,500,000 workers. The scheme has already been embodied in a bill to be presented to Congress.

After Mr. Plumb reads his plan to the committee tomorrow he will be followed on the stand by A. B. Garretson, head of the Order of Railway Conductors, who was instrumental in the passage of the Adamson law in September, 1916. Garretson will represent not only the brotherhoods, but also the unions included in the American Federation of Labor.

Bonds for Security Holders.

Under the plan endorsed by the railway employes Government bonds would be exchanged for the securities now held by investors in the railroads, which are valued at about $18,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000. Working capital would be provided by the Government for the corporation, but the only capital the corporation would present would be "operating ability."

The employes would handle the revenues of the roads, now about $5,000,000,000 annually, and would pay all expenses including their own wages. The payroll, which was $1,700,000,000 before Federal control, has now reached about $2,600,000,000 a year.

Out of the net income, after paying all expenses, the employes would pay the Government a rental for the use of the property. If there were a surplus of revenue above 5 per cent. it would be split between the Government and the employes. But if a deficit resulted it would be sustained by the Government through taxation.

Decision by the railway unions of the American Federation of Labor to support the principles of the plan, which already had the sanction of the brotherhoods, was reached a few days ago, when Mr. Plumb read the scheme to the unions. The executives of both the brotherhoods and the unions were careful to say today they upheld "fundamentals" of the idea, but they made it quite plain that they would not be absolutely bound by the details the attorney had laid out.

The Plumb plan opposes the creation of a Secretary of Transportation as proposed by the railway executives, on the ground that this would be "regulating the people in the interests of capital." Objection was also voiced to a five-year extension of the Federal control, as urged by Messrs. McAdoo and Hines, because it would "deprive employes of political rights."

Proponents of the plan argue that it would remove the railroads from politics, co-ordinate State and Federal control, protect investors by removing "water" from securities, and because Government financial support would be safer and cheaper than private.

Retain Commerce Board.

No power would be taken away from the Interstate Commerce Commission, and on the other hand, it would be free to have further powers by which to secure full regulation, adequate and efficient service. For the settlement of wage disputes, wage boards are suggested, whose deadlocks would be opened by decision of the Board of Directors of the corporation. Probably the most remarkable feature of the scheme is the "single corporation," composed of employes which would run the railroads.

"I would suggest for your consideration," says Mr. Plumb's brief, "an operating corporation where operating ability constituted its sole capital. We would recognize as operating ability the skill, industry, and application of every employe, from President down to office boy. This is the organization which Mr. Thom defined as meaning the human capacity to efficiently perform the service. Such a corporation requires no capital. It should be organized under

Paderewski's Party Wins Polish Election

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The elections in Poland for members of the Constituent Assembly resulted in the list headed by Premier Paderewski and M. Dmowski obtaining 50 per cent. of the total votes. The Polish Socialist Party got 15 per cent. and the remainder went to Jewish candidates, according to a telegram from the Polish Official News Agency to the Polish Committee of Paris.

Of 435,000 eligible voters, 320,000 voted. Women voted in great numbers. There twenty-one nomination lists proposed under a system of proportional representation. Results from outside of Warsaw, the telegram adds, are not yet complete.

SETTLE LONDON RAILWAY STRIKE

Agreement Announced as Satisfactory Reached by the Government and the Unions.

TIEUP SPREAD TO BIG ROADS

War Office Organized Motor Transport with Free Rides for Stranded Workers.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A satisfactory settlement of the London railway dispute has been reached, it was unofficially stated tonight. It is understood that the settlement includes the tubes and all the London railway systems.

An earlier Press Bureau strike bulletin announced that it had been agreed, pending consideration of general conditions, that the railway men on the underground services would work for eight hours per day, exclusive of mealtime. The companies, the bulletin added, would offer reasonable facilities for the men meeting their ordinary physical needs.

A conference was held at the Board of Trade tonight, at which Sir Albert H. Stanley, President of the board, on behalf of the Government, made an offer to the two railway unions which led to the settlement.

The union of locomotive engineers and firemen issued notices at midnight ending the strike. Secretary Bromley said all the men would be at work early Friday.

He added that if consideration had previously been given to the physical disabilities of the men working in continuous service the strike never would have occurred.

Arrangements which had been made for a national strike at noon Friday have been canceled.

Strike Had Spread to Big Roads.

The first step in the direction of the extension of the strike beyond the local lines in London was taken last night when some of the drivers on the Brighton and the Southwestern roads were called out. The union order was issued during the evening, but passenger trains ran until midnight. Freight service, however, was partially suspended, following the issuance of the strike order. Early trains to and from the suburbs were not started this morning as the drivers did not appear, and this left a vast host of suburbanites stranded in their respective localities.

Meanwhile the situation in London appeared to be growing worse hourly. The fourth day of the tube strike found many thousands of persons standing in line waiting for the buses, which are still maintaining their service, while other thousands set out to walk to their places of employment, as the weather was milder, although the air was murky and somewhat chilly.

In this situation the War Office early in the day mobilized more than 1,000 motor lorries along the principal routes of traffic to supplement the buses and take the place of the suspended tube service. These lorries were manned by military drivers. It was estimated that they would be able to carry 250,000 persons daily. No fare was charged and particular attention was paid to working women and girls. Only bona fide workers on their way to work were picked up by the lorries.

This action of the Government aroused the Licensed Vehicle Workers' Union, the membership of which includes the bus, street car, and taxi cab drivers. A meeting of the union was held to consider the situation. At the conclusion of the meeting the Secretary said: "The outlook is very black." An attempt was made by means of anonymous circulars to bring out the street car drivers at noon, but officials of the union instructed the men that the circular was not authorized and advised them to continue at work.

The determination of the engineering trades in London, including the electrical workers, to strike tonight despite an Order in Council, making it an offense to interfere with the lighting and power supplies, was modified to the extent that the Electrical Workers' Union this afternoon decided to restrict their action to the withdrawing of all labor of electricians outside the power houses. Shifts inside the power houses were to be worked normally until Saturday at midnight, in order, it was said, to give the Government the opportunity of reconsidering the situation. The Government as a precautionary measure had suspended the leave of military officers.

The Electrical Trades Union has addressed a letter to the Newspaper Publishers' Association, informing that organization that, unless the newspapers controlled by the members of the association are more sympathetic toward the strikers in published articles, the trade unionists employed in newspaper offices will be called upon to act as censors and to deal with articles which give offense to the strikers.

The strike of the waiters and cooks in the hotels and restaurants is still inconveniencing thousands of Londoners, but staffs for these eating places are being recruited from among the unemployed, and the situation has somewhat improved.

GERMAN LEADERS THRONG WEIMAR FOR CONVENTION

WANT PEACE LEAGUE ACTION

Move to Take Up That Subject First—Food and Lodging Cards for Visitors.

MAGDEBURG REVOLT STARTS

WEIMAR, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—Weimar today is filled with the most notable throng that probably ever assembled in this beautiful little German city.

About 3,000 political leaders, ranging in repute from such well-known men as Chancellor Ebert, Philip Scheidemann, Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Foreign Secretary, and Mathias Erzberger to humble and hitherto unknown figures from every corner of the former empire, have been gradually gathering here and are ready for the opening tomorrow of the first German National Assembly.

Although the Constitution for the new republic undoubtedly will be one of the first subjects brought up for consideration, there are on the scene those who would like to push to the fore the discussion of a League of Nations, and there were predictions in some quarters today that this subject might have first consideration.

One of the Berlin newspapers has established for the sessions of the Assembly the first regular airplane delivery inaugurated on the continent. The morning and noon editions of that newspaper are delivered at Weimar two hours after publication.

Quarters Carefully Allotted.

Special trains for the last two days have been pouring passengers into Weimar until the city is filled to overflowing. Yet so thoroughly and carefully had the arrangements for the Assembly been made that virtually every one who arrived had received accommodations by nightfall yesterday. Each person not only had his living quarters definitely assigned to him in advance but his eating place as well.

Weimar fortunately possesses an unusual number of good, although small hotels. Virtually all of these were requisitioned by the authorities intrusted with the task of making the preparations for the Assembly. They took similar action in the cases of many private houses and spare rooms in residences.

The Weimar "Wohnungsrath," or Residence Bureau, then took up the task and allotted living quarters to specified groups, such as the Ministerial party, the members of the Assembly and the correspondents, keeping each group together as nearly as possible. The Bureau, after assigning the visitors to the hotels where they will live for the next several weeks, then designated the eating places for the city's guests.

These places were divided into three classes—the better hotels and pensions, where the luncheon costs more than five marks and the supper more than four marks; the hotels and pensions where the meals cost from three and one-half to five marks, and the smaller eating places where the prices range from two marks to three marks, fifty pfennig.

Card System for Visitors.

Each guest is obliged to eat at the place assigned to him, for the hotels are under the strictest orders to furnish food and lodging only to those guests who present the proper cards calling for such service.

First of all, there is a pink card allowing the delegates and newspaper men to enter Weimar and assigning them to their places in the Court Theatre, where the National Assembly will be held. Then comes a gray card, assigning the lodging place and stating the exact price to be paid for the room. Next is a yellow food card, indicating where meals may be eaten.

In addition there are booklets of pink, blue, and green slips, representing breakfasts, luncheons, and suppers, respectively, and gray, red, brown, yellow, maroon, and blue tickets for bread, sugar, and other supplies.

The special arrangements made for feeding the delegates and others having business at the Assembly will admit of the serving of meals with a good choice of dishes and a fairly wide selection of luxuries. The butter served is apparently the real article, and marmalade and tea may be had.

The entire arrangement is a characteristic German system, and it seems to work excellent except for the nuisance of keeping track of so many cards.

Troops Police the City.

Weimar is strongly policed by cavalry and infantry. Mounted troops are constantly on patrol to prevent a possible Spartacide attack.

The Government has occupied the beautiful, ancient, and recently renovated theatre, where the Assembly will be held and which has been transformed into the appearance of a legislative chamber. The telegraph service was busy today putting the final touches on

LEAGUE COMMISSION SPEEDS ITS WORK; THIRD OF CONSTITUTION DRAFT ADOPTED; CONFERENCE TO BE HELD WITH BOLSHEVIKI

American Delegates Urge Publication in Full of League Constitution to Test Sentiment Here

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Conferences held by the members of the Commission on the Society of Nations, of which President Wilson is Chairman, have developed that, in order to reach an agreement, compromises will be necessary. Indications are that some of the compromises affect important principles, and there is every likelihood that those who expected to see a league formed that would have absolute power to enforce peace may be greatly disappointed.

The compromise over compulsory arbitration, concerning which I sent a cable dispatch today, probably will be attacked on the ground that it leaves the League without power to make its decree effective.

Indications are also that the effort to agree upon a proposal abolishing military conscription will not succeed. At present those engaged in endeavoring to straighten out this problem are unable to see a solution that will forbid compulsory military service and at the same time satisfy nations like Italy, which fear that they cannot afford the high pay to induce voluntary enlistment.

From what was said today, it is evident that the American representatives are anxious to have the constitution of the League published, so as to give public opinion in America a chance to express itself on the compact. The President, it is understood, expects to devote much of the time he will spend in America to explaining what has been accomplished toward the formation of the League.

Bolshevist Government with Acceptance of Invitation to Conference Says It Will Assume Russia's National Debt and Pay Interest with Raw Materials—American Delegates Chosen.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The Russian Soviet Government, in a wireless message to the Entente Governments sent out from Moscow by M. Tchitcherin, Minister of Foreign Affairs, announcing that it is willing to begin conversations with the Entente with the object of bringing about a cessation of military activities, declares it is willing to acknowledge financial obligations regarding the creditors of Russia of Entente nationality.

Moreover, it offers to guarantee the payment of interest on its debts by means of stipulated quantities of raw materials and to place concessions in mines, forests, &c., at the disposal of citizens of the Entente, provided "the social and economic order of the Soviet Government is not affected by internal disorders connected with these concessions."

The message adds:

"The extent to which the Soviet Government is prepared to meet the Entente will depend on its military position in relation to that of the Entente Governments, and it must be emphasized that its position improves every day."

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The Supreme Council, on receiving the acceptance of the Russian Bolshevist Government of the invitation to attend the conference on the Princes Islands, immediately made arrangements to send a joint committee of two representatives from each of the five Great Powers to meet the representatives of the Soviet Government. The wireless dispatch from the Soviet Government accepting the invitation, was received last night while the conference commission on a Society of Nations was in session.

The members of the committee will be announced soon. One of the American delegates will be a personal friend of President Wilson who has been a resident of Europe for a number of years, and the other will be an American newspaper editor well known in the Middle West.

The original date for the meeting on the Princes Islands, Feb. 15, probably will be changed in order to give the committee time to reach the island.

When Professor Boris A. Bakhmeteff, a member of the council formed by anti-Bolshevist factions here, was advised of M. Tchitcherin's acceptance, he said that he would be unable to say what the Russian Committee in Paris would do. He indicated that a copy of the official message must be received and discussed before any announcement would be made. M. Bakhmeteff said that the dispatch from M. Tchitcherin was a surprise, as previous messages from the Soviet Government had persuaded the Russian Committee that a conference was not probable.

"It is an ignoble comedy," said other Russian leaders here. They expressed the opinion that the Bolshevist leaders, in the hope of strengthening their position, would represent to their followers that the Allies' invitation was recognition of them and would spread the report that the Allies, fearing them, had asked for peace.

Members of the Russian Committee maintain that the united Governments of Russia which they represent will not grant a truce to the Bolsheviki, but will continue to struggle until "the whole of Russia is secured to democracy."

"It will take longer than it would if the Allies had intervened in a military way," said one, "but we will succeed in the end just the same."

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. 6.—Indications here point to the inauguration of a movement having for its purpose the union of radical elements in Siberia and Russia with the Bolsheviki on the basis of election by universal suffrage of a constituent assembly. Since the peasantry constitute a majority in the elements opposed to the Bolsheviki, it is thought that a government secured in this way would be of a moderate Socialist nature.

OFFERS PLAN TO SOLVE THE RUSSIAN PROBLEM

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—A Russo-Allied commission as an "executive organ" of the Society of Nations with full powers is a possible solution of the Russian problem, according to Dr. Valda Girsa, a student of Russian affairs, who is in the confidence of many leaders of Russian factions. Dr. Girsa is a member of the Czechoslovak National Council, but said that his proposal was unofficial in character.

The failure of the proposed conference on the Princes Islands is foreseen by Dr. Girsa, who declares that the lack of a concerted plan has discounted allied efforts in Russia and directed suspicion toward allied motives, with the result that after six months of intervention the situation not only shows no improvement, but probably is worse than at the beginning. Dr. Girsa considers a compromise with the Bolsheviki impracticable.

"An International Allied Commission should be constituted in Siberia," said Dr. Girsa, "with two members from each allied nation which has troops in Siberia. Six Russians should be appointed to the commission which should be entrusted by the Peace Conference with the direction of allied assistance and intervention in Russia. As soon as the Society of Nations is created the commission should become an executive organ.

"No allied action should be undertaken without the previous sanction of the commission, and all allied troops should receive orders only from the commission. The allied nations should engage to place at the disposal of the commission all forces and supplies necessary for the accomplishment of the task. A final settlement of accounts with each of the allied Governments should be made by the Russian Constituent Assembly.

"Before beginning its work, the commission should publicly declare to the Russian people its program of what it purposes to do, somewhat on this line:

"First—That the principles of the Peace Conference will be the basis of the action of the commission.

"Second—That the commission will not permit civil war nor any coercion of one political party by another.

"Third—That the commission intends to support the provisional Russian Government as far as its program accords with the resolutions of the Peace Conference and as far as its actions do not contravene that program.

"Fourth—That the commission has no selfish designs on the Russian nation, but has one final aim, namely, to bring to the Russian people a Constituent Assembly in such a way that the whole nation will be able without outside or inside pressure to announce freely its will and to create a definite form of government.

"The commission should then issue a proclamation to the Bolshevist Government covering these points:

"First—Supporters of the Bolshevist Government should renounce that Government which has acquired power illegally against the will of the nation by violence.

"Second—The Bolshevist Government shall disarm and discharge all its troops.

"Third—Internal and local administration shall be surrendered temporarily to the various districts and cities.

"Fourth—That a general government of all factions that have surrendered to the All-Russian Government shall be organized and that this government shall be commissioned to summon, immediately if possible, an All-Russian Constituent Assembly.

"As soon as the Constituent Assembly has finished its task, the Russo-Allied Commission should liquidate its affairs and the troops serving it should be sent home."

RAPID PROGRESS AT PARIS

Agreement Is Reached on General Principles Underlying League.

VITAL ARTICLES GONE OVER

Official Prophecy Is Made That the Remainder Will Be Speedily Disposed Of.

SMALL NATIONS MOLLIFIED

Four More Representatives Are Added to Committee—Council Hears Case of the Arabs.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—With one-third of its task on the League of Nations' Constitution already accomplished, the Peace Conference Commission announced today that it is "to be expected that the remaining articles will be covered quickly."

A general agreement has been reached on the principles which underlie the whole draft, it was added, although, as is noted, the decisions of the commission with regard to each article are provisional.

The commission has discussed articles dealing with the motives behind the formation of a society, the objects which will safeguard the constitution of its chief organs, and the qualifications for membership.

The Commission on the Society of Nations announced early in the day that it had decided that representatives of Czechslovakia, Greece, Poland, and Rumania would be associated in its deliberations. This was in keeping with the decision made yesterday to give four additional places on the commission to the smaller powers.

Positive steps for reconciling differences between the greater and lesser nations, which were begun yesterday, were continued today.

It seems likely that the lesser powers will gain adequate representation in the executive body of the Society of Nations, as well as the legislative sections. The smaller powers are insistent on being given a greater voice in the society, and plans are being revised to meet the situation.

When the Commission on the Society of Nations met tonight the four new representatives were to be present, together with those of China, Brazil, Belgium, Portugal, and Serbia and the five great powers.

The small powers thus have nine seats on the commission which will frame the plan for the society, and the five great powers have ten.

The formal communiqué telling of the commission's progress, was as follows:

The Commission on the League of Nations held its third meeting last night. Appreciable progress was made in the consideration of the draft. It was further unanimously agreed, in accordance with the decision of the conference at the Quai D'Orsay yesterday, that representatives of Czechoslovakia, Greece, Poland and Rumania should be associated with the commission in its deliberations.

In their second and third sessions the commission have covered practically one-third of their task. They have discussed those articles which deal with the motives behind the formation of a League of Nations and the objects which would safeguard the constitution of its chief organs and the qualifications for membership in the league.

While the decisions of the commission with regard to each article are provisional, many apparent difficulties have already been resolved, and a general agreement has been reached on the principles which underlie the whole draft. It is therefore to be expected that the remaining articles will be covered quickly.

The concession to the lesser nations became known following a long session last night of the Commission on the Society of Nations. It was apparently received with satisfaction by the smaller powers.

In the session of the commission, England, wishing to meet the views of small countries, proposed to give five representatives all together to the great powers and two representatives to the smaller countries, making the membership seven.

Premier Orlando of Italy approved the British suggestion, but Leon Bourgeois, speaking for France, opposed the plan, asserting that the nineteen small belligerents were entitled to larger representation. England suggested a formula that would permit her dominions to be represented on the executive body.

The announcement from the commission yesterday that the preamble and two articles for the constitution of the body had been provisionally agreed upon was not supplemented by any official outgiving as to the nature of the paragraphs in question, it being pointed out that they were subject to amendment or complete substitution, in the light of such action as might be taken upon the rest of the plan.

It is believed, however, that the preamble in effect is a statement at greater length of the declaration of the Peace Conference at its second session. This, in brief, was that it was essential to maintenance of the world settlement that a Society of Nations should be created, to promote international co-operation, to insure the fulfillment of international obligations, and to provide safeguards against war.

The two articles, if the ordinary course of drafting such international pacts is being followed, probably relate to the organization of the proposed society, stating the qualifications for membership in it, the place of meeting of the periodic sessions, and the method of organization of the executive and other directive commissions.

This much of the commission's work has not been accomplished without much discussion and objections by some members of the commission to some features of the plan that formed the basis for the agreement. But with every disposition to concede to the objectors, representing the smaller nations, every point in which the vital object of the plan was not in danger, most of the Commissioners are understood to have agreed upon the fundamental points that came up in the process of consideration.

The fact that there has been much discussion at the sessions of the commission has led to the belief in some quarters that the success of the plan was endangered. It may be stated, however, that in the opinion of the men who are behind this project such is not the case. Published reports that fundamental principles dear to the American delegation had been sacrificed are declared untrue, it being explained that some features described as discarded were never included in the original American or British plans. The features instanced were parts of other plans, urged by patriotic associations, and were supposed to have met with official acceptance.

The fact that Premier Lloyd George expects to be absent from Paris about a fortnight, is taken as an indication that he does not expect the scheme for a Society of Nations to be advanced to the point where it would be ready for adoption by the Peace Conference before the departure of President Wilson for home. If this impression is correct, it is said that President Wilson may content himself with taking back to America the plan as it is expected to be agreed upon by the commission.

ALLIES WILL PENALIZE GERMAN ARROGANCE

Paris Matin Says War Council Will Enforce Its Will on Foe, Balking at Armistice.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The Supreme War Council will meet at Versailles tomorrow to take measures to impose on Germany "the full will of the Allies," says the Matin, because of their unwillingness of Germany to carry out the armistice terms except under certain conditions.

There has been a change in the attitude of Germany, according to the newspaper, and this is being manifested in the form of arrogance toward the Entente.

The War Council will decide the question as to the strength of the forces to be maintained in the service by the Entente nations.

THREATENS TO STOP LOAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Feb. 5.—Japanese efforts to control the Chinese peace delegation advanced another stage yesterday, when Minister Obata informed the Acting Foreign Minister that if China chose to regard Japanese wishes in the matter of the unpaid balance of 17,000,000 taels of the loan of 20,000,000 signed by Tuan-Chi-Jui last September for the War Participation Bureau, would be paid. On the contrary if China did not wish to recognize the agreement, Japan would cancel the loan and demand repayment of the 3,000,000 taels already advanced.

As the exchequer is empty the Government will end by complying, unless it can procure money from other sources.

Obata intimated further that no help could be expected from Great Britain, who was engrossed in her internal disturbances, whereas Japan was near and had an unemployed army and navy.

The Foreign Minister temporized, replying that the matter would be brought before the Cabinet.

WANTS IRISH CLAIMS CONSIDERED AT PARIS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The House Foreign Affairs Committee today ordered favorably reported a resolution expressing the hope that the Peace Conference would "favorably consider the claims of Ireland to the right of self-determination." Four of the seventeen members of the committee attending the meeting, it is understood, voted against the resolution, which reads:

"Resolved, by the House of Representatives, (the Senate concurring,) That it is the earnest hope of the Congress of the United States of America that the Peace Conference now sitting in Paris, in passing upon the rights of various peoples, will favorably consider the claims of Ireland to the right of self-determination."

The resolution was a substitute for that of Representative Gallagher, Democrat, of Illinois, requesting the American delegates to "present and urge on the Peace Conference the right to freedom, independence, and self-determination of Ireland, predicated upon the principle laid down by the President in his plea for an international league, that 'all Governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.'"

HOPE BERNE PARLEY WILL CHECK EXCESS

Regret Expressed in Paris That American Labor Leaders Are Absent.

WANT A NEW SOCIALISM

Belief That Reorganization on Thomas's Lines Would Help World Peace.

By WALTER DURANTY.
Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The refusal of the American and Belgian labor leaders to participate in the Berne conference has caused some regret in Paris, and that not only in Socialist circles.

While there is naturally a tendency to sympathize with the objection made by Samuel Gompers to associating with and greeting as comrades delegates from the Central Powers who, technically at least, are still our enemies, the initial action of Thomas, Renaudel, and the other French patriotic Socialists in challenging the German delegates upon their share in the responsibility for the war has caused a considerable revulsion of feeling here.

Even the French opponents of international socialism admire Thomas's attitude, and they wish that he had had the support of American and Belgian delegations in his attempt to reorganize "L'Internationale" as a working force for world betterment in co-operation and sympathy with the wider internationalism of the League of Nations.

Clemenceau's L'Homme Libre, which cannot be suspected of overmuch sympathy for socialism, says in an editorial that the results of the Berne conference may be of great importance, not only for the future of socialism, but of the world. The Thomas program, says the writer, is clear and precise, proposing first the establishment of the responsibility for the war, then a discussion of peace terms according to President Wilson's principles, and finally a decision on the much-vexed question of Bolshevism.

Hope of Allaying Danger.

In view of world conditions today, with immense areas of Russia and Germany under régimes that represent opposite poles of Socialist practice, with labor troubles in a state of crisis in Great Britain, and ominous mutterings of a threatened storm in France, the reconstitution of L'Internationale on lines such as Thomas hopes to achieve would meet with general approbation here. Even delegates of enemy powers who have eschewed both the old subservience to Kaiserism and the new "camouflaged revolution," might do useful work, it is held, in teaching their fellow-countrymen the necessity for a thorough change of heart and genuine repentance.

The new organization, it is also suggested, would be a valuable factor in improving the position of the workers, helping to settle labor disputes, and generally contributing to the maintenance of healthy industrial conditions against the destructive flood of Bolshevism.

That is one side of the picture—patriotic, progressive internationalism in unison with President Wilson's program for the evolution of a better world for humanity. But there is another side—class war, bitter and relentless. That implies the union of the laboring class all over the world against capital under Lenine's banner of the destruction of all existing social order, as the first step to building up the Marxian Utopia of communism and universal equality.

Attacks Thomas as Apostate.

There is heavy pressure on the side of the disintegrating forces, as may be judged by the attitude of L'Humanité, the official organ of the French Socialist Party. In an editorial today it attacks Thomas and Renaudel as apostates from the true Socialist gospel, according to Karl Marx, of uncompromising hostility toward capitalism, and charges them with endeavoring to hand over the Internationale to its natural enemies.

The writer asks bitterly if they intend to condemn the Bolshevist Government of Russia on the hearsay of its bourgeois, aristocratic, and capitalist opponents, and refers to the "glorious shades of Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg."

So the issue is set squarely before the Berne delegates—class war or co-operation, world patriotism or world revolution. Their choice may be momentous.

WILSON TRIES TO END ITALIAN-SLAV SNARL

Receives Orlando and Serbian Official—Turks Still Press Us to be Mandatory.

PARIS, Feb. 6, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson was in consultation separately today with Vittorio Orlando, the Italian Premier, and M. Trumbitch, the Jugoslav Foreign Minister.

The indications were that an effort was being made by the President to mediate between the two nations to aid them to reach an agreement for the settlement of convicting claims regarding Albania, Fiume, Istria and Dalmatia, and thus relieve the Supreme Council of the embarrassment of deciding arbitrarily on this issue, which is regarded as one of the most serious before the Peace Conference.

It is understood that Premier Orlando presented to the President what he declared Italy's minimum and irreducible claims with regard to the east coast of the Adriatic and Fiume.

Premier Venizelos of Greece called upon Premier Orlando of Italy last evening and the two engaged in a long conversation concerning the aspirations of their respective nations. The chief issue regards territory on the Eastern Adriatic which Greece claims as Northern Epirus. This territory is maintained by the Albanians to be southern Albania, and the Albanians, it is said, considering themselves under the protection of Italy, want her support in their contention.

The American delegation to the Peace Conference has received numerous petitions from committees, municipalities, and representatives of territories under Ottoman rule, asking to be put under the protection of the United States, or urging at least that America shall be the mandatory intrusted with their government. More significant still is the pressure brought to bear to bring about a decision by which America shall be intrusted with the duty of looking after Constaninople, the Bosporus, and the Dardanelles, which, it is believed, will be internationalized by the Peace Conference.

The great European Powers are urging America to accept that responsibility.

Referring to objections that American public opinion is opposed to any interference in the government of other countries, especially outside the American Continent, Salvatore Barzilai, former member of the Italian Cabinet, said:

"By participating in the war and by taking a leading part in the Peace Conference, the United States has undertaken such moral obligations as almost constitute international duties, the fulfillment of which becomes a point of honor to any member of the Society of Nations."

Persia is pressing earnestly for representation at the Peace Conference on the ground that she suffered more war damage, perhaps, than any of the smaller nations with the exception of Belgium, but because of British pressure, she was unable to take part in the war. M. Moshaver-el-Mamalek, Persian Foreign Minister, is at the head of a delegation of five now in Paris, seeking recognition from the Peace Conference.

While the Persians have not agreed upon the boundaries they will claim for their country, if they are admitted to the conference, it is known that they seek the restoration to Persia of districts in the Caucasus and Turkestan, which passed from Persian into Russian hands during the last century. They will also ask that the Kurds on their northwestern boundary be added to Persia on the ground that the two peoples are of the same blood and religion.

Great Britain has granted the Persians a sympathetic hearing, and the American delegation is apparently disposed to consider their claims.

SEE LEAGUE CRIPPLED BY 'RESERVATIONS' PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Senators were interested today in THE NEW YORK TIMES dispatch from Paris indicating that the powers signing the constitution of the League of Nations, could make reservations as to features to which they would not subscribe, whether in whole or in part.

The point was made that, if this was carried out, it would mean that the Senate, when the treaty came before it for ratification, would be able to write its own reservations, so that, if it chose, it might upset many fundamental features of the constitution of the league. The opinion was voiced that, with a multiplicity of reservations, written by various nations, the potency of the league would be gone.

"A league of nations with each nation having greservations as to this or that affair pertaining to its vital national life would be an empty shell," said Senator Reed of Missouri. "It would have no bottom or top or sides. The Senate undoubtedly, under this scheme, if it is put into effect, could write its own reservations and make the league just a little bit more useless. What I wish is that they would stop talking so much over there in Paris and send the soldier boys home. Let us quit palavering and wind the war up with a substantial peace. We have work to do here at home."

Senator Johnson, Republican, of California said:

"I do not doubt that, with the privileges of these reservations, the Senate could practically rewrite the League of Nations. The redraft would go to the President in that event and he could accept it and submit it to the other nations signatory to the treaty, or he could throw it away. A League of Nations with reservations maintained by all the nations would be, in effect, no league at all. It would be a league on paper and without power to do anything worth while."

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho remarked:

"The Senate undoubtedly would be glad to have the precedent established of writing reservations into a treaty and would feel free to make any reservations it saw fit. One of these undoubtedly would concern the Monroe Doctrine. It seems to me that a League of Nations, based on a supposed agreement by which each nation makes its exceptions, would be much lacking in unity of design and purpose. It would simply be unilateral, and would lack system. But at the same time I presume that if it is called the League of Nations, it would have certain necromantic power which we cannot yet comprehend."

ARABS' CASE BEFORE COUNCIL.

Prince Feisal, King's Son, Presents Their Claims.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Prince Feisal, son of the King of the Hedjaz and commander of the Arab forces in Damascus, presented the case of the Arabs to the Supreme Council this afternoon. The formal announcement was issued:

The President of the United States, the Premiers and Foreign Ministers of the allied and associated powers, and Japan's representative on Feb. 6 heard Prince Feisal, who presented the case of the Arabs.

The Commission on International Labor Legislation, under the Chairmanship of Mr. Gompers, also met. The commission commenced a detailed examination of the draft of a convention which provides for the creation of a general organization, with a view to securing the progress of the international labor legislation. Small States, members of the League of Nations, would necessarily be members of this organization. The two first articles of the draft were adopted.

In yesterday's session the Supreme Council received from M. Kramarz and M. Benes a statement of the claims of the new Czechoslovak Republic. These delegates asked that Czechoslovakia comprise Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia, Slovakia, and the Ruthenian section of Hungary, as well as outlying regions where the Czechoslovaks are largely in the majority. This would embrace territory populated by about 13,000,000 people.

The necessity of giving the new State an outlet to the sea was emphasized, it being pointed out that a way should be found northward by the Elbe and Vistula to the North and Baltic Seas, eastward by the Danube to the Black Sea, or southward through Trieste or Fiume to the Adriatic. To this end the delegates asked for the internationalization of waterways and railways, giving them these outlets.

The Supreme Council decided to name a commission of eight members, two each from France, Great Britain, Italy, and the United States, to look into the technical aspects of these claims.

BLOCKADE COUNCIL FORMED.

McCormick Heads Body to Consider Lowering Bars on Imports to Foe.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—A Supreme Allied Blockade Council has been organized to arrange for a relaxation of embargoes upon imports into enemy countries.

Vance McCormick, the American member, has been chosen chairman. The other members are Lord Robert Cecil and Baron Rothermere, for Great Britain; Etienne Clementel, Minister of Commerce, for France, and Dr. Silvio Crespi, Minister of Food, for Italy.

FAVOR LEAGUE PLAN TO SAFEGUARD PEACE

TO RAISE $500,000 FUND

The Atlantic Congress for a League of Nations completed its work yesterday with the adoption of a platform in favor of "the creation of a league of free nations to safeguard the peace now won by the United States and the Allies," a platform which at once was forwarded by cable to President Wilson in Paris and telegraphed to the United States Senate. Before concluding the two-day conference the delegates, in State caucuses, pledged all their States to raise their quotas of the $500,000 fund needed for propaganda purposes. A congress held similarly under the auspices of the League to Enforce Peace, of which William H. Taft is President, starts this morning in Boston and is to be followed in turn by seven others covering all parts of the country.

Besides its business session, the congress held three meetings yesterday—two in the Hotel Astor and one last night in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, at which noted Americans discussed the advantages to be gained from a league of nations. At the morning session the subject was considered from the standpoint of religion and social progress; the afternoon conference at which Edward A. Filene of Boston, was sponsibility of the American Democracy the chief speaker, discussed the reasons for establishing a league, Mr. Filene devoting himself particularly to an analysis of commercial and economic phases. At last night's gathering labor's demand for the league was expressed by Frank P. Walsh, former joint Chairman of the War Labor Board; Hugh Frayne, organizer for the American Federation, and others, several of the speakers asserting that labor's interest in permanent peace was the most vital of all because, they said, labor bore the brunt of wars.

This is the platform presented by Dr. Henry van Dyke, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions and adopted unanimously:

The purposes of the war can be effected and the objects of the treaty of peace about to be drawn can be achieved only by the creation of a league of free nations to safeguard the peace now won by the Allies and the United States. To maintain the settlement of international differences and disputes by reason, justice, and conciliation, rather than by war, and thereby to promote the free, orderly, and peaceful development of the world, this league should have behind it the united force of these nations.

The League to Enforce Peace stands by and upholds the President in an effort to secure an agreement between the powers covering the details of organization, the definition of functions, and the formulation of the joint obligations which the great nations would assume for maintaining the authority of such a league and carrying out its purposes.

We are convinced that the public opinion of the United States is in favor of a league to maintain the peace of the world and will sustain and justify the President and his colleagues at the Peace Conference in approving, in terms consonant with the Constitution of the United States and the spirit of the American people, the assumption by this country of its proportionate burden, in company with the other great nations, for maintaining the authority of such a league.

Sees America as the Leader.

Norman Hapgood, President of the League of Free Nations Association, opened the afternoon session with the declaration that the United States was leading in seeking to apply to the whole world those principles of co-operation that Washington and a few other leaders "induced thirteen suspicious Colonies to undertake over a hundred years ago," adding:

"I have pretty good sources of information from Paris, and I know that a month ago there was much discouragement among our representatives because of the lack of support in this country for the President's efforts. That situation has improved in a month, but it is still true that the President is geting much more enthusiastic support from the populace in other countries than he is from his own public."

Edward A. Filene, prominent in New England commerce, a strong supporter of President Wilson and Chairman of the League's Committee on Finance, following Mr. Hapgood, advanced the two propositions that the right kind of league must rest upon a constructive peace based upon justice and sound principles of organization and that the right kind of league must take into account the fact that the lasting peace of the world must be based upon the effective and harmonious working out of problems of business relations between nations, asserting that there are several problems of business and economics that must be met by international co-operative action if the peace of the world is to be kept during the next few years, not to mention lasting peace.

Mr. Taft opened the morning session by reading a letter from Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, who was unable to come to address the gathering. The Cardinal wrote that there remained a task as difficult as that of winning the war—the rearrangement of the map of Europe so as to keep Germany forever from conspiring against the peace of the world, and the adoption of international machinery for adjustment of international differences and arrangements for uniting economic and military power if need be to maintain justice and reasonable reconciliation of international claims. His letter concluded:

"These are the things, I understand, your league is urging upon the President and other members of the Peace Congress at Paris, and these are the things that your league is urging upon the Senate and the Congress of the United States as a necessary sequence to the victory of the war, if that victory is to have its proper fruits and to justify the welter of blood and the expenditure of vital energy to which the world has subjected itself. With these aims I am in hearty accord, setting forth principles which are eternal and abiding."

Mgr. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, said that the establishment of a league, in its potential blessing, was intensely religious and full of promise of all the things for which religion existed.

In addition to the delegates to the congress, several hundred labor leaders and welfare workers attended the final session at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory last night, at which Mr. Taft urged that the sentiment of the plain people of the nation in favor of machinery for lasting peace might be made so manifest that timid men and reactionaries at Washington might see the light.

Frank Walsh in his address said that the success of a league depended upon the vigor and enthusiasm put behind the demand by the common citizenship of America.

"The workers, of all others," he said, "are interested in a just and effective League of Nations, which will insure the abolition of war for all time. The burden of war falls most heavily upon them."

Hugh Frayne, speaking for the American Federation of Labor, told in detail of the efforts of organized labor to insure peace, reciting particularly the efforts of the federation during the last few years, though, he explained, that did not mean that the federation opposed the entrance of this country into the war just concluded. He added:

"If there had been a League of Nations in 1914 even Germany could not have entered into the war, or would not dare to have done so, if she had so desired."

John A. Voll, President of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association and a member of the Executive Committee of the League to Enforce Peace, also pleaded for the formation of a League of Nations and urged the workers of all countries to heed the plea of President Wilson to that end.

SOCIALISTS DEMAND A LEAGUE OF PEOPLES

Want All Nations Included in Paris Plan—Question of War Blame Is Shelved.

BERNE, Feb. 6.—The International Socialist Conference here today accepted unanimously a resolution drafted by the conference commission Wednesday on the League of Nations. The question had been discussed for two days.

The leading opinion was that a League of Nations must be formed immediately, must comprise all peoples without exception, and that it must be a league of peoples, and not a league of governments.

Arthur Henderson, the British labor leader, said that the Paris Peace Conference was attentively watching to see what the Berne conference would decide in regard to the League of Nations. Pierre Renaudel, leader of the French Majority Socialists, said that the Paris Conference must be forced to consider the will of the Berne Conference.

The conference today put aside the questions of responsibility for the war and the future position of the German Socialists in the conference by adopting a compromise resolution declaring that the conference had passed over the questions of responsibility and the German revolution and had agreed to accept the participation of the German Majority Socialists in the reconstruction of the Socialist Internationale.

The compromise was adopted unanimously except for the vote of one delegate, M. Milhaud, a Frenchman. A strong tendency to exclude the German Majority Socialists was evident in the early discussions, but a spirit of conciliation eventually prevailed.

Herman Müller, addressing the conference, said that the German Socialists had always opposed militarism, adding:

"The young republic of Germany is ready to consent to a general disarmament on the condition that all other countries do the same."

A British delegate, Mr. Macdonald, appealed to the German delegates to declare their repudiation of militarism.

"We English Socialists," he said, "do not want any peoples under arms, because we are convinced that armed nations can never become members of a real League of Nations."

Albert Thomas, former member of the French War Council, said he had no confidence in the German proposals.

Arthur Henderson, the British Laborite, said:

"The Socialists want a league of nations immediately. The secret diplomacy which caused the war has failed."

Mr. Henderson demanded that the Paris Conference accord no indemnities and no territorial acquisitions, but that there should be complete recognition of small nations.

The International Trades Union Conference opened here tonight, with forty-one delegates representing eleven countries in attendance. Delegates were present from the United States and England. Several delegations have not yet arrived.

The conference took up a discussion of international labor legislation in conjunction with the Socialist Conference now being held here. It also worked on the demands which are to be submitted to the Peace Conference. These include an eight-hour day, restrictions on the work of women and children, emigration of paupers and home work under sanitary conditions. The conditions, it was contended, should form a part of the peace treaty.

A permanent committee and a permanent international office of control for the protection of the working classes is anticipated, as is also an international labor Parliament, to be called once a year. Chairman Schneeberger said that the conference did not constitute a quorum and that it had not been regularly summoned, but that, nevertheless, it would continue its work and submit the results to the Peace Conference.

WANT AMERICAN GRAIN FOR GERMANY'S BEER

COBLENZ, Feb. 6.—One of Germany's war hardships which have held over is the lack of good beer. The beer which one gets here today is considered terrible stuff by those who are able to judge. They say that it smells bad and tastes worse. There is much discontent among the Germans because of their beer.

The question of improving the brew was the subject of discussion yesterday at a meeting of the Rhineland Brewers who, after much debate, decided to look to America for grain to make better beer. It was stated that if America would furnish grain for this purpose she would be doing a great service and that President Wilson could thus greatly enhance his reputation in Deutschland.

I understand that the case will soon be laid before the American military authorities here with a plea for the expedition of action.

BANISH ARMY GAUDINESS.

Simple Stripes Replace German Officers' Once Ornate Insignia.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 6.—According to notices published in local newspapers, boys born in 1903 and 1904 may enter the training school for non-commissioned officers on April 15.

The ornate officers' insignia of the German Army have been abolished, and there has been substituted simple stripes of blue wool, to be worn on the left arm of the field-grey uniform. The shoulder insignia have been removed.

The new insignia for the lowest non-commissioned officer—the Unteroffizier—is one stripe of blue wool on the left upper arm, one centimetre wide. The Sergeant has two such stripes, the Vice Feldwebel three stripes, the Feldwebel four stripes. The Second Lieutenant has one stripe of blue wool on the left forearm, two and a half centimetres wide; the First Lieutenant has the same as the Second Lieutenant plus one small stripe; the Captain the same as the Second Lieutenant plus two small stripes; the Major has one stripe of blue wool on the left forearm, four centimetres wide, and the Lieutenant-Colonel the same as the Major, plus one small stripe. The Colonel the same as the Major, plus two small stripes.

The Major-General has one stripe of blue wool on the left forearm, six centimetres wide, and the Lieutenant General the same as the Major-General, plus one small stripe. The General has the same as the Major-General plus two small stripes.

Reports reaching the American Third Army say that the German Soldiers' Council is calling for the resignation of Peoples' Commissioner Noske, who commands the troops.

URGES AMERICAN AID IN ALLIES' STRAITS

'TAKE THE BUMP,' HIS ADVICE

Long-Term Credits a "Cushion" for It—Depicts France's Distracting Problems.

PARIS, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—In advocating an international moratorium in order to give all nations breathing time, Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, who has been studying the financial situation in Europe, said:

"The interdependence of the nations of the world after this cataclysm must be obvious, and therefore the situation in France, the centre of the conflict, is of vital interest to us. The enormous inflation here of the currency has created a temporary and purely fictitious plethora of money, and while the rates for money are quotably low, all food and commodity prices are well nigh prohibitive. This is coincident with the severest restriction of commercial credit.

"Neglecting for a time the indebtedness of France to her allies, (offset to some extent by the deferred collectable obligations of Belgium, Russia, the Balkans, and others held by her investors,) we find on the liability side of the ledger the cost of reconstruction, the return of her monetary circulation to an approximately normal basis, the resumption of her coal and iron production and the development of industries in the restored provinces, the re-establishment of her merchant marine, raw materials of all sorts, foodstuffs, and, lastly, the transformation and regrouping of her vast military establishment into contented industrial communities. This transformation is susceptible of accomplishment with less friction by her than in any other of the belligerent countries.

"On the asset side of the ledger the item of first importance is the matter of the German indemnity, the amount and terms of payment and the method of distribution to individual claimants. The former is in the hands of the Peace Commission, and the latter is the subject of pending national legislation. It will be months before either is definitely determined.

"The present relations between the dollar and the franc are obscured temporarily by the general prohibition on importation of all commodities and the the artificial restrictions placed by the Governments upon exchange.

"The official representatives of the United States stand squarely upon the platform of no embargoes and no restrictions respecting neutral and inter-allied countries, and the rationing of raw materials in the Central Powers after the indemnity terms have been determined. They are convinced that the sooner the lid is lifted the sooner will the Nations affected be able to resume their normal industrial activity. Indeed, they are urging that all embargoes affecting the Near East and the Eastern Mediterranean shall be lifted forthwith.

"The French and British Governments have accumulated considerable reserves of raw materials and manufactured goods for war purposes, which will suffice their present needs and last long enough to allow for a readjustment by conditions and new values. America must therefore look to and prepare for a readjustment of prices before her allies will discuss freedom of control and regulation in trade.

"That is, we may as well recognize the situation in which we are placed and take the bump. We can make a cushion to lessen the shock of the bump by America creating long-term commercial credits and in the creation through the aid of American banks and investors of dollar credits running over a term of years, based on security of undoubted value."

FOOTBALL ON THE RHINE.

COBLENZ, Feb. 6.—Captain Hamilton Fish's eleven from the Fourth Division defeated the Forty-second Division team 6 to 0 in a pretty football game on the Rhine this afternoon. Despite the snow and mud on the field, just above Coblenz, the Fourth Division put up a good exhibition and seemed to justify predictions that it would win the championship of the American Third Army.

This eleven has the greatest aggregation of college football stars of any Army eleven. Its line-up as it entered the game was: Left end, Major Prickett, West Point; left tackle, Lieutenant Moriarity, Georgetown; left guard, Private Ward, Georgetown; centre, Lieutenant Col. Siebert, West Point; right guard, Major Littlejohn, West Point; right tackle, Captain Fish, Harvard; right end, Lieutenant Allen, Yale; quarterback, Lieutenant Belden, North Carolina; full back, Captain Tenney, Brown; half backs, Major Coffin, West Point, and Captain Henning, Michigan.

Colonel Siebert and Captain Fish starred. The only touchdown came in the first quarter, after which the Fourth did not exert itself, easily holding the lighter Rainbow Division team, which was not in the same class.

CALL SERBS UNGRATEFUL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 6.—The newspapers lament the rapidity with which the Serbian people have forgotten to show gratitude to Italy and the Italian Navy. They say that those same people, who arrived on the shores of their country exhausted, famished, and covered with dirt, many dying of typhus and cholera, and were revived by the sight of Italian ships which had come to their rescue, did not hesitate now to take sides against Italy and to use propaganda, trying to discredit her before the eyes of her allies and keeping alive the friction between the Italians and the Jugoslavs.

Italian sailors, it is recorded, went among the Serbian population distributing food and clothing, building huts and transporting those seriously ill on board ship to be taken to Brindisi. In fact, it is urged, they did everything to alleviate their suffering.

A large number of Serbian troops were transported to Durazzo, Valona and Brindisi, where the Italian Sanitary Mission proceeded to disinfect and isolate the serious cases.

A few figures are published to show the help given to Serbia by Italy. From December, 1915, to February, 1916, 11,600 refugees were transported to Brindisi, Lipari, Marseilles and Biserta; 130,841 Serbian soldiers to Corfu, and 4,100 to Biserta.

To do this, six Italian steamers were used and twenty-two other Italian vessels, seventeen French, and five English. This does not include transportation of Serbian cavalry and refugees camping along the Albanian coast.

Large Loans Made to Hedjas Government Every Month.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Great Britain loaned £220,000 monthly to the Hedjas Government to enable it to take an active part in the war against the Turks, according to a letter from Alexandria published by Le Temps. The letter adds £105,000 monthly was paid to Prince Feisal, son of the King of Hedjas and a leader of the Arabian armies, who is now in Paris.

FEARS BANKRUPTCY PLEA BY GERMANY

Raoul Peret Warns Allies to Establish and Secure Indemnities at Once.

FAVORS FINANCIAL LEAGUE.

Thinks Neutrals Who Profited by the War Should Be Taxed—Reference for Invaded Lands.

PARIS, Feb. 6, (Associated Press.)—Germany is making utmost efforts to have the Allies believe that she is nearing bankruptcy, said Raoul Peret, Chairman of the Budget Commission of the Chamber of Deputies and former Minister of Justice, in discussing today the financial problems facing the Peace Conference. The first measures of the conference along financial lines, he said, should be to take measures to prevent Germany from declaring herself an insolvent debtor or a bankrupt State.

"Then," he said, "we should immediately fix the amount of our account against Germany, which she must be made to pay to the full limit of her financial ability without consideration for her feelings. It will be time enough then to decide about the method of payment. She may pay either in capital immediately or in yearly installments.

"I do not believe that Germany at the present time is in a position to pay a large amount in cash. We must not demand from her a too heavy payment now, so as not to place her in a position where she might argue that we are strangling her and killing the goose that is to lay the golden eggs.

"Whether the installments we shall demand from Germany be twenty, thirty, or fifty billions of francs yearly depends entirely upon our decision after an investigation, as to what amount Germany will be able to pay. These payments would be guaranteed by customs tariffs decided upon at the conference, reserving for ourselves the right to raise such tariffs should Germany fail to meet her obligations.

Opposes Continued Occupation.

"This would act as a means of coercion, because I do not believe that we should occupy Germany with a military force until her debt is paid. It is my opinion that once our armies of occupation return from Germany all measures should be taken to make reoccupation unnecessary.

"I believe in the creation of a financial Society of Nations, and that all expenses incurred by each nation should be put in common and an international tax levied upon all until such debts are paid. Neutrals should be included in this financial Society of Nations, especially those neutrals who profited by the war. As a matter of fact we were fighting for the neutrals as well as for ourselves, for had the Pan Germanist dream been realized it would not have been long before Holland, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland and other neutrals would have felt the weight of Germany's iron fist."

Discussing the question whether Germany should be permitted to import raw material so as to enable her to resume her manufacturing industry, M. Peret said:

"I do not believe that all importations of raw material to Germany should be forbidden, because their industry would then be at a standstill and they would be unable to pay. Neither do I believe that they should be permitted to import without limitation because with their lower wages, longer working hours and undepleted supples of machinery they would be able to undersell any other country on the market which would be quite as great a calamity as being unable to pay. However, it will be a long time before any European country can export any raw material and the question mainly interests America.

Preference for Invaded Lands.

"I would suggest that preferential treatment be given to the allied countries as France, Belgium and Serbia have suffered the greatest damage. Raw material from America should be sent to these three countries first, the overflow being allowed to revert to Germany so as to enable her to keep her machinery working without enabling her to undersell us.

"The financial problem is the most momentous one before the Peace Conference and I am greatly surprised that it has not been considered before this. The first thing usually done when a society is founded is to elect a treasurer. Thus, if a Society of Nations is formed, a treasurer should be at once be appointed by the creation of a financial Society of Nations. The solution of the problem, to my mind, is the foundation of a financial Society of Nations in which all the expenses of every belligerent opposed to Germany shall be compiled into one sum. An inventory of Germany's resources should then be made and she should be made to pay by every mark she can get together. Then there should be international taxation, including the neutrals, to make up the balance."

GRAND JURY FINDS SERVICE LAW WEAK

Inquiry Growing Out of B. R. T. Wreck Leads to Conclusion That Board Lacks Power.

The November Grand Jury of Kings County, which indicted officials and employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for manslaughter in both the first and second degrees in connection with the Malbone Street tunnel wreck, and which continued to investigate transit conditions in Brooklyn for two and a half months, brought in a presentment yesterday against the existing Public Service Commission law, and was discharged by County Judge Dike with the thanks of the court. The full text of the presentment follows:

To the County Court, County of Kings:

That since the wreck in the Malbone Street tunnel, on Nov. 1, 1918, in which over ninety of our citizens lost their lives and nearly 200 were maimed or injured, District Attorney Lewis has examined 150 witnesses, including Public Service Commissioners and engineers, and we have continued in almost uninterrupted session for a period of two and one-half months, as the result of which indictments have heretofore been rendered against Timothy S. Williams, John H. Hallock, John J. Dempsey, William S. Menden, Thomas F. Blewitt, and Edward Luciano, alias Anthony Lewis.

As a further result of our investigation, we have concluded that the Public Service Commission law, in its practical workings, is inadequate and a relic of the period when the protection of property was supposed to be more important than the safeguarding of human life; that it is now largely useless as an instrument for the protection of the life and limbs of our people; that a law is needed at once in order to obtain a public body which can, when it desires, compel service by public corporations summarily and expeditiously and enforce prompt compliance with its orders.

We desire to compliment District Attorney Harry E. Lewis for his very thorough and exhaustive examination and work in connection with this disaster as a result of which we were able to fix the responsibility for this catastrophe.

In expressing his appreciation of the Grand Jury's work, Judge Dike said:

"You particularly have been intrusted with the examination into the tragic accident which occurred on one of your public carriers, a tragedy that not only gripped Brooklyn, but the whole country. It became your duty to investigate with the idea of placing the blame and you have fulfilled your trust. Your presentation is most interesting, not only to this community, but, I trust, to our legislators. You are discharged with the thanks of the court."

SCHIFF PRAISES JAPANESE.

Banker Says the Far East Is Safe in Their Keeping.

Jacob H. Schiff paid a tribute to the Japanese in speaking yesterday at a luncheon and meeting of the Executive Committee of the Japan Society in the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway. Lindsay Russell presided and the guests of honor were Baron R. Kondo, President of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, Japan's $50,000,000 steamship corporation, and S. Mogi, one of the leading silk merchants of Yokohoma.

"Since I went to Japan thirteen years ago," said Mr. Schiff, "I have become more and more attracted to Japan and its people. They have grown on me. I have learned to respect them, for their men—their leading men—are the best type of men I have ever met. They have proved reliable in every one of their transactions, intelligent, and their word is as good as their bond. I have had transactions of importance with them, and must commend the exactitude with which the Japanese business men conduct their business. I am glad these guests are coming here now in increasing numbers, for Japan, while it is the land of the past, is also the land of the future. As long as Japan is preeminent in the Far East the Far East is safe to the rest of the world."

Scott Nearing Jury Completed.

The jury to try Scott Nearing, a former professor in the University of Pennsylvania, who is charged with obstructing the draft, was completed yesterday. The case, which is in the Federal Court before Judge Julius M. Mayer, was adjourned until Tuesday next.

the tremendous extra wire facilities for the accommodation of both the newspaper men and the delegates to the Assembly.

Weimar, a clean and attractive city as compared with the present Berlin, lies under a covering of snow which has brought out numbers of sleighs in which the delegates dash to and fro on their errands.

Eichhorn's Name Stricken Off.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 6.—Friedrich Ebert, the German Chancellor, was to open the first session of the National Assembly at Weimar at 3 o'clock this afternoon, according to advices received here. Dispatches from Berlin stated that after the meeting of the body was thus opened the chair was to be taken by the oldest member of the Assembly, probably Herr Pfannkuch.

The advices also report that many members for Alsace-Lorraine presented themselves for the first sitting of the Assembly.

The name of Herr Eichhorn, former Chief of the Berlin Police, who was ousted in the troubles with the Spartacides, will be stricken from the roll of membership of the Assembly, as his whereabouts is not known at Weimar. He will be succeeded by the candidate in his district who received the next largest vote.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Herr Eichhorn is in Sweden, according to a wireless dispatch from Stockholm quoting the Aftonbladet of that city. He went to Sweden after the Danish Government had refused to allow him to remain in Denmark, where he took refuge when he fled from Berlin.

BATTLE IN MAGDEBURG AS NEW REVOLT STARTS

Rebels Storm Court House, Free Prisoners, and Pillage—Government Troops Attack Them.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Serious disorders have broken out in Magdeburg, the capital of Prussian Saxony, according to Berlin advices.

Soldiers and sailors, armed with grenades and machine guns, smashed in the doors of the Court House, liberated 160 prisoners, broke shop windows, pillaged shops and trained machine guns on the inhabitants.

Magdeburg lies on the Elbe, 76 miles southwest of Berlin. It is considered one of the strongest fortresses of Germany, consisting of a citadel, redoubts and a circle of detached forts. Before the war the city had a population of nearly 300,000.

The iron and steel industry of Magdeburg was closely associated before the war and probably during the period of hostilities with the great Krupp establishment at Essen.

HUNDREDS SHOT DOWN IN BREMEN FIGHTING

PARIS, Feb. 6.—A dispatch from Bremen announces that during the fighting in that city on Tuesday eighty-five persons were killed and several hundred wounded.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 6.—A new provisional government, composed of five Majority Socialists, has been proclaimed in Bremen. It takes the place of the government composed of "People's Mandatories" and the Workmen's Council.

BERLIN, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—The Spartacus organ, the Red Flag, which since its resumption of publication a few days ago has been indulging in the most violent attacks on the Ebert government, issued today an appeal to the workingmen to avenge the "throttling" of the Bremen insurrection by adopting resolutions of protest and electing new Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils under radical control.

The paper demands the overthrow of the Government and refers to Premier Ebert and Philipp Scheidemann as "bloodhounds." It calls the workingmen "to the breastworks" and urges them to gather for the purpose of inspiring "terror."

The organ of the Independent Socialists, Die Freiheit, says that now that the details of the Bremen fighting are known, "the soldiers and workingmen should protest against the present shame-covered Government and create a new storm of fury which ought to sweep it from its place."

"With the restoration of order in Bremen," it says, "the Sparticides have lost one of their strongholds. The result is a further step in achieving the ordered conditions which alone can enable the German people to find their way out of their present misery."

WAR REVENUE BILL BEFORE CONGRESS

shape of the most severe penalties for wilful violation of the spirit of the proposed legislation.

The question of the decreased value of plants and machinery, expanded or turned over to war work, as a result of the signing of the armistice and the cessation of hostilities, has appeared as one of the outstanding questions in connection with the determination of taxable income. An insertion was made in Section 234 by the conferees providing for "a reasonable allowance for obsolescence in the case of buildings, machinery, equipment, or other facilities constructed, erected, installed, or acquired on or after April 6, 1917, (the date of America's entry into the war) for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the present war, and in the case of vessels, &c."

Last Filing Day March 15.

Paragraph 14 of Section 234 provides that at the time of filing returns for the taxable year 1918, which, in the proposed law is March 15 next, a taxpayer may file also a claim in abatement based on the fact that he has sustained a substantial loss, whether or not actually realized by sale or other disposition, resulting from material reduction of the value of inventory for such taxable year, &c. But the provision is inserted that this shall not be made on loss due to temporary fluctuation in the market value of the product. It has been stated that this provision concerning temporary fluctuations was inserted as a safeguard against any deliberate attempt to knock down values temporarily in order to escape just tax and to prevent any from escaping tax who might claim deduction on a commodity the value of which would be depressed for a short time, and which might be held by the owner looking for an increase later on when the demand for the commodity was greater.

Much comment was heard today also over the fact that the bill provides for the first returns to be filed on March 15 instead of in June, as in the 1917 legislation, because of the delay which has attended the conference agreement. There was a report that an effort was being considered by Senate conferees to obtain a definite extension of this date for filing the first return by pressing the passage of a separate joint resolution in Congress.

The Senate provisions for a normal tax of 12 per cent. on the incomes of individuals in excess of credits and exemptions provided, with the exception that the rate shall be 6 per cent. on the first $4,000, is adopted for the tax year 1918. Thereafter the rates shall be respectively 8 and 4 per cent. The Senate surtaxes on individual incomes, which were adopted, begin in section 211, subdivision (a) at 1 per cent. on the amount of net income between $5,000 and $6,000, and increase, by a graduated scale, to 65 per cent.

Sub-division (b) of this section, a Senate amendment adopted by the conferees, provides that the tax on mines, oil or gas wells, where the principal value was demonstrated by prospecting, shall not exceed 20 per cent. of the selling price.

The original House provisions relating to partnerships and personal service corporations, as presented in Section 218, are not materially altered. Individuals carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in their individual capacity. The House provisions for payment of tax at the source are largely retained.

Taxes on individual and corporation incomes may be made in quarterly payments if the taxpayer desires. The date for filing the first returns is fixed in Section 227, Sub-division (a.)

Taxation of Corporations.

The normal tax for the calendar year 1918 on corporations is fixed at 12 per cent. of the amount of net income, in excess of credits provided, by the adoption of the Senate amendment as stated in Paragraph 1 of subdivision A of Section 230. For each calendar year thereafter the normal tax is put at 10 per cent. The House conferees had first sought an 18 per cent. tax for 1918. The Senate conferees wanted to fix the tax after 1918 at 8 per cent. The 12 and 10 per cent. schedules adopted represented a compromise.

Conditional and other exemptions are covered in Section 231, including an addition, inserted by the conferees, dealing with domestic building and loan associations and co-operative banks. The Senate conferees deferred to the House in the matter of taxes on insurance, the proposed law, effective April 1, providing for taxation on practically existing rates, based on policies written.

The Senate amendment (Section 240) providing that corporations which are affiliated within the meaning of the section shall, under prescribed regulations, make a consolidated return of net income and invested capital, with an added provision concerning affiliated corporations organized since August 1, 1914, and 50 per cent. of whose gross income comes from Government contracts entered into since April 6, 1917. In the latter case the corporations shall be separately assessed.

Section 250 of this Title presents the conditions on which returns may be made quarterly. The original House provision was for payment in three installments.

The old Section 262—a Senate amendment providing for 100 per cent. tax on campaign contributions over $500—is eliminated from the bill.

Title III, now changed to read "War-profits and Excess-profits Tax," represents a compromise. The Senate proposed for 1918 an excess profits tax of 30 per cent. of the amount of net income not in excess of 20 per cent. of invested capital; a 60 per cent. tax in excess of 20 per cent. of the invested capital, and an 80 per cent. war profits tax, with rates of 20 per cent., and 40 per cent., to be substituted for the 30 and 60 per cent. tax for 1919.

The House conferees stood out for a 65 per cent. tax on net income in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital in 1918, and an 80 per cent. war profits tax on war contracts in 1919. Concessions were made to the House conferees in the conference report, thus adding 5 per cent. to the excess profits tax on net incomes in excess of 20 per cent. of invested capital, to the taxes of corporations which escape the war profits tax. This surrender by the Senate conferees will make a considerable increase in the taxes collected. The details of these taxes are covered in Section 301. The conferees added the provision that any corporation whose net income for the taxable year was less than $3,000 shall be exempt from taxation under this title.

Intangible Assets.

The conferees included the House provision for the inclusion of intangible property, such as patents, copyrights, &c., in invested capital, as provided in Paragraphs 4 and 5 of Subdivision (a), of Section 326, with the proviso, added by the conferees, that the total amount in no case shall exceed, in the aggregate, 25 per cent. of the par value of the total stocks or shares of the corporation outstanding at the beginning of the taxable year. The subject of invested capital is dealt with at length in this section, and appears as a rewritten section, covering both House and Senate proposals.

A compromise was reached also on the question of estate taxes proposed in the original House draft. The Senate submitted an amendment providing for an inheritance tax, but to this the House members of the conference would not defer. The outcome was the adoption of the House estate tax system as presented in Title 4. The original House proposal was to have the tax begin at 3 per cent. of the net estate not in excess of $50,000 and gradually reach 40 per cent. of the amount by which the net estate exceeded $10,000,000.

The new title provides for the House system of estate tax, with the rate beginning at 1 per cent. on the amount of the net estate, not in excess of $50,000, and running up to 25 per cent. of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $10,000,000. The conferees wrote in a paragraph that the taxes imposed should not apply to the net estate of any decedent who has died or may die in the present war while serving in the military or naval forces. Other exemptions relating to legacies to public or charitable or educational purposes, &c., were written in by the conferees.

The existing law is followed largely by the conference agreement on taxes on transportation and other facilities. The schedule is effective April 1. It reduces from 10 per cent. to 8 per cent. the tax on seats, berths, and stateroom accommodations in sleeping or parlor cars and on vessels. A provision is added by the conferees that taxes on water transportation on American lines shall not exceed the tax schedule placed by foreign countries on their lines.

Higher Taxes on Beverages.

The new tax on beverages follows the Senate amendments, so far as the rates are concerned. They are covered in detail in Title VI of the bill. The House proposed a tax of $8 a gallon on distilled liquor for beverage purposes, and the Senate cut it to $6.40, which is twice the present tax. The House wanted a tax of $4.40 on distilled spirits not for beverage purposes. The Senate cut this to $2.20, and that rate was accepted. The title goes into the taxation of wines and beer, as well as near-beer and table waters.

Title VII, goes into detail concerning taxes on cigars, tobacco and manufactures thereof. The taxes on admissions, and dues to clubs, are covered in Title VIII.

Title IX, dealing with excise taxes and including luxury and semi-luxury taxes, will affect a great mass of people. The taxes as presented in the conference report represent, in most instances, the Senate amendments. These amendments cut taxes on pianos and other musical instruments, including talking machines, from the House proposal of 10 per cent. to 5 per cent. The House tax of 10 per cent. is retained on sporting goods. The chewing gum tax represents a cut, by the Senate amendment, from 5 per cent. to 3 per cent. The Senate put in a tax of 10 per cent. on hunting knives and agreed to a 100 per cent. tax on dirks, sword canes, and weapons of that sort. The Senate amendment cut the proposed tax on toilet soaps from 10 per cent. to 3 per cent. Men's and boys' suits and overcoats and women's and misses' suits and cloaks were eliminated from the taxable items, but hats, shoes, shirts, and other clothing over a certain stated price—as low as $3 in the case of shoes—are taxed 10 per cent. So are silk stockings costing men more than $1 and women $2. These are a few typical cases.

The special taxes in Title X include most of the Senate amendments, with a paragraph written in by the conferees covering insurance taxes imposed by this title. The Senate taxes were, as a general proposition, slightly lower than the House proposals.

Representative Rainey's proposal to strengthen the Harrison Anti-Drug Act of 1914, and providing for the close supervision of all persons, including dispensing physicians, who sell medicines containing habit-forming drugs, was adopted by the conferees. It provides for a licensing system and a record of all sales. This provision is known as Section 1007, and is included in Title X.

Stamp taxes are retained, including a 1 cent tax for each 25 cents or fraction thereof on parcels sent by parcel post.

The prohibitory tax on child labor—a tax in addition to all others levied in the bill—is included in Title XII. It was a Senate addition to the original House bill. Under general administrative provisions, the bill provides for an Advisory Tax Board of not to exceed six members.

The income tax salary exemption provided for persons in the military service retains the House maximum of $3,500 and provides that such exemption shall be limited to those in active service, regardless, however, of foreign or domestic service.

TAXES ON INCOMES AND THE SUPERTAXES

Amounts Paid Under Previous Laws Compared with Those Levied Under New Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The tremendous increase in the taxes that are to be paid out of personal incomes under the new tax provisions, as compared with the taxes paid under legislation for previous years is shown by tables, prepared from figures supplied to THE TIMES by Treasury Department experts.

In 1913, 1914, and 1915 a married man with a net personal income of $50,000 paid a normal tax of $160 and a surtax of $300, or a total tax on personal income of $760. In 1916 the normal tax on a similar net income was $400 and the total personal income tax $1,320. In 1917 the normal tax was $1,880 and the surtax $3,300, or a total of $5,180.

Under the new bill a man with a net income of $50,000 would pay a normal income of $5,520 and a surtax of $5,510, or a total of $11,030, about fifteen times the tax of 1915.

The man with a net income of $1,000,000 will lose nearly 70 per cent. of it under the bill just completed. In 1915 his normal tax would have been $9,906, and his surtax $50,050, a total of $60,046. In 1916 his normal tax was $19,920 and his surtax $83,000, a total of $101,920. In 1917 his normal tax was $39,880 and his surtax $432,300, a total of $475,180. Under the bill just reported from conference his normal tax will be $110,520, his surtax $583,510, and the total tax $694,030.

In 1913, 1914, and 1915 the normal tax on the net personal income of a married man was 1 per cent. after an exemption of $4,000, and the surtax began after the first $20,000. In 1916 the normal tax was 2 per cent. after an exemption of $4,000 for married men and the surtax began on income over $20,000. The highest surtax rate in 1916 was 13 per cent. on that part of the income above $2,000,000.

In 1917 the normal tax was 2 per cent. on the excess of $4,000, as provided under the 1916 law, and 2 per cent. additional on all income above $2,000. The surtax began at $5,000.

In the proposed law the normal tax is 6 per cent. on the first $4,000 of net income and 12 per cent. on net income over $4,000. The surtax begins at $5,000, and runs on a graduated scale to 64 per cent. of the amount over 500,000, and not over $1,000,000. On the part of the income in excess of $1,000,000, the surtax is 65 per cent.

The taxes outlined are for married men, who get a stated exemption of $2,000, and also certain exemptions, deducted before the net income is computed. To single men are allowed a stated exemption of $1,000 and minor deductions.

Table of Normal Taxes.

The table given here shows the normal taxes paid by married men in 1916 and 1917, and those which will be payable under the new law. The surtaxes are given in another table and must be added to normal taxes by those whose incomes are subject to surtaxes, to get at their total taxation on personal incomes.

1,500,000 to 2,000,000	310,000	1,050,300

Over $2,000,000, 63 per cent.

The table next given, which was prepared by Treasury Department experts, by request of THE NEW YORK TIMES, shows the proposed surtaxes under the new law.

It begins at $6,000 as the first tax is levied on the amount of net income above $5,000. After the first tax of 1 per cent. on the part of the net income between $5,000 and $6,000, the tax proceeds by steps or zones of $2,000 each up to $100,000, the tax being cumulative and the percentage of tax increasing with each zone.

NO FILING TIME EXTENSION.

Income and Profits Returns Must Be Made by March 15.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—No extension of the time for filing income and profits returns beyond March 15 will be made by the Treasury, Secretary Glass said today. This means that individuals and business interests will have to make great haste in preparing and filing their returns, since forms for the reports will not be available for two or three weeks. The first installment payment of 25 per cent. will be due March 15.

If any business interests are not able to prepare final returns by March 15, Mr. Glass said, they may report approximate figures on income or profits and later file a supplementary report. They also may begin immediately to make the necessary calculations in the light of the Revenue bill as reported.

In deciding to make no extension, the Treasury reversed its former opinion that one would be necessary.

the Hozan Maru and Mandasan, were ordered to San Francisco to load cargo for the Orient.

Alert at Camp Lewis.

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 6.—Under command of Brig. Gen. John L. Hayden, 800 soldiers left Camp Lewis shortly after 1 o'clock for Seattle today. The soldiers were accompanied by thirty trucks carrying provisions and ammunition.

Camp officials stated that the men would be placed in Seattle to "stand ready for any emergency." Demobilization at Camp Lewis halted today under orders from Major Gen. Joseph D. Leitch. Bus lines operating between Tacoma and Camp Lewis were ordered commandeered and soldiers were placed in charge of the operation.

The linemen and operators, who operate the city light and power plans said today that they would fight, if necessary, to retain their jobs. The members of the allied printing trades unions adhered to the commands of their international officers, who warned them against joining a sympathetic strike.

Responded to Governor's Call.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Sending of troops from Camp Lewis to Seattle was authorized by Secretary Baker after he had been advised by the Governor of Washington of the situation there due to a general strike. The commandant was directed to furnish whatever military assistance and protection the State authorities might request.

War Department officials said that under the law the department was required to furnish such protection as State executives might request. The message from the Governor of Washington did not ask for assistance, but merely outlined the situation.

STRIKE ON AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Machinists Out, Along with 2,500 Shipyard Helpers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 6.—More than 1,500 machinists, employed in eighty-five shops, went on a strike here today as a result of a controversy with their employers involving the Macy basic wage scale, retroactive pay, and Saturday half holidays. The walkout does not affect shipyards.

Between 2,500 and 3,000 men rated as "helpers" to other crafts went on strike in the Oakland and Alameda shipyards for the right to be classed as journeymen mechanics and to obtain an increase of from $4.64 to $6.40 a day. The Oakland boilermakers have declared a "holiday" tomorrow to vote on a strike for a flat wage of $1 an hour.

Executives of the Pacific District Council of Boilermakers, embracing twelve unions along the Pacific Coast, announced today that eight of the unions had voted a strike on Feb. 10 for a $1 an hour wage.

SENATE MODIFIES EMBARGO INQUIRY

MEMBERS' TEMPER CHANGED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Senate, by a viva voce vote, today modified the Weeks resolution asking the State Department if it had taken any steps to ascertain why Great Britain was imposing its embargo on imports.

The resolution declared the embargo violated the third point of President Wilson's fourteen peace propositions, relating to economic barriers. In debate today Senator King insisted that there was no such violation, and on his motion, with Senator Weeks's consent, the clause to that effect was stricken out. As the resolution now stands it simply calls upon the State Department for information as to whether anything has been done to inquire if the embargo is necessary, along with the suggestion that the embargo is inimical to American industrial interests.

Senator King criticised the advocates of the Weeks resolution, insisting that they had taken an attitude that must be regarded in Great Britain as inconsistent. America wants embargoes against Canadian grain and products of other countries to protect her own industries, he said, and would assume a false position if she quarreled with Great Britain about an embargo to protect British interests.

Accuses Weeks of Inconsistency.

"I am somewhat astounded or astonished at the attitude taken by the Senator from Massachuses," said Senator King. "The Senator belongs to that school of political thought which believes that high tariffs and embargoes are the panacea for all our industrial and economic ills. He belongs to the party that has advocated for so many years not only a restrictive tariff, but often a prohibitive tariff, a party that has exhibited a vast amount of solicitude for rich manufacturers who are profiting by exploiting labor and by overcharging the American consumer. If it be a fact that Great Britain has imposed an embargo on certain products, that is merely an exemplification of the high tariff doctrine for which the Senator has contended."

Senator McCumber of North Dakota urged an embargo against Canadian grain, "so that we may uphold the prices we have guaranteed for our own grain."

"Can we complain against another nation doing exactly what we are bound to do?" he demanded.

Senator Weeks explained that he had merely wanted to see that America protected her own industries.

"Under the conditions that prevail now every patriotic man will find it necessary to vote for a higher protective tariff than the Republican Party has ever advocated," he said. "The question of idle labor is involved. We must build up our own industries."

Senator Lewis of Illinois, who yesterday warned Britain not to arouse the "spirit of 1812," explained that he had not meant to assume that the Weeks resolution was a criticism of the British Government. He thought that it simply called for information from the State Department.

REACH FOOTWEAR AGREEMENT

British and American Firms Adopt Basis for Fair Competition.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—At a conference today held by British manufacturers and importers and representatives of American shoe manufacturers, an agreement was reached by which American and British firms dealing in boots and shoes can start competition on a fair and equal basis. Details will be arranged later.

The conference was arranged by the American Chamber of Commerce in London to discuss the new import restrictions of the British Government.

BRITAIN'S LOSS IN SHIPPING.

A. S. Hurd Puts Total at 9,055,668 Tons—17 Times America's.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—In urging that immediate steps be taken to rebuild the British Merchant Marine, Archibald S. Hurd, the naval writer, in an article in The Daily Telegraph says that, although the United Kingdom was not invaded, Great Britain has paid for victory in the loss of more than 9,000,000 tons of shipping, ten times as much as that lost by either France or Italy. The British losses were 17 times as much as those of the United States.

"Owing to little having been said of the injuries inflicted on this country in the war," Mr. Hurd says, "there is an impression in allied and neutral countries that we paid a relatively small price for victory. It is true that we were not invaded, but that was due, not to good fortune, for the sea is the easiest and quickest medium for an invader, but to good policy. It is also true that we were not starved, but that was the result of judgment and organization. It is very necessary that due importance should be attached to the injury inflicted upon us as a people who follow the sea, because there is a temptation to exaggerate the damage sustained by the Allies on the land and to ignore the results of enemy action by sea.

"The United Kingdom and Dominions, 9,055,668; the United States, 501,038; Belgium, 105,081; Brazil, 31,279; Denmark, 245,302; Holland, 229,041; France, 807,077; Greece, 414,675; Italy, 861,435; Japan, 270,033; Norway, 1,117,760; Spain, 237,862; Sweden, 264,001.

"The British tonnage sunk, therefore, was more than ten times as much as that lost by either France and Italy and seventeen times as much as that lost by America.

EX-MAYOR LENNON KILLED.

Democratic Leader in Westchester County Hit by Auto.

Ex-mayor James T. Lennon of Yonkers was killed by an automobile at Getty Square in that city yesterday afternoon. He had been talking with several friends and had started across the street for an appointment at 4 o'clock when he was knocked down and run over by the forward wheels of a passing automobile.

At St. Joseph's Hospital it was found that his injuries included a fracture of the skull. Mr. Lennon did not regain consciousness, and he expired a few minutes after reaching the operating room.

The owner of the automobile, David Davis of 65 Warburton Avenue, who had taken Mr. Lennon to the hospital, was arrested on a charge of homicide pending investigation of the accident by Coroner George Engle.

"Short Ads are the Best"

"A short, snappy ad, that gets the point over quick, is the best, because people haven't time to spend reading a lotta stuff."

Nearly any one you ask could assure you of this.

Mail order firms that receive direct orders in answer to their advertisements know what pays and what doesn't; what people read and what they don't read.

And yet, strangely enough, mail order advertisements are often very long; we knew one once that had 2200 words of fine type and it "pulled" very profitably.

People must read long advertisements, or these "keyed" many-worded announcements would not be profitable.

On the other hand Cream of Wheat advertisements often have no text at all—just a picture. With no other means of sales promotion, a great business has been created by this pretty picture advertising alone.

Should advertisements be short or long?

The whole subject of advertising can not be safely jammed into a few epigrams.

A New Industry

Before the war the United States imported from Germany almost all of its dye materials in both the raw and finished products. In the last few years the United States not only succeeded in manufacturing sufficient dyestuffs to supply its own markets but was also able to export dye products valued at $17,000,000 during the fiscal year 1918. This achievement has proved of signal importance to the textile manufacturers.

The Citizens National Bank is particularly identified with the textile trade and is always interested in the development of such new industries. It offers its co-operation to merchants and manufacturers in meeting new conditions in this period of readjustment.

BUILDERS BELITTLE CARPENTERS' THREAT

Say Construction Is Only 10 Per Cent. of Normal and Men Can Be Replaced.

ALLIED UNIONS PLEDGE HELP

Promise Sympathetic Strike Involving 2,000,000 Men if Lockout Is Enforced.

Samuel B. Donnelly, Secretary of the Building Trades Employers' Association, although confirming yesterday that the employers had voted a lockout against building trade unionists in this city, was inclined to minimize the effect of the strike and lockout. Building in New York, he said, is at present only 10 per cent. of normal, and in cities where carpenters working on Government contracts on association jobs had already quit work their places had been filled by nonunionists.

The lockout is scheduled for tomorrow at noon, and if put into effect the unionists, through William J. Bowen, President of the Bricklayers, Masons, and Plasterers' International Union, have promised a general sympathetic strike throughout this country and Canada in the allied building unions, involving approximately 2,000,000 men. At a meeting held yesterday at the Continental Hotel he heads of a number of the international unions of the allied building unions pledged their support in the controversy between the carpenters and the employers.

At this meeting were William L. Hutcheson, President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; William J. Bowen of Indianapolis, President of the International Union of Bricklayers; Milton Snelling of the International Hoisting Engineers, a representative of the stone cutters, and Peter Cooke, Vice-President of the International Plasterers.

The strike situation was reviewed from the beginning in a statement issued yesterday by the Building Trades Employers' Association. In violation of their agreement, the carpenters had struck on eight jobs in this city, including work on the Pennsylvania and Commodore Hotels, then in process of construction, said the statement. Strikes had also been called in December and in January on the work of members of the association located outside of New York City. Last week, the statement added, the international officers of the Bricklayers' and Hoisting Engineers' Union ordered a sympathetic strike on five jobs in this city.

"The bricklayers and engineers have no grievances and their strike is called for the sole purpose of supporting the carpenters," said the statement. "The association at a meeting held on Monday granted the privilege of the floor to the representatives of the International Union, and these representatives have been repeatedly advised that if the carpenters return to work under the provisions of the agreement, the Employers' Association will immediately confer with them on the question of a new agreement and give prompt consideration to the matter of settling any and all of the grievances they may present."

W. L. Hutcheson, the spokesman of the International Carpenters and Joiners' Union, said yesterday that all efforts to confer with the employers in November regarding the expiring agreement had been postponed by the latter until the Board of Governors met. The schedule then arranged gave $5.50 to the carpenters, who wanted $6.50. The carpenters, he said, had had only one increase in wages since 1909, and this was an increase of 50 cents a day, granted in 1916. Meanwhile, he added, independent contractors had signed the agreement for $6.50. Sub-contractors were paying $6.50 a day also, while men working beside carpenters for the association contractors were getting a dollar less. The men, he said, quit work without orders from the union.

About 2,000 shop Chairmen, members of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Makers' Union, which is a branch of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, met last night in Cooper Union and voted that, unless the members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, against which the garment workers' union is conducting a strike of 20,000 workers, discharged their alleged detectives, who were hampering picketing, a sympathetic strike on the part of the cloakmakers might be looked for.

Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, is also the head of the subsidiary organization, and he told the shop Chairmen that in the same buildings where they were working members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association were employing "what they call detectives, but men who are really there only to cause disorder among the pickets."

Morris Weiss, President of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, in a statement issued yesterday, asserted that the advertised list of firms who have settled with the union was inspired by the latter organization.

"The firms in question are not manufacturers," he said. "They employ no workers. They are jobbers purely and simply. They buy the finished product of small manufacturers or contractors. Their so-called settlement with the union is nothing more than an agreement whereby permission is granted to them by the union to continue their business of buying finished garments from a few contractors who are not members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association."

UNIONS PROPOSE TO OPERATE ROADS

a Federal law. It should be authorized to take and hold and operate these properties under the full regulatory power of the Government, to whom it should account for all of its operations and expenditures. It should be required to meet all costs of operation and fixed charges upon the capital employed which had been guaranteed by the Government. A certain agreed percentage of the net results of operation should belong to this corporation.

"The stock of this corporation should be held in trust for the benefit of the employes. The earnings of the corporation should constitute a trust fund to be declared as a dividend upon the amounts paid to the labor which it employs, every employe receiving that proportion of this trust fund which his annual wage bore to the total annual compensation of all employes. The affairs of this corporation should be administered by a Board of Directors, which we suggest, merely tentatively, should be elected in the following manner: One-third of the Directors to be elected by the classified employes below the grade of appointed officials; one-third by the appointed officers and employes; the final third being appointed by the President of the United States. This Board of Directors should have power to appoint all officers down to the point where employment begins by classification and to prescribe the conditions of employment and classification of all other employes."

In voicing objection to the creation of a Secretary of Transportation, Mr. Plumb says:

"It would be regulating the price which the public must pay for a public service in the interest of capital—a complete reversal of theory of governmental regulation. If this be done for the railways, we would soon be asked to have a regulating department to secure adequate returns for capital invested in the steel business, a like department for the same purpose to protect capital invested in the packing business, and, in short, very quickly we would have a sovereign people enslaved by regulations to protect in the hands of a few capital which they had accumulated from the labor of all."

Mr. Plumb opposes the non-political order of Mr. McAdoo, saying:

"We must vehemently object to being in any way barred from full participation in the affairs of this nation, in which we are so vitally interested."

This morning Senator Cummins of Iowa asked Director General Hines, who was completing testimony before the Senate committee, why this order was ever issued. Mr. Hines said Mr. McAdoo had known of a "practice dating back to early days" of the Government putting limitations on the political activities of its employes, and that Mr. McAdoo considered the railway employes Government workers.

Mr. Plumb will tell the Senate committee tomorrow that, with the railroads valued at $20,000,000,000, Government-obtained interest at 4 to 4½ per cent., as against private-obtained interest at 6 to 7, would save annually $400,000,000 to $600,000,000. Estimating the value of the systems at $18,000,000,000, he calculates that this could be reduced to $12,000,000,000 by the elimination of watered stocks.

The Government is now paying the railroads an annual rental of about $900,000,000 under the Federal Control act. In 1918 the railroads, under Government ownership, produced a net income of only $685,000,000, or $215,000,000 less than the Government rental. Unofficial forecasts of the operating results for 1919 indicate that there will again be a large deficit and that if the volume of traffic declines materially, as indicated, the deficit will reach $300,000,000.

While the value of the railroads is $18,000,000,000, as indicated by the books of the companies, spokesmen for the brotherhoods think a considerable part of this valuation has come from increased land values and investment of surplus earnings in the properties. They assert that the present owners of the railroads ought not to receive any income on property paid for out of earnings or on the unearned increment in land values, and they estimate that the Government might be able, through the courts, to purchase the $18,000,000,000 of railroad securities for as little as $12,000,000,000. The fixed charges at 5 per cent. would then be $600,000,000 instead of $900,000,000.

Railroad labor organization leaders urging this project profess not to be disturbed by the large losses shown by Government operation and seem to think that if they are allowed to run the roads under the radical plan proposed a net income of $1,000,000,000 could be produced, and then point out that if the interest to be paid should amount to $750,000,000 an income of a billion would leave $250,000,000, half of it to go to the national Treasury and the other $125,000,000 to be divided pro rata among the employes.

This would be about 5 per cent. of the payroll, and it was pointed out tonight that under such an operation of the plan an employe earning $1,500 in wages would receive a $75 profit sharing dividend, and an executive receiving a salary of $50,000 a year would receive a profit-sharing dividend of $2,500.

One of the contentions of advocates of the project is that labor's interest in the railroad financial budget is four times greater than that of capital because wages paid to labor are $2,600,000,000, compared with about $700,000,000 a year paid in interest and dividends to security owners, and that for this reason labor has a greater right than capital to demand control of the management of the railroads.

Mr. Hines, in his testimony today said he could not dodge the conviction that there was a tendency to turn back the roads to private ownership in the theory that Federal control was not successful, due to a disturbing war-year. Senator Cummins said Mr. Hines underestimated the public judgment. The Senator said the people had never "been in better spirit toward the railroads than today." Mr. Hines said "the least desired" plan would be that of turning back the roads after the twenty-one months period. "A definite stop-watch period," he called this, and said he would rather see the roads returned inside of twelve months.

Senator Smith, the Chairman, said today that after all the testimony was in the committee would bend its efforts toward framing a permanent solution of the difficult railroad question. There does not appear to be any decided disposition among committee members to interfere with the present status, except that it is believed the bill by Senator Cummins of Iowa, estopping the President from returning the roads within twenty-one months after the peace treaty, will be passed by the committee, and probably the Senate.

BRYAN OFFERS RAILROAD PLAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Plans for the solution of the railroad problem were presented to the National Rivers and Harbors Congress today by William Jennings Bryan, Luther M. Walter of Chicago, general counsel for the Railroad Security Holders' Organization, and other speakers. Improvement of port facilities was urged by Secretary of Commerce Redfield as a means of increasing the nation's foreign commerce.

In presenting a dual plan of State and Government ownership of railroads, Mr. Bryan predicted that the roads would be returned to private ownership at the end of twenty-one months after peace on the same basis as that existing when they were taken over by the Government, unless the President should arbitrarily turn them back before.

Mr. Bryan's plan contemplated ownership by the Government of trunk lines, so as to give every State an outlet for its products with the distributing railroads under State ownership. He followed Mr. Walter, who presented the so-called Warfield plan of operation. Mr. Bryan criticised the 6 per cent. guarantee advocated under this plan, saying that a policy of guaranteed incomes would not be accepted by the American people.

William R. Wheeler of San Francisco, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Frank Lyon of Washington engaged in a debate on freight rates for inland waterways and railroads. Mr. Lyon urged abolition of the rate war between water and rail transportation while Mr. Wheeler spoke on the question of lower rail rates to points on waterways and the maintenance of much higher rates to inland points.

WHEAT GUARANTEE BILL IS APPROVED

Appropriates $1,000,000,000 and Gives President Power Over Crop Handling.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—While the farmer would be paid the $2.26 Government guarantee for the 1919 wheat crop, the wheat would be sold to the consumer at a price to be dictated by the law of supply and demand under legislation approved tonight by the House Agricultural Committee. The Government would lose the difference between the purchase and sale prices.

With the Government given absolute control of the wheat market in the United States, members of the committee said it would be difficult to determine what would be the price if the usual law of supply and demand were in operation, but they thought it would be based largely on the world market price. Some witnesses who have testified at hearings before the committee have predicted a world price of $1.25 a bushel.

On the basis of such a price the Government would stand a loss of about $1 a bushel, but committee members would not venture a prediction as to what the total loss might be, as forecasts of the 1919 crop depend upon many factors. The crop is estimated now at about 1,000,000,000 bushels.

The bill approved by the committee is a substitute for that presented by the Food Administration and Department of Agriculture. It gives the President discretionary powers to continue the present agency for handling the wheat crop or create a new one and appropriate $1,000,000,000 as a revolving fund to carry out the guarantee.

Members of the committee believe that a regulatory body similar to the Food Administration and a commercial agency like the United States Grain Corporation will be necessary to enable the Government to take over and dispose of the crop.

A licensing system similar to that now in effect, placing all agencies handling wheat under Government control, is authorized by the bill, and whatever agency the President may establish will be given broad powers in handling the crop and controlling exports of wheat.

BOSTON ORCHESTRA AGAIN.

One of America's artistic contributions to a League of Nations might be the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which brightens as it takes its flight for the last time but one this season over cities south of its home town. Last night at Carnegie Hall, the old crush of waiting limousines, the new waiting list of subscribers, marked a milestone on Henri Rabaud's journey with the famous band. The 102 players, the calm, bearded leader, recalled the days of Gericke, as still more did the symphony, Beethoven's fifth, which was hugely applauded, a supreme opus in its kind.

Mr. Rabaud conducted con amore three works of modern France. A man of opera himself, he plainly delighted in Chabrier's prelude to Act 2 of "Gwendoline." A classicist, he reveled in Franck's curious "Psyche," not so much Elgin marble or Tanagra clay, as a kindly, converted Goth digging in the dust heaps of Rheims; yet much must later impressionists have borrowed from this music, in which virtuoso winds portrayed a "Psyché Enlevée par les Zéphirs."

Lalo's rhapsody in A, last of all, was the best liked after the symphony; here were giant fiddles and harps, as on a mountain top, casting shadows upon the clouds. Tonight the orchestra plays in Brooklyn, with Rachmaninoff, and tomorrow again in Carnegie Hall, the last till March.

WARBURG FAVORS FEDERAL CONTROL

POLITICS IN OWNERSHIP

Government Operation, He Declares, Would Make for Stagnation and Inefficiency.

Paul M. Warburg, former Vice Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, addressing the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York at the regular monthly meeting yesterday, discussed the problem of American railroads and said he believed there should be Federal control, but not Federal ownership, of the carriers.

The Chamber indorsed the plan for bi-State action embraced in the proposed treaty or compact between New York and New Jersey, submitted for public discussion by the New York-New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission. A minute presented by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler on Theodore Roosevelt, who was an honorary member of the Chamber, was adopted. Had he lived, the minute said, he would have been in the forefront of the fight against the forces of anarchy, unreason, and destruction. A resolution was adopted requesting the Railroad Administration to restore at the Port of New York the lighterage service guaranteed under existing tariffs. A resolution for a tunnel connecting New York and New Jersey was adopted and referred to the Harbor Development Commission. Charles L. Bernheimer presented a statement giving the legal and parliamentary situation concerning war contracts.

In his address Mr. Warburg compared the railroad situation of today with the banking situation in 1908. Taking up the question of Government operation, he said that the time for it had not yet come, asserting that any one conversant with methods in Washington would shudder to think of the result on the body politic and economic if twenty billions worth of railroad property became the object of development and operation by a party Government.

Efficiency Would Suffer.

"The highest pre-war expenditures ever authorized by Congress amounted to about one billion dollars," he continued. "Who would dare to hope that the railroads' annual operating item of approximately four billion dollars, plus the amount necessary for additional capital expenditures, estimated at about one billion, could be spent without ultimately contaminating and corrupting our politics and social life? Who would doubt that through the elimination of competition and the substitution of Government officialdom for private enterprise general efficiency and progress would suffer, while the cost of operation would increase by leaps and bounds?

"Finally, is it not fair to foresee that a government owning the railroads and becoming the largest purchaser of steel and coal would soon find itself in the position of wishing to own and operate the steel mills and coal mines, and to construct its own locomotives and cars? Can you imagine how many voters ultimately would become dependent upon the Government, and inversely how the Government would become dependent on these voters? Can you imagine how many Congressmen would put in claims for local consideration, and would have to be pacified each year, before such a railroad budget could be passed?"

A five-year test under Government operation would not offer any real evidence as to future needs, he said, as the test would be carried on with a staff and under the leadership of men still trained in the school of modern business, such as bureaucracy, after ten years of administration, would no longer be capable of producing. After remarking that in his opinion inefficiency plays a subordinate part to other grave dangers involved, Mr. Warburg declared:

"We might look with equanimity upon the eventuality of being forced to pay the price of costly railroad operation by submitting to increased transportation rates or higher taxation; but we cannot envisage with complacency the certainty of seeing the country's development arrested or retarded and having it saturated from top to bottom with a spirit of bureaucracy and political corruption."

Mr. Warburg gave the following arguments against Government operation; it is bound to pollute our political and social life; it makes for stagnation and inefficiency, resulting in poor service to the public and high rates; experience in foreign countries shows that the saving to be derived from the use of the Government's credit is not likely to be sufficient to make up for the loss resulting from the higher cost of Government operation while the excessive use of the Government's credit is hurtful to its standing and bound to increase the rate at which it generally borrows; such advantage as the greater unification of operation produced under the United States Railroad Administration can be obtained by proper amendment of the Sherman act and the grant of a Federal franchise without subjecting the country to the dangers and disadvantages of Government operation.

If private capital was to continue to finance the railroads it must be assured an adequate term, he added. The real difficulty of the problem would be solved, he said, if "adequate return" can be defined, if the investor could be assured that this return would not be regulated away from him, and if with this would be combined the assurance that private initiative and business methods would thereby not be destroyed.

Says Credit Is Destroyed.

After asserting that railroad credit had practically been destroyed, Mr. Warburg said that conditions now prevailing meant that unless something drastic was done the end of private railroading was in sight. The interests of the shipper, the consumer and labor were so important, he argued, and at times so much opposed to one another, that no private corporation could assume the responsibility of acting as umpire between them.

On the question of valuation Mr. Warburg imagined a commission of five, consisting of one member each representing law, finance, business, labor, and one railroad man whose duty it would be to determine the fair value of the properties without the red tape connected with judicial proceedings. He called this group of men the "Valuation Board."

"I should like to see net earnings beyond 6 per cent. divided between stockholders, Government and labor, with a fixed maximum beyond which the earnings of the stockholders should not go," continued Mr. Warburg. "I strongly believe in the idea that capital and labor must consider themselves partners, a conception which is bound more and more to lead to the full recognition on the part of labor that, in return for the enjoyment of short hours and the highest possible wages, labor must give its maximum in work, not the minimum, in order to enable the country successfully to compete and to maintain these high standards."

Explaining in some detail his plan for combining some features of the present organization of the United States Railroad Administration with the general plan of the Federal Reserve System, Mr. Warburg said it would have the following advantages; Preservation of private enterprise and a spirit of competition; that by the minimum and the maximum it would protect alike both private capital and the public; that it was a voluntary plan, leaving undisturbed whomever prefers to retain in the statu quo; that it would not involve the direct and excessive use of the Government's credit; that it would leave undisturbed the bulk of existing railroad investments (even in case of mergers many underlying securities could be left outstanding;) that to railroads taking a Federal franchise it would offer a definite assurance of their ability to finance future approved additions and improvements, and of their power under proper control to merge and pool with other roads; that these advantages would show themselves of sufficient force to bring about, by a voluntary and natural process, the consolidation of our railroad system into a group of a certain number of strong carriers rivaling in service without unnecessary wasteful competition.

STATE AUTHORITIES PLAN FOR INCOME TAX

Likely to be Chief Proposal in Measure Designed to Meet the Revenue Deficit.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—The tax bill by which the State authorities hope to make up the revenue deficit of about $12,000,000 is likely to be ready for introduction in the Legislature a week from next Monday. Principal among the means to replenish the State coffers will be a provision for imposing a personal income tax at a low rate. It is likely that incomes from $600 up will be taxed. This tax is expected to do away with the necessity of adding to the taxes on realty.

Provision will be made for taxation of soda water and "soft" drinks generally to make up in part for excise revenues lost because of prohibition.

The Legislative Sub-Committee on Taxation, headed by Senator Davenport, has already begun a series of hearings.

On Wednesday State Controller Travis and Deputy Controller Wendell will present their views. Representatives of the State Tax Association and State Bar Association, Robert E. Dowling and L. D. Woodworth of New York City will be heard later, and the committee will then call upon Governor Smith's Reconstruction Commission for data.

Labor is to be consulted through the State Federation of Labor and affiliated unions, particularly with reference to the personal income tax.

SAYS STATE OFFICER GOT PACKERS' CHECKS

Federal Investigator Accuses Cole and Flanders of Aiding Food Companies.

SAYS CASES WERE IGNORED

Tells Magistrate McAdoo State Senator Walker Appealed to Gov. Whitman's Secretary.

Testifying before Chief City Magistrate McAdoo in the John Doe milk inquiry yesterday, Raymond Smith of 557 West 124th Street, an investigator for the Federal Trade Commission, charged ex-Deputy Commissioner Harrington Cole of the State Department of Agriculture with having received checks from Swift & Co., and with having used his influence to have cases against big food companies of the country dropped, and George L. Flanders, head of the Legal Bureau of the State Department of Agriculture, with having failed to take action on thousands of cases against seed and packing interests.

The witness explained that he made an investigation in the Fall of 1917 of the State Department of Agriculture, particularly of the Bureau of Foods and Markets, the Finance Bureau and the Legal Bureau, on the order of George A. Glynn, executive auditor to Governor Whitman. This action was ordered, he said, because "suspicion had been aroused that powerful interests, namely, the American Feed Manufacturers' Association, Swift & Co.; and the Armour, Morris, Cudahy, Sulzberger and Wilson concerns were bringing pressure to bear on the department, so that no prosecution would be brought against them for violations of the law in this State."

"My investigation showed," said the witness, "that Harrington Cole received checks from Swift & Co. during the time these cases were pending for amounts aggregating $500. At 1 o'clock in the morning another detective and I went into the office of State Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson and found numerous letters in the desk of Deputy Commissioner Cole, addressed to him, from Swift & Co., containing checks inclosed to him. This was while several cases against Swift & Co. were pending in that department, and these cases were subsequently dropped. We also found that George L. Flanders, head of the legal bureau of the Department of Agriculture, had let thousands of cases against the seed and packing interests accumulate, and had failed to take any action on them."

The witness said that he reported his findings to Mr. Glynn, and that he was subsequently ordered to drop his investigation by State Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson. He said no action was taken on what the investigation had disclosed. Cole was later dismissed, he said, by order of the Governor, and became connected with the New York State Food Council.

"What was the reason Commissioner Wilson ordered you to stop your investigation?" asked Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling.

"I was informed that State Senator James J. Walker, of New York City, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, went to William A. Orr, Governor Whitman's secretary, and asked him to get Commissioner Wilson to make me stop investigating," replied Mr. Smith. The witness added that Mr. Wilson had admitted to him receiving a telephone message from Mr. Orr and had suggested that he, the witness, stop investigating.

Smith charged that the State Commissioner of Agriculture was failing to protect farmers against unscrupulous milk distributers in his policy with regard to license to distributers.

Interests friendly to the packers, the witness said, had gone to Albany and had the law changed so that there would be a Municipal Term Court to try the violations instead of, in the Court of Special Sessions, where three Justices sit, in the hope, he declared, of getting away with $5 or $10 fines instead of fines of a substantial figure.

This statement brought a sharp repudiation from Chief Magistrate McAdoo, who said he took part in having the law changed. He said there was no such motive as suggested in creating the Municipal Term Court, and it was the first time he had ever heard any serious criticism of it.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling announced that he was introducing Mr. Smith's testimony because he intended to show later that the action of the State Department of Agriculture on feed and meat matters had a vital relation to the high cost of milk in New York City. The hearing will be resumed Monday, and Mr. Smith will probably again take the stand.

STATEMENT BY COLE.

Says Swift & Co. Paid Him $500 for Compiling List of Farmers.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—Harry E. Cole, a former deputy in the State Department of Agriculture and now an official of the State Food Commission, discussing the testimony of Raymond Smith, a Federal trade commission investigator, before the John Doe milk inquiry at New York today, said he had received a check from Swift & Co. for having compiled a large list of agriculturists which the packers desired in order to increase their sales of fertilizer.

Mr. Cole also said that his desk had been forced open in 1915 and some papers stolen, but that no checks were taken as there were none in the desk. Mr. Cole also denied that he had failed to act on thousands of complaints of law violations on the part of seed and meat interests, as the investigator charged. At the hearing in New York today Investigator Smith gave the name of the Albany official as Harrington Cole.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS AIDED BY PACKERS

Veeder Admits Some Contributions, but Says Swift Opposes It as a Policy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Political campaign contributions and legislative activities of the five big meat packing concerns were inquired into today during cross-examination of Henry Veeder, counsel for Swift & Co., by Francis J. Heney before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Mr. Veeder testified his company had contributed to the campaign funds of Ex-Congressman Taggart of Kansas in 1915 and of Congressman Rodenberg of Illinois in 1912. After the committee had adjourned tonight, however, Mr. Veeder issued a statement saying that the $250 contribution referred to in connection with Mr. Rodenberg's campaign had been paid to a committee "working in behalf of the Rodenberg primary law in Illinois" and had not been for Mr. Rodenberg's own campaign.

The witness also told the committee that a donation was made in 1910 to the campaign fund of O. B. Colquitt, who became Governor of Texas the following year. Bills for "expenses" in connection with a school board election at National City, Ill., and the election of a Tax Assessor named Monroe at the same place were paid, Mr. Veeder said, because of the large property interests of the packers in that town.

THE O'LEARY TRIAL.

Neither Northcliffe Nor Any English Interest or Influence in The New York Times.

Testimony was offered yesterday, at the continuation, before Federal Judge A. N. Hand and a jury, of the trial of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, charged with violation of the Espionage act, to prove the untruth of statements and editorials appearing in Bull, published by the defendant, which frequently declared that THE NEW YORK TIMES was controlled by Lord Northcliffe, and that its editorial policy was influenced by British interests. H. Snowden Marshall, special counsel for the prosecution, called as a witness Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who testified that he was the controlling owner of the New York Times Company, the publication company publishing the newspaper; that he personally owned 54 per cent. of the stock, and that the majority stock was not hypothecated and was in his possession. He denied that Lord Northcliffe held or had ever held any of the stock or any other interest in THE NEW YORK TIMES in any shape, form, or fashion. He also said that all the stock of The New York Times Company was owned by Americans.

The cross-examination of Mr. Ochs was conducted by O'Leary himself. In answer to questions, Mr. Ochs asserted that he had never at any time discussed with Lord Northcliffe the editorial and news policy of THE NEW YORK TIMES. Mr. Ochs testified that he had met the British publisher ten or fifteen years ago in London and had met him many times since both in London and in the United States.

The last time he had met Lord Northcliffe, he said, was in the Spring of 1914. In reply to further questions from O'Leary, the witness said that on Aug. 1, 1914, Lord Northcliffe had a disagreement with THE NEW YORK TIMES, and from that time to the present there had been no further intercourse with the British publisher.

In reply to a question whether it was not a fact that where British interests conflicted with American interests THE NEW YORK TIMES sided with the British, Mr. Ochs declared THE NEW YORK TIMES had always stood for what it conceived to be for the best interest and welfare of the United States.

In reply to a question of O'Leary with respect to THE NEW YORK TIMES' attitude toward Ireland, Mr. Ochs said that the paper had always favored Home Rule.

The prosecution was prepared to put on the stand the publishers of The Detroit Free Press, The New Orleans Times-Picayune, The Philadelphia Public Ledger, The Denver Post, and The Springfield Republican to prove that their ownership and policy were not in any way British-controlled, but Judge Hand excluded any further testimony on this line.

Frank Rigney, cartoonist for Bull, was the next witness called by the Government, and he identified cartoons appearing in the O'Leary publication as his work. O'Leary, on cross-examination, attempted to show that many of the characters appearing in the cartoons were sponsored entirely by the witness.

Otto Heins, former President of the Bosch Magneto Company, which was taken over by the Government as an alien corporation, [illegible] occasions he had contributed to the work of O'Leary. Once he gave $500 and on another occasion $1,500.

At the morning session Mrs. Marguerite Kelly was examined by O'Leary as to the source of the funds received by the American Truth Society, of which the defendant was the moving figure. She testified that on several occasions daily contributions ran from $300 to $1,150. The trial will be continued today.

19 MORE RESIGN ALONG WITH JONAS

BELFORD ASSAILS HEARST

Priest, in Letter to Jonas, Proffers His Support—Steinbrink Quits the Manhattan Committee.

After Borough President Riegelmann and Congressman John J. Delaney got through reading yesterday's letters of resignation from Brooklyn's Victory Celebration Committee, they found that fifteen out of the organization's membership of twenty-five on the Executive Committee had followed the example of Chairman Nathan S. Jonas and quit. The resignations were offered in protest against the efforts of supporters of William Randolph Hearst, a member of the Mayor's Committee, to dictate the course of Nathan S. Jonas, the Chairman, and other members of the Executive Committee.

Resigning yesterday from the Executive Committee were Edward P. Maynard, who headed the last Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives in Brooklyn; J. Sherlock Davis, President of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce; G. Foster Smith, President of the Nassau National Bank, and Mrs. H. Edward Dreier.

Others who requested to be released from the General Committee were Henry E. McGowan, Secretary of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company; W. C. Peckham, Adjutant of the G. A. R., Department of New York; Dr. Warren L. Duffield, the Rev. Dr. John Barlow, pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian Church; Mrs. Ellen L. Howland, Mrs. Louise M. Davenport, Theodore Frothingham, Edward H. Wilson, President of the Brooklyn Bar Association; Mrs. Anna M. Wilbur, Robert L. Pierpont, Wallace M. Connor, United States Commissioner Richard M. Cahoone, Guy Duval, Dr. Edward L. Hicks, and S. D. Kraus. From both Executive and General Committees there were nineteen resignations.

It was learned yesterday that Victor A. Lersner had written to Mr. Riegelmann, asking whether the money raised, largely through the efforts of those members who have resigned, is to be spent by the committeemen who are to be appointed, or whether the resigned members are to have something to say regarding the disbursements. The money thus far obtained is something like $40,000. Mr. Lersner wanted particularly to know if the money raised was to be spent by the resigned members' successors. The Borough President made no comment on the letter.

Feb. 1, 1919.

Nativity Rectory, 485 Classon Avenue, Brooklyn.

My Dear Mr. Jonas: Allow me to say I am with you in this shameful persecution. It is unjust and uncalled for. It is, moreover, a piece of colossal arrogance and impertinence for any man to try to dictate who shall speak at a public meeting, or how that meeting shall be conducted.

I have known you for about twenty years, and I know that you are incapable of calling the police "to kick those Irish out."

Of course, The American and The Journal are so mendacious and so sickly yellow that their abuse is a compliment. They are doing their best to stir up strife and to fan into flame the Bolshevist spirit which exists in our city, as it does in Petrograd and Berlin.

Because the Hearst candidate won in the last election, he thinks he can dictate to every official, and he uses his papers as a club on those who will not do as he directs.

I hope you will fight him and all his works and pomps. In that fight I will be glad to do anything I can to help you.

Sincerely yours, JOHN L. BELFORD.

Giving as his reason that "the principle of Brooklyn autonomy and freedom from Hearst domination is involved" by the activities of the Manhattan Mayor's Committee for Welcoming Homecoming Troops, Meier Steinbrink, the lawyer, yesterday withdrew from the Manhattan committee, as he had from the Brooklyn organization.

"Heretofore I wrote that I would be glad to serve on the committee of which Rodman Wanamaker is Chairman," said that part of the letter made public, "and almost simultaneously with that letter the Executive Committee of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee was organized, in which I hoped to take an active part. What has transpired in Brooklyn in the last few days is undoubtedly known to you. There is the principle of Brooklyn autonomy and freedom from Hearst domination involved, which has prompted my retirement from the Brooklyn committee. I desire to be free to co-operate with independent and other public-spirited citizens in welcoming our troops. I would, therefore, request that you transmit this as my resignation."

John Golden, Chairman of the Theatrical Committee of the Mayor's Committee, yesterday announced that he had opened a branch office for the distribution of free tickets to theatres at 224 West Forty-second Street. The Red Cross, the Knights of Columbus, and the Y. M. C. A. are co-operating in the work.

Havana Without Newspapers.

HAVANA, Feb. 6.—The strikes of the employes of the mechanical departments of the newspapers continues and no newspapers were published today. A committee of five representing the thirty-seven unions which conducted the last general strike will call on President Menocal today to request him to find a solution for the strike. They will inform the President that they disclaim responsibility for future developments.

Spring Fashions Exploit New Models, New Fabrics, New Colors

For MISSES
14 to 20 years

For JUNIORS
13 to 17 years

For GIRLS
6 to 16 years

Misses' Spring Dresses

Always something "new"—either models with entirely new lines and ornamentations, or the fabrics of silk, wool or cotton introduce new weaves and colors. The revival of lace is now apparent and unusually attractive in new dinner frocks.

Girls' Spring Dresses

Empire, guimpe or regulation waistline models for Girls and Juniors. Dresses daintily hand embroidered, hand smocked, tucked or lace trimmed; Georgette or taffeta silk are favored fabrics; dotted Swiss, voile, linen, tissues, chambray or gingham fashion dainty wash dresses.

3.95 to 49.50

Franklin Simon & Co. Individual Shops

Are Synonymous With Paris for "Newness."

The Franklin Simon & Co. Individual Shops have also achieved a distinction for originality.

Notable examples are the Individual Shops for Young People where day by day fashions of indescribable charm and individuality are presented as soon as they are created.

Text of the New War Revenue Bill as Agreed Upon by the Conferees

Draft Reported by Conference Committee, Including All Changes Made.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Following is the text of the Revenue bill as reported to the Senate and the House by the Conference Committee:

An act to provide revenue, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, TITLE I.—GENERAL DEFINITIONS.

Section 1. That when used in this act—

The term "person" includes partnerships and corporations, as well as individuals;

The term "corporation" includes associations, joint-stock companies, and insurance companies.

The term "domestic" when applied to a corporation or partnership means created or organized in the United States;

The term "foreign" when applied to a corporation or partnership means created or organized outside the United States;

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and the District of Columbia;

The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Treasury;

The term "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Internal Revenue;

The term "collector" means collector of internal revenue;

The term "Revenue Act of 1916" means the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," approved Sept. 8, 1916;

The term "Revenue Act of 1917" means the Act entitled "An Act to provide revenue to defray war expenses, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1917;

The term "taxpayer" includes any person, trust or estate subject to a tax imposed by this Act;

The term "Government Contract" means (a) A contract made with the United States, or with any department, bureau, officer, commission, board, or agency, under the United States and acting in its behalf, or with any agency controlled by any of the above if the contract is for the benefit of the United States, or (b) A subcontract made with a contractor performing such a contract if the products or services to be furnished under the subcontract are for the benefit of the United States. The term "Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive" when applied to a contract of the kind referred to in clause (a) of this paragraph, includes all such contracts which, although entered into during such period, were originally not enforceable, but which have been or may become enforceable by reason of subsequent validation in pursuance of law;

The term "military or naval forces of the United States" includes the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Army Nurse Corps, Female, and the Navy Nurse Corps, Female, but this shall not be deemed to exclude other units otherwise included within such term;

The term "present war" means the war in which the United States is now engaged against the German Government.

For the purposes of this Act the date of the termination of the present war shall be fixed by proclamation of the President.

TITLE II.—INCOME TAX.

Part I.—General Provisions.

DEFINITIONS.

Sec. 200. That when used in this title—

The term "taxable year" means the calendar year, or the fiscal year ending during the calendar year upon the basis of which the net income is computed under Section 212 or Section 232. The term "fiscal year" means an accounting period of twelve months ending on the last day of any month other than December. The first taxable year, to be called the taxable year 1918, shall be the calendar year 1918 or any fiscal year ending during the calendar year 1918;

The term "fiduciary" means a guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, conservator, or any person acting in any fiduciary capacity for any person, trust or estate;

The term "withholding agent" means any person required to deduct and withhold any tax under the provisions of Section 221 or Section 237;

The term "personal service corporation" means a corporation whose income is to be ascribed primarily to the activities of the principal owners or stockholders who are themselves regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation and in which capital (whether invested or borrowed) is not a material income-producing factor; but does not include any foreign corporation, nor any corporation 50 per centum or more of whose gross income consists either (1) of gains, profits, or income derived from trading as a principal, or (2) of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived from a Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive;

The term "paid," for the purposes of the deductions and credits under this title, means "paid or accrued" or "paid or incurred," and the terms "paid or incurred" and "paid or accrued" shall be construed according to the method of accounting upon the basis of which the net income is computed under Section 212.

DIVIDENDS.

Sec. 201. (a) That the term "dividend" when used in this title (except in Paragraph (10) of Subdivision (a) of Section (234) means (1) any distribution made by a corporation, other than a personal service corporation, to its shareholders or members, whether in cash or in other property or in stock of the corporation, out of its earnings or profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, or (2) any such distribution made by a personal service corporation out of its earnings or profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, and prior to January 1, 1918.

(b) Any distribution shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits unless all earnings and profits have first been distributed. Any distribution made in the year 1918 or any year thereafter shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, or, in the case of a personal service corporation, from the most recently accumulated earnings or profits; but any earnings or profits accumulated prior to March 1, 1913, may be distributed in stock dividends or otherwise, exempt from the tax, after the earnings and profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, have been distributed.

(c) A dividend paid in stock of the corporation shall be considered income to the amount of the earnings or profits distributed. Amounts distributed in the liquidation of a corporation shall be treated as payments in exchange for stock or shares, and any gain or profit realized thereby shall be taxed to the distributee as other gains or profits.

(d) If any stock dividend (1) is received by a taxpayer between January 1 and November 1, 1918, both dates inclusive, or (2) is during such period bona fide authorized or declared, and entered on the books of the corporation, and is received by a taxpayer after November 1, 1918, and before the expiration of thirty days after the passage of this act, then such dividend shall, in the manner provided in Section 206, be taxed to the recipient at the rates prescribed by law for the years in which the corporation accumulated the earnings or profits from which such dividend was paid, but the dividend shall be deemed to have been paid from the most recently accumulated earnings or profits.

(e) Any distribution made during the first sixty days of any taxable year shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated during preceding taxable years; but any distribution made during the remainder of the taxable year shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated between the close of the preceding taxable year and the date of distribution, to the extent of such earnings or profits, and if the books of the corporation do not show the amount of such earnings or profits, the earnings or profits for the accounting period within which the distribution was made shall be deemed to have been accumulated ratably during such period.

BASIS FOR DETERMINING GAIN OR LOSS.

Sec. 202 (a). That for the purpose of ascertaining the gain derived or loss sustained from the sale or other disposition of property, real, personal, or mixed, the basis shall be—

(1) In the case of property acquired before March 1, 1913, the fair market price or value of such property as of that date; and

(2) In the case of property acquired on or after that date, the cost thereof; or the inventory value, if the inventory is made in accordance with Section 203.

(b) When property is exchanged for other property, the property received in exchange shall for the purpose of determining gain or loss be treated as the equivalent of cash to the amount of its fair market value, if any; but when in connection with the reorganization, merger, or consolidation of a corporation a person receives in place of stock or securities owned by him new stock or securities of no greater aggregate par or face value, no gain or loss shall be deemed to occur from the exchange, and the new stock or securities received shall be treated as taking the place of the stock, securities, or property exchanged.

When in the case of any such reorganization, merger or consolidation the aggregate par or face value of the new stock or securities received is in excess of the aggregate par or face value of the stock or securities exchanged, a like amount in par or face value of the new stock or securities received shall be treated as taking the place of the stock or securities exchanged, and the amount of the excess in par or face value shall be treated as a gain to the extent that the fair market value of the new stock or securities is greater than the cost (or if acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the fair market value as of that date) of the stock or securities exchanged.

INVENTORIES.

Sec. 203. That whenever in the opinion of the Commissioner the use of inventories is necessary in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer, inventories shall be taken by such taxpayer upon such basis as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe as conforming as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business and as most clearly reflecting the income.

NET LOSSES.

Sec. 204 (a) That as used in this section the term "net loss" refers only to net losses resulting from either (1) the operation of any business regularly carried on by the taxpayer, or (2) the bona fide sale by the taxpayer of plant, buildings, machinery, equipment or other facilities, constructed, installed or acquired by the taxpayer on or after April 6, 1917, for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the present war; and when so resulting means the excess of the deductions allowed by law (excluding in the case of corporations amounts allowed as a deduction under paragraph (6) of subdivision (a) of section 234) over the sum of the gross income plus any interest received free from taxation both under this title and under Title III.

(b) If for any taxable year beginning after October 31, 1918, and ending prior to January 1, 1920, it appears upon the production of evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner that any taxpayer has sustained a net loss, the amount of such net loss shall under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary be deducted from the net income of the taxpayer for the preceding taxable year; and the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III for such preceding taxable year shall be redetermined accordingly. Any amount found to be due to the taxpayer upon the basis of such redetermination shall be credited, or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provision of section 252. If such net loss is in excess of the net income for such preceding taxable year, the amount of such excess shall under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary be allowed as a deduction in computing the net income for the succeeding taxable year.

(c) The benefit of this section shall be allowed to the members of a partnership and the beneficiaries of an estate or trust under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary.

FISCAL YEAR WITH DIFFERENT RATES.

Sec. 205. (a) That if a taxpayer makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, his tax under this title for the first taxable year shall be the sum of: (1) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under Title I of the revenue act of 1916 as amended by the revenue act of 1917 and under Title I of the revenue act of 1917, which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1917 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates for the calendar year 1918 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period: provided, that in the case of a personal service corporation the amount to be paid shall be only that specified in Clause (1).

Any amount heretofore or hereafter paid on account of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by Title I. of the Revenue act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue act of 1917, and by Title I. of the Revenue act of 1917, shall be credited toward the payment of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by this act, and if the amount so paid exceeds the amount of such tax imposed by this act, or, in the case of a personal service corporation, the amount specified in clause (1), the excess shall be credited or refunded in accordance with the provisions of Section 252.

(B) If a taxpayer makes a return for a fiscal year beginning in 1918 and ending in 1919, the tax under this title for such fiscal year shall be the sum of: (1) The same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates specified for the calendar year 1918 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates specified for the calendar year 1919 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1919 is of the entire period.

(C) If a fiscal year of a partnership begins in 1917 and ends in 1918 or begins in 1918 and ends in 1919, then notwithstanding the provisions of Subdivision (b) of Section 218, (1) the rates for the calendar year during which such fiscal year begins shall apply to an amount of each partner's share of such partnership net income (determined under the law applicable to such year) equal to the proportion which the part of such fiscal year falling within such calendar year bears to the full fiscal year, and (2) the rates for the calendar year during which such fiscal year ends shall apply to an amount of each partner's share of such partnership net income (determined under the law applicable to such calendar year) equal to the proportion which the part of such fiscal year falling within such calendar year bears to the full fiscal year: provided, that in the case of a personal service corporation with respect to a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, the amount specified in clause (1) shall not be subject to normal tax.

PARTS OF INCOME SUBJECT TO RATES FOR DIFFERENT YEARS.

Sec. 206. That whenever parts of a taxpayer's income are subject to rates for different calendar years, the part subject to the rates for the most recent calendar year shall be placed in the lower brackets of the rate schedule provided in this title, the part subject to the rates for the next preceding calendar year shall be placed in the next higher brackets of the rate schedule applicable to that year, and so on until the entire net income has been accounted for. In determining the income, any deductions, exemptions or credits of a kind not plainly and properly chargeable against the income taxable at rates for a preceding year shall first be applied against the income subject to rates for the most recent calendar year; but any balance thereof shall be applied against the income subject to the rates of the next preceding year or years until fully allowed.

PART II.—INDIVIDUALS.

NORMAL TAX.

Sec. 210. That, in lieu of the taxes imposed by subdivision (a) of Section 1 of the Revenue Act of 1916 and by section 1 of the Revenue Act of 1917, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every individual a normal tax at the following rates:

(a) For the calendar year 1918, 12 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the credits provided in Section 216: Provided, That in the case of a citizen or resident of the United States the rate upon the first $4,000 of such excess amount shall be 6 per centum;

(b) For each calendar year thereafter, 8 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the credits provided in Section 216: Provided, That in the case of a citizen or resident of the United States the rate upon the first $4,000 of such excess amount shall be 4 per centum.

SURTAX.

Sec. 211. (a) That, in lieu of the taxes imposed by subdivision (b) of Section 1 of the Revenue act of 1916 and by Section 2 of the Revenue act of 1917, but in addition to the normal tax imposed by Section 210 of this act, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every individual, a surtax equal to the sum of the following:

1 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $5,000 and does not exceed $6,000;

2 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $6,000 and does not exceed $8,000;

3 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $8,000 and does not exceed $10,000;

4 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $10,000 and does not exceed $12,000;

5 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $12,000 and does not exceed $14,000;

6 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $14,000 and does not exceed $16,000;

7 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $16,000 and does not exceed $18,000;

8 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $18,000 and does not exceed $20,000;

9 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $20,000 and does not exceed $22,000;

10 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $22,000 and does not exceed $24,000;

11 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $24,000 and does not exceed $26,000;

12 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $26,000 and does not exceed $28,000;

13 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $28,000 and does not exceed $30,000;

14 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $30,000 and does not exceed $32,000;

15 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $32,000 and does not exceed $34,000;

16 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $34,000 and does not exceed $36,000;

17 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $36,000 and does not exceed $38,000;

18 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $38,000 and does not exceed $40,000;

19 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $40,000 and does not exceed $42,000;

20 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $42,000 and does not exceed $44,000;

21 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $44,000 and does not exceed $46,000;

23 per centum of the amount by which theh net income exceeds $48,000 and does not exceed $50,000;

24 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $50,000 and does not exceed $52,000;

25 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $52,000 and does not exceed $54,000;

26 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $54,000 and does not exceed $56,000;

28 per centum of the amount by which theh net income exceeds $58,000 and does not exceed $60,000;

29 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $60,000 and does not exceed $62,000;

30 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $62,000 and does not exceed $64,000;

31 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $64,000 and does not exceed $66,000;

32 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $66,000 and does not exceed $68,000;

33 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $68,000 and does not exceed $70,000;

34 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $70,000 and does not exceed $72,000;

35 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $72,000 and does not exceed $74,000;

36 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $74,000 and does not exceed $76,000;

37 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $76,000 and does not exceed $78,000;

38 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $78,000 and does not exceed $80,000;

39 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $80,000 and does not exceed $82,000;

40 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $82,000 and does not exceed $84,000;

41 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $84,000 and does not exceed $86,000;

42 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $86,000 and does not exceed $88,000;

43 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $88,000 and does not exceed $90,000;

44 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $90,000 and does not exceed $92,000;

45 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $92,000 and does not exceed $94,000;

46 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $94,000 and does not exceed $96,000;

47 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $96,000 and does not exceed $98,000;

48 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $98,000 and does not exceed $100,000;

52 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $100,000 and does not exceed $150,000;

56 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $150,000 and does not exceed $200,000;

60 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $200,000 and does not exceed $300,000;

63 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $300,000 and does not exceed $500,000;

65 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $1,000,000.

(b) In the case of a bonafide sale of mines, oil or gas wells, or any interest therein, where the principal value of the property has been demonstrated by prospecting or exploration and discovery work done by the taxpayer, the portion of the tax imposed by this section attributable to such sale shall not exceed 20 per centum of the selling price of such property or interest.

NET INCOME DEFINED.

Sec. 212. (a) That in the case of an individual the term "net income" means the gross income as defined in section 213, less the deductions allowed by section 214.

(b) The net income shall be computed upon the basis of the taxpayer's annual accounting period (fiscal year or calendar year, as the case may be) in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping the books of such taxpayer; but if no such method of accounting has been so employed, or if the method employed does not clearly reflect the income, the computation shall be made upon such basis and in such manner as in the opinion of the Commissioner does clearly reflect the income. If the taxpayer's annual accounting period is other than a fiscal year as defined in section 200 or if the taxpayer has no annual accounting period or does not keep books, the net income shall be computed on the basis of the calendar year.

If a taxpayer changes his accounting period from fiscal year to calendar year, from calendar year to fiscal year, or from one fiscal year to another, the net income shall, with the approval of the Commissioner, be computed on the basis of such new accounting period, subject to the provisions of section 226.

GROSS INCOME DEFINED.

Sec. 213. That for the purposes of this title (except as otherwise provided in section 233) the term "gross income"—

(a) Includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service (including in the case of the President of the United States, the judges of the Supreme and inferior courts of the United States, and all other officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, the compensation received as such), of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever. The amount of all such items shall be included in the gross income for the taxable year in which received by the taxpayer, unless, under methods of accounting permitted under subdivision (b) of section 212, any such amounts are to be properly accounted for as of a different period; but

(b) Does not include the following items, which shall be exempt from taxation under this title:

(1) The proceeds of life insurance policies paid upon the death of the insured to individual beneficiaries or to the estate of the insured;

(2) The amount received by the insured as a return of premium or premiums paid by him under life insurance, endowment, or annuity contracts, either during the term or at the maturity of the term mentioned in the contract or upon surrender of the contract;

(3) The value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or descent (but the income from such property shall be included in gross income);

(4) Interest upon (a) the obligations of a State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia; or (b) securities issued under the provisions of the Federal Farm Loan Act of July 17, 1916; or (c) the obligations of the United States or its possessions; or (d) bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation; provided, that every person owning any of the obligations, securities, or bonds enumerated in Clauses (a), (b), (c), and (d) shall, in the return required by this title, submit a statement showing the number and amount of such obligations, securities and bonds owned by him and the income received therefrom, in such form and with such information as the Commissioner may require. In the case of obligations of the United States issued after September 1, 1917, and in the case of bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation, the interest shall be exempt only if and to the extent provided in the respective Acts authorizing the issue thereof as amended and supplemented, and shall be excluded from gross income only if and to the extent it is wholly exempt from taxation to the taxpayer both under this title and under Tile III.;

(5) The income of foreign Governments received from investments in the United States in stocks, bonds, or other domestic securities, owned by such foreign Governments, or from interest on deposits in banks in the United States of moneys belonging to such foreign Governments, or from any other source within the United States;

(6) Amount received, through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts, as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of any damages received whether by suit or agreement on account of such injuries or sickness.

(7) Income derived from any public utility or the exercise of any essential governmental function and accruing to any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision of a State or Territory, or income accruing to the government of any possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

Whenever any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision of a State or Territory, prior to September 8, 1916, entered in good faith into a contract with any person, the object and purpose of which is to acquire, construct, operate, or maintain a public utility, no tax shall be levied under the provisions of this title upon the income derived from the operation of such public utility, so far as the payment thereof will impose a loss or burden upon such State, Territory, District of Columbia, or political subdivision; but this provision is not intended to confer upon such person any financial gain or exemption or to relieve such person from the payment of a tax as provided for in this title upon the part or portion of such income to which such person is entitled under such contract;

(8) So much of the amount received during the present war by a person in the military or naval forces of the United States as salary or compensation in any form from the United States for active services in such forces as does not exceed $3,500.

(c) In the case of nonresident alien individuals, gross income includes only the gross income from sources within the United States, including interest on bonds, notes, or other interest-bearing obligations of residents, corporate or otherwise, dividends from resident corporations, and including all amounts received (although paid under a contract for the sale of goods or otherwise) representing profits on the manufacture and disposition of goods within the United States.

DEDUCTIONS ALLOWED.

Sec. 214. (a) That in computing net income there shall be allowed as deductions:

(1) All the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered, and including rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for purposes of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity;

(2) All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917,) the interest upon which is wholly exempt from taxation under this title as income to the taxpayer, or, in the case of a nonresident alien individual, the proportion of such interest which the amount of his gross income from sources within the United States bears to the amount of his gross income from all sources, within and without the United States;

(3) Taxes paid or accrued within the taxable year imposed (a) by the authority of the United States, except income, war profits and excess-profits taxes; or (b) by the authority of any of its possessions, except the amount of income, war profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 222; or (c) by the authority of any State or Territory, or any county, school district, municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any State or Territory, not including those assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed; or (d) in the case of a citizen or resident of the United States, by the authority of any foreign country, except the amount of income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 222; or (e) in the case of a nonresident alien individual, by the authority of any foreign country (except income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes, and taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed,) upon property or business;

(4) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in trade or business;

(5) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the trade or business; but in the case of a nonresident alien individual only as to such transactions within the United States;

(6) Losses sustained during the taxable year of property not connected with the trade or business (but in the case of a nonresident alien individual only property within the United States) if arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft, and if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise;

(7) Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the taxable year;

(8) A reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence;

(9) In the case of buildings, machinery, equipment, or other facilities, constructed, erected, installed, or acquired, on or after April 6, 1917, for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the present war, and in the case of vessels constructed or acquired on or after such date for the transportation of articles or men contributing to the prosecution of the present war, there shall be allowed a reasonable deduction for the amortization of such part of the cost of such facilities or vessels as has been borne by the taxpayer, but not again including any amount otherwise allowed under this title or previous Acts of Congress as a deduction in computing net income. At any time within three years after the termination of the present war, the Commissioner may, and at the request of the taxpayer shall, re-examine the return, and if he then finds as a result of an appraisal or from other evidence that the deduction originally allowed was incorrect, the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III. for the year or years affected shall be redetermined; and the amount of tax due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid upon notice and demand by the collector, or the amount of tax overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252;

(10) In the case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits, and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation of improvements, according to the peculiar conditions in each case, based upon cost including cost of development not otherwise deducted: Provided, That in the case of such properties acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the fair market value of the property (or the taxpayer's interest therein) on that date shall be taken in lieu of cost up to that date: Provided further, That in the case of mines, oil and gas wells, discovered by the taxpayer, on or after March 1, 1913, and not acquired as the result of purchase of a proven tract or lease, where the fair market value of the property is materially disproportionate to the cost, the depletion allowance shall be based upon the fair market value of the property at the date of the discovery, or within thirty days thereafter; such reasonable allowance in all the above cases to be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. In the case of leases the deductions allowed by this paragraph shall be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee;

(11) Contributions or gifts made within the taxable year to corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, or to the special fund for vocational rehabilitation authorized by section 7 of the Vocational Rehabilitation act, to an amount not in excess of 15 per centum of the taxpayer's net income as computed without the benefit of this paragraph. Such contributions or gifts shall be allowable as deductions only if verified under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary. In the case of a nonresident alien individual this deduction shall be allowed only as to contributions or gifts made to domestic corporations, or to such vocational rehabilitation fund;

(12) (A) At the time of filing return for the taxable year 1918 a taxpayer may file a claim in abatement based on the fact that he has sustained a substantial loss (whether or not actually realized by sale or other disposition) resulting from any material reduction (not due to temporary fluctuation) of the value of the inventory for such taxable year, or from the actual payment after the close of such taxable year of rebates in pursuance of contracts entered into during such year upon sales made during such year. In such case payment of the amount of the tax covered by such claim shall not be required until the claim is decided, but the taxpayer shall accompany his claim with a bond in double the amount of the tax covered by the claim, with sureties satisfactory to the Commissioner, conditioned for the payment of any part of such tax found to be due, with interest. If any part of such claim is disallowed then the remainder of the tax due shall on notice and demand by the collector be paid by the taxpayer with interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month from the time the tax would have been had no such claim been filed. I it is snown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that such substantial loss has been sustained, then in computing the tax imposed by this title the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income. (B) If no such claim is filed, but it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that during the taxable year 1919 the taxpayer has sustained a substantial loss of the character above described then the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income for the taxable year 1918 and the tax imposed by this title for such year shall be redetermined accordingly. Any amount found to be due to the taxpayer upon the basis of such redetermination shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

(b) In the case of a nonresident alien individual the deductions allowed in paragraphs (1), (4), (7), (8), (9), (12), and clause (E) of paragraph (3), of subdivision (a) shall be allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with income arising from a source within the United States; and the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources of income within and without the United States shall be determined under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary.

ITEMS NOT DEDUCTIBLE.

Sec. 215. That in computing net income no deduction shall in any case be allowed in respect of—

(a) Personal, living, or family expenses;

(b) Any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments made to increase the value of any property or estate;

(c) Any amount expended in restoring property or in making good the exhaustion thereof for which an allowance is or has been made; or

(d) Premiums paid on any life insurance policy, covering the life of any officer or employe, or of any person financially interested in any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer, when the taxpayer is directly or indirectly a beneficiary under such policy.

CREDITS ALLOWED.

Sec. 216. That for the purpose of the normal tax only there shall be allowed the following credits:

(a) The amount received as dividends from a corporation which is taxable under this title upon its net income and amounts received as dividends from a personal service corporation out of earnings or profits upon which income tax has been imposed by Act of Congress;

(b) The amount received as interest upon obligations of the United States and bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation which is included in gross income under section 213;

(c) In the case of a single person, a personal exemption of $1,000, or in the case of the head of a family or a married person living with husband or wife, a personal exemption of $2,000. A husband and wife living together shall receive but one personal exemption of $2,000 against their aggregate net income; and in case they make separate returns, the personal exemption of $2,000 may be taken by either or divided between them;

(d) $200 for each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer, if such dependent person is under eighteen years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

(e) In the case of a nonresident alien individual who is a citizen or subject of a country which imposes an income tax, the credits allowed in subdivisions (c) and (d) shall be allowed only if such country allows a similar credit to citizens of the United States not residing in such country.

NONRESIDENT ALIENS—ALLOWANCE OF DEDUCTIONS AND CREDITS.

Sec. 217. That a nonresident alien individual shall receive the benefit of the deductions and credits allowed in this title only by filing or causing to be filed with the collector a true and accurate return of his total income received from all sources corporate or otherwise in the United States, in the manner prescribed by this title, including therein all the information which the Commissioner may deem necessary for the calculation of such deductions and credits: Provided, That the benefit of the credits allowed in subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 216 may, in the discretion of the Commissioner, and except as otherwise provided in subdivision (e) of that section, be received by filing a claim therefor with the withholding agent. In case of failure to file a return, the collector shall collect the tax on such income, and all property belonging to such nonresident alien individual shall be liable to distraint for the tax.

PARTNERSHIPS AND PERSONAL SERVICE CORPORATIONS.

Sec. 218. (a) That individuals carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in their individual capacity. There shall be included in computing the net income of each partner his distributive share, whether distributed or not, of the net income of the partnership for the taxable year, or, if its net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the partnership is computed, then his distributive share of the net income of the partnership for any accounting period of the partnership ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which the partner's net income is computed.

The partner shall, for the purpose of the normal tax, be allowed as credits, in addition to the credits allowed to him under section 216, his proportionate share of such amounts specified in subdivisions (a) and (b) of section 216 as are received by the partnership.

(b) If a fiscal year of a partnership ends during a calendar year for which the rates of tax differ from those for the preceding calendar year, then (1) the rates for such preceding calendar year shall apply to an amount of each partner's share of such partnership net income equal to the proportion which the part of such fiscal year falling within such calendar year bears to the full fiscal year, and (2) the rates for the calendar year during which such fiscal year ends shall apply to the remainder.

(c) In the case of an individual member of a partnership which makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, his proportionate share of any excess profits tax imposed upon the partnership under the Revenue Act of 1917 with respect to that part of such fiscal year falling in 1917, shall, for the purpose of determining the tax imposed by this title, be credited against that portion of the net income embraced in his personal return for the taxable year 1918 to which the rates for 1917 apply.

(d) The net income of the partnership shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as provided in section 212, except that the deduction provided in paragraph (11) of subdivision (a) of section 214 shall not be allowed.

(e) Personal service corporations shall not be subject to taxation under this title, but the individual stockholders thereof shall be taxed in the same manner as the members of partnerships. All the provisions of this title relating to partnerships and the members thereof shall so far as practicable apply to personal service corporations and the stockholders thereof; Provided, That for the purpose of this subdivision amounts distributed by a personal service corporation during its taxable year shall be accounted for by the distributees; and any portion of the net income remaining undistributed at the close of its taxable year shall be accounted for by the stockholders of such corporation at the close of its taxable year in proportion to their respective shares.

ESTATES AND TRUSTS.

Sec. 219. (a) That the tax imposed by sections 210 and 211 shall apply to the income of estates or of any kind of property held in trust, including—

(1) Income received by estates of deceased persons during the period of administration or settlement of the estate;

(2) Income accumulated in trust for the benefit of unborn or unascertained persons or persons with contingent interests;

(3) Income held for future distribution under the terms of the will or trust; and

(4) Income which is to be distributed to the beneficiaries periodically, whether or not at regular intervals, and the income collected by a guardian of an infant to be held or distributed as the court may direct.

(b) The fiduciary shall be responsible for making the return of income for the estate or trust for which he acts. The net income of the estate or trust shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as provided in section 212, except that there shall also be allowed as a deduction (in lieu of the deduction authorized by paragraph (11) of subdivision (A) of section 214) any part of the gross income which, pursuant to the terms of the will or deed creating the trust, is during the taxable year paid to or permanently set aside for the United States, any State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any corporation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; and in cases under paragraph (4) of subdivision (a) of this section the fiduciary shall include in the return a statement of each beneficiary's distributive share of such net income, whether or not distributed before the close of the taxable year for which the return is made.

(c) In cases under paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subdivision (a) the tax shall be imposed upon the net income of the estate or trust and shall be paid by the fiduciary except that in determining the net income of the estate of any deceased person during the period of administration or settlement there may be deducted the amount of any income properly paid or credited to any legatee, heir or other beneficiary. In such cases the estate or trust shall, for the purpose of the normal tax, be allowed the same credits as are allowed to single persons under section 216.

(d) In cases under paragraph (4) of subdivision (a), and in the case of any income of an estate during the period of administration or settlement permitted by subdivision (c) to be deducted from the net income upon which tax is to be paid by the fiduciary, the tax shall not be paid by the fiduciary, but there shall be included in computing the net income of each beneficiary his distributive share, whether distributed or not, of the net income of the estate or trust for the taxable year, or, if his net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the estate or trust is computed, then his distributive share of the net income of the estate or trust for any accounting period of such estate or trust ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such beneficiary's net income is computed. In such cases the beneficiary shall, for the purpose of the normal tax, be allowed as credits in addition to the credits allowed to him under section 216, his proportionate share of such amounts specified in subdivisions (a) and (b) of section 216 as are received by the estate or trust.

PROFITS OF CORPORATIONS TAXABLE TO STOCKHOLDERS.

Sec. 220. That if any corporation, however created or organized, is formed or availed of for the purpose of preventing the imposition of the surtax upon its stockholders or members through the medium of permitting its gains and profits to accumulate instead of being divided or distributed, such corporation shall not be subject to the tax imposed by section 230, but the stockholders or members thereof shall be subject to taxation under this title in the same manner as provided in subdivision (e) of section 218 in the case of stockholders of a personal service corporation, except that the tax imposed by title III shall be deducted from the net income of the corporation before the computation of the proportionate share of each stockholder or member. The fact that any corporation is a mere holding company, or that the gains and profits are permitted to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business, shall be prima facie evidence of a purpose to escape the surtax; but the fact that the gains and profits are in any case permitted to accumulate and become surplus shall not be construed as evidence of a purpose to escape the tax in such case unless the Commissioner certifies that in his opinion such accumulation is unreasonable for the purposes of the business. When requested by the Commissioner, or any collector, every corporation shall forward to him a correct statement of such gains and profits and the names and addresses of the individuals or shareholders who would be entitled to the same if divided or distributed, and of the amounts that would be payable to each.

PAYMENT OF TAX AT SOURCE.

Sec. 221. (a) That all individuals, corporations and partnerships, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, employers, and all officers and employees of the United States, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal, or payment, of interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, and income, of any nonresident alien individual (other than income received as dividends from a corporation which is taxable under this title upon its net income (shall except in the cases provided for in subdivision (b) and except as otherwise provided in regulations prescribed by the Commissioner under section 217) deduct and withhold from such annual or periodical gains, profits and income a tax equal to 8 per centum thereof: Provided, That the Commissioner may authorize such tax to be deducted and withheld from the interest upon any securities the owners of which are not known to the withholding agent.

(b) In any case where bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a corporation contain a contract or provision by which the obligor agrees to pay any portion of the tax imposed by this title upon the obligee, or to reimburse the obligee for any portion of the tax, or to pay the interest without deduction for any tax which the obligor may be required or permitted to pay thereon or to retain therefrom under any law of the United States, the obligor shall deduct and withhold a tax equal to 2 per centum of the interest upon such bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other obligations, whether such interest is payable annually or at shorter or longer periods and whether payable to a nonresident alien individual or to an individual citizen or resident of the United States or to a partnership: Provided, That the Commissioner may authorize such tax to be deducted and withheld in the case of interest upon any such bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other obligations, the owners of which are not known to the withholding agent. Such deduction and withholding shall not be required in the case of a citizen or resident entitled to receive such interest, if he files with the withholding agent on or before February 1 a signed notice in writing claiming the benefit of the credits provided in subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 216; nor in the case of a nonresident alien individual if so provided for in regulations prescribed by the Commissioner under section 217.

(c) Every individual, corporation, or partnership required to deduct and withhold any tax under this section shall make return thereof on or before March first of each year and shall on or before June fifteenth pay the tax to the official of the United States Government authorized to receive it. Every such individual, corporation, or partnership is hereby made liable for such tax and is hereby indemnified against the claims and demands of any individual, corporation, or partnership for the amount of any payments made in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(d) Income upon which any tax is required to be withheld at the source under this section shall be included in the return of the recipient of such income, but any amount of tax so withheld shall be credited against the amount of income tax as computed in such return.

(e) If any tax required under this section to be deducted and withheld is paid by the recipient of the income, it shall not be recollected from the withholding agent; nor in cases in which the tax is so paid shall any penalty be imposed upon or collected from the recipient of the income or the withholding agent for failure to return or pay the same, unless such failure was fraudulent and for the purpose of evading payment.

CREDIT FOR TAXES.

Sec. 222. (a) That the tax computed under Part II of this title shall be credited with:

(1) In the case of a citizen of the United States, the amount of any income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes paid during the taxable year to any foreign country, upon income derived from sources therein, or to any possession of the United States; and

(2) In the case of a resident of the United States, the amount of any such taxes paid during the taxable year to any possession of the United States; and

(3) In the case of an alien resident of the United States who is a citizen or subject of a foreign country, the amount of any such taxes paid during the taxable year to such country, upon income derived from sources therein, if such country, in imposing such taxes, allows a similar credit to citizens of the United States residing in such country; and

(4) In the case of any such individual who is a member of a partnership or a beneficiary of an estate or trust, his proportionate share of such taxes of the partnership or the estate or trust paid during the taxable year to a foreign country or to any possession of the United States, as the case may be.

(b) If accrued taxes when paid differ from the amounts claimed as credits by the taxpayers, or if any tax paid is refunded in whole or in part, the taxpayer shall notify the Commissioner who shall redetermine the amount of the tax due under Part II of this title for the year or years affected, and the amount of tax due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid by the taxpayer upon notice and demand by the collector, or the amount of tax overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of Section 252. In the case of such a tax accrued but not paid, the Commissioner as a condition precedent to the allowance of this credit may require the taxpayers to give a bond, with sureties satisfactory to and to be approved by the Commissioner, in such penal sum as the Commissioner may require, conditioned for the payment by the taxpayer of any amount of tax found due upon any such redetermination; and the bond herein prescribed shall contain such further conditions as the Commissioner may require.

(c) These credits shall be allowed only if the taxpayer furnishes evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner showing the amount of income derived from sources within such foreign country or such possession of the United States, and all other information necessary for the computation of such credits.

INDIVIDUAL RETURNS.

Sec. 223. That every individual having a net income for the taxable year of $1,000 or over if single or if married and not living with husband or wife, or of $2,000 or over if married and living with husband or wife, shall make under oath a return stating specifically the items of his gross income and the deductions and credits allowed by this title. If a husband and wife living together have an aggregate net income of $2,000 or over, each shall make such a return unless the income of each is included in a single joint return.

If the taxpayer is unable to make his own return, the return shall be made by a duly authorized agent or by the guardian or other person charged with the care of the person or property of such taxpayer.

PARTNERSHIP RETURNS.

Sec. 224. That every partnership shall make a return for each taxable year, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions allowed by this title, and shall include in the return the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to share in the net income if distributed and the amount of the distributive share of each individual. The return shall be sworn to by any one of the partners.

FIDUCIARY RETURNS.

Sec. 225. That every fiduciary (except receivers appointed by authority of law in possession of part only of the property of an individual) shall make under oath a return for the individual, estate or trust for which he acts (1) if the net income of such individual is $1,000 or over if single or if married and not living with husband or wife, or $2,000 or over if married and living with husband or wife, or (2) if the net income of such estate or trust is $1,000 or over or if any beneficiary of such estate or trust is a nonresident alien, stating specifically the items of the gross income and the deductions and credits allowed by this title. Under such regulations as the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary may prescribe a return made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries and filed in the office of the collector of the district where such fiduciary resides shall be a sufficient compliance with the above requirement. The fiduciary shall make oath that he has sufficient knowledge of the affairs of such individual, estate or trust to enable him to make the return, and that the same is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, true and correct.

Fiduciaries required to make returns under this act shall be subject to all the provisions of this act which apply to individuals.

RETURNS WHEN ACCOUNTING PERIOD CHANGED.

Sec. 226. That if a taxpayer, with the approval of the Commissioner, changes the basis of computing net income from fiscal year to calendar year a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the last fiscal year for which return was made and the following Dec. 31. If the change is from calendar year to fiscal year, a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the last calendar year for which return was made and the date designated as the close of the fiscal year. If the change is from one fiscal year to another fiscal year a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the former fiscal year and the date designated as the close of the new fiscal year. If a taxpayer making his first return for income tax keeps his accounts on the basis of a fiscal year he shall make a separate return for the period between the beginning of the calendar year in which such fiscal year ends and the end of such fiscal year.

In all of the above cases the net income shall be computed on the basis of such period for which separate return is made, and the tax shall be paid thereon at the rate for the calendar year in which such period is included; and the credits provided in subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 216 shall be reduced respectively to amounts which bear the same ratio to the full credits provided in such subdivisions as the number of months in such period bears to twelve months.

TIME AND PLACE FOR FILING RETURNS.

Sec. 227. (a). That returns shall be made on or before the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the fiscal year, or, if the return is made on the basis of the calendar year, then the return shall be made on or before the fifteenth day of March. The Commissioner may grant a reasonable extension of time for filing returns whenever in his judgment good cause exists and shall keep a record of every such extension and the reason therefor. Except in the case of taxpayers who are abroad, no such extension shall be for more than six months.

(b) Returns shall be made to the collector for the district in which is located the legal residence or principal place of business of the person making the return, or, if he has no legal residence or principal place of business in the United States, then to the collector at Baltimore, Maryland.

UNDERSTATEMENT IN RETURNS.

Sec. 228. That if the collector or deputy collector has reason to believe that the amount of any income returned is understated, he shall give due notice to the taxpayer making the return to show cause why the amount of the return should not be increased, and upon proof of the amount understated, may increase the same accordingly. Such taxpayer may furnish sworn testimony to prove any relevant facts and if dissatisfied with the decision of the collector may appeal to the Commissioner for his decision, under such rules of procedure as may be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary.

PART III.—CORPORATIONS.

TAX ON CORPORATIONS.

Sec. 230. (a) That, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 10 of the Revenue Act of 1916, as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917, and by section 4 of the Revenue Act of 1917, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every corporation

Sec. 230. (a) That, in lieu of the taxes a tax at the following rates:

(1) For the calendar year 1918, 12 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the credits provided in section 236; and

(2) For each calendar year thereafter 10 per centum of such excess amount.

(b) For the purposes of the Act approved March 21, 1918, entitled "An Act to provide for the operation of transportation systems while under Federal control, for the just compensation of their owners and for other purposes," five-sixths of the tax imposed by paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) and four-fifths of the tax imposed by paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) shall be treated as levied by an Act in amendment of Title I of the Revenue Act of 1917.

CONDITIONAL AND OTHER EXEMPTIONS.

Sec. 231. That the following organizations shall be exempt from taxation under this title—

(1) Labor, agricultural, or horticultural organizations;

(2) Mutual savings banks not having a capital stock represented by shares;

(3) Fraternal beneficiary societies, orders, or associations, (a) operating under the lodge system or for the exclusive benefit of the members of a fraternity itself operating under the lodge system, and (b) providing for the payment of life, sick, accident, or other benefits to the members of such society, order, or association or their dependents;

(4) Domestic building and loan associations and cooperative banks without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit;

(5) Cemetery companies owned and operated exclusively for the benefit of their members;

(6) Corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual;

(7) Business leagues, chambers of commerce, or boards of trade, not organized for profit and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual;

(8) Civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare;

(9) Clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation, and other nonprofitable purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or member;

(10) Farmers' or other mutual hail, cyclone, or fire insurance companies, mutual ditch or irrigation companies, mutual or cooperative telephone companies, or like organizations of a purely local character, the income of which consists solely of assessments, dues, and fees collected from members for the sole purpose of meeting expenses;

(11) Farmers', fruit growers', or like associations, organized and operated as sales agents for the purpose of marketing the products of members and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary selling expenses, on the basis of the quantity of produce furnished by them;

(12) Corporations organized for the exclusive purpose of holding title to property, collecting income therefrom, and turning over the entire amount thereof, less expenses, to an organization which itself is exempt from the tax imposed by this title;

(13) Federal land banks and national farm-loan associations as provided in section 26 of the Act approved July 17, 1916, entitled "An Act to provide capital for agricultural development, to create standard forms of investment based upon farm mortgage, to equalize rates of interest upon farm loans, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create Government depositaries and financial agents for the United States, and for other purposes";

(14) Personal service corporations.

NET INCOME DEFINED.

Sec. 232. That in the case of a corporation subject to the tax imposed by section 230 the term "net income" means the gross income as defined in section 233 less the deductions allowed by section 234, and the net income shall be computed on the same basis as is provided in subdivision (b) of section 212 or in section 226.

GROSS INCOME DEFINED.

Sec. 233. (a) That in the case of a corporation subject to the tax imposed by section 230 the term "gross income" means the gross income as defined in section 213, except that:

(1) In the case of life insurance companies there shall not be included in gross income such portion of any actual premium received from any individual policyholder as is paid back or credited to or treated as an abatement of premium of such policyholder within the taxable year.

(2) Mutual marine insurance companies shall include in gross income the gross premiums collected and received by them less amounts paid for reinsurance.

(b) In the case of a foreign corporation gross income includes only the gross income from sources within the United States, including the interest on bonds, notes, or other interest-bearing obligations of residents, corporate or otherwise, dividends from resident corporations, and including all amounts received (although paid under a contract for the sale of goods or otherwise) representing profits on the manufacture and disposition of goods within the United States.

DEDUCTIONS ALLOWED.

Sec. 234. (a) That in computing the net income of a corporation subject to the tax imposed by section 230 there shall be allowed as deductions:

(1) All the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered, and including rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession of property to which the corporation has not taken or is not taking title, or in which it has no equity;

(2) All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on its indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917) the interest upon which is wholly exempt from taxation under this title as income to the taxpayer, or, in the case of a foreign corporation, the proportion of such interest which the amount of its gross income from sources within the United States bears to the amount of its gross income from all sources within and without the United States;

(3) Taxes paid or accrued within the taxable year imposed (a) by the authority of the United States, except income, war profits and excess-profits taxes; or (b) by the authority of any of its possessions, except the amount of income, war profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 238; or (c) by the authority of any State or Territory, or any county, school district, municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any State or Territory, not including those assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed; or (d) in the case of a domestic corporation, by the authority of any foreign country, except the amount of income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 238; or (e) in the case of a foreign corporation, by the authority of any foreign country (except income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes, and taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed,) upon the property or business; Provided, That in the case of obligors specified in subdivision (b) of section 221 no deduction for the payment of the tax imposed by this title or any other tax paid pursuant to the contract or provision referred to in that subdivision, shall be allowed;

(4) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise;

(5) Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the taxable year;

(6) Amounts received as dividends from a corporation which is taxable under this title upon its net income, and amounts received as dividends from a personal service corporation out of earnings or profits upon which income tax has been imposed by Act of Congress;

(7) A reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence;

(8) In the case of buildings, machinery, equipment, or other facilities, constructed, erected, installed, or acquired, on or after April 6, 1917, for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the present war, and in the case of vessels constructed or acquired on or after such date for the transportation of articles or men contributing to the prosecution of the present war, there shall be allowed a reasonable deduction for the amortization of such part of the cost of such facilities or vessels as has been borne by the taxpayer, but not again including any amount otherwise allowed under this title or previous acts of Congress as a deduction in computing net income. At any time within three years after the termination of the present war the Commissioner may, and at the request of the taxpayer shall, re-examine the return, and if he then finds as a result of an appraisal or from other evidence that the deduction originally allowed was incorrect, the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III. for the year or years affected shall be redetermined; and the amount of tax due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid upon notice and demand by the collector, or the amount of tax overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252;

(9) In the case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits, and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation of improvements, according to the peculiar conditions in each case, based upon cost including cost of development not otherwise deducted: Provided, That in the case of such properties acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the fair market value of the property (or the taxpayers' interest therein) on that date shall be taken in lieu of cost up to that date: Provided further, That in the case of mines, oil and gas wells, discovered by the taxpayer, on or after March 1, 1913, and not acquired as the result of purchase of a proven tract or lease, where the fair market value of the property is materially disproportionate to the cost, the depletion allowance shall be based upon the fair market value of the property at the date of the discovery, or within thirty days thereafter; such reasonable allowance in all the above cases to be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. In the case of leases the deductions allowed by this paragraph shall be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee;

(10) In the case of insurance companies, in addition to the above: (a) The net addition required by law to be made within the taxable year to reserve funds (including in the case of assessment insurance companies the actual deposit of sums with State or territorial officers pursuant to law as additions to guarantee or reserve funds); and (b) the sums other than dividends paid within the taxable year on policy and annuity contracts;

(11) In the case of corporations issuing policies covering life, health, and accident insurance combined in one policy issued on the weekly premium payment plan continuing for life and not subject to cancellation, in addition to the above, such portion of the net addition (not required by law) made within the taxable year to reserve funds as the Commissioner finds to be required for the protection of the holders of such policies only;

(12) In the case of mutual marine insurance companies, there shall be allowed, in addition to the deductions allowed in Paragraphs (1) to (10), inclusive, amounts repaid to policyholders on account of premiums previously paid by them, and interest paid upon such amounts between the ascertainment and the payment thereof;

(13) In the case of mutual insurance companies (other than mutual life or mutual marine insurance companies) requiring their members to make premium deposits to provide for losses and expenses, there shall be allowed, in addition to the deductions allowed in Paragraphs (1) to (10), inclusive, (unless otherwise allowed under such paragraphs) the amount of premium deposits returned to their policyholders and the amount of premium deposits retained for the payment of losses, expenses, and reinsurance reserves;

(14) (A) At the time of filing return for the taxable year 1918 a taxpayer may file a claim in abatement based on the fact that he has sustained a substantial loss (whether or not actually realized by sale or other disposition) resulting from any material reduction (not due to temporary fluctuation) of the value of the inventory for such taxable year, or from the actual payment after the close of such taxable year of rebates in pursuance of contracts entered into during such year upon sales made during such year. In such case payment of the amount of the tax covered by such claim shall not be required until the claim is decided, but the taxpayer shall accompany his claim with a bond in double the amount of the tax covered by the claim, with sureties satisfactory to the Commissioner, conditioned for the payment of any part of such tax found to be due, with interest. If any part of such claim is disallowed then the remainder of the tax due shall on notice and demand by the Collector be paid by the taxpayer with interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month from the time the tax would have been due had no such claim been filed. If it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that such substantial loss has been sustained, then in computing the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III. the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income. (B) If no such claim is filed, but it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that during the taxable year 1919 the taxpayer has sustained a substantial loss of the character above described then the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income for the taxable year 1918 and the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III. for such year shall be redetermined accordingly. Any amount found to be due to the taxpayer upon the basis of such redetermination shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of Section 252.

(b) In the case of a foreign corporation the deductions allowed in subdivision (a), except those allowed in Paragraph (2) and in Clauses (A), (B), and (C) of Paragraph (3), shall be allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with income arising from a source within the United States; and the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources of income within and without the United States shall be determined under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary.

Items Not Deductible.

Sec. 235. That in computing net income no deduction shall in any case be allowed in respect of any of the items specified in Section 215.

Credits Allowed.

Sec. 236. That for the purpose only of the tax imposed by section 230 there shall be allowed the following credits:

(a) The amount received as interest upon obligations of the United States and bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation, which is included in gross income under section 233;

(b) The amount of any taxes imposed by Title III for the same taxable year: Provided, That in the case of a corporation which makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, in computing the tax as provided in subdivision (a) of section 205, the tax computed for the entire period under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917 shall be credited against the net income computed for the entire period under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917 and under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1917, and the tax computed for the entire period under Title III of this Act at the rates prescribed for the calendar year 1918 shall be credited against the net income computed for the entire period under this title; and

(c) In the case of a domestic corporation, $2,000.

Payment of Tax at Source.

Sec. 237. That in the case of foreign corporations subject to taxation under this title not engaged in trade or business within the United States and not having any office or place of business therein, there shall be deducted and withheld at the source in the same manner and upon the same items of income as is provided in section 221 a tax equal to 10 per centum thereof, and such tax shall be returned and paid in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as provided in that section: Provided, That in the case of interest described in subdivision (b) of that section the deduction and withholding shall be at the rate of 2 per centum.

Credit for Taxes.

Sec. 238. That in the case of a domestic corporation the total taxes imposed for the taxable year by this title and by Title III shall be credited with the amount of any income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes paid during the taxable year to any foreign country, upon income derived from sources therein, or to any possession of the United States.

If accrued taxes when paid differ from the amounts claimed as credits by the corporation, or if any tax paid is refunded in whole or in part, the corporation shall at once notify the Commissioner who shall redetermine the amount of the taxes due under this title and under Title III for the year or years affected, and the amount of taxes due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid by the corporation upon notice and demand by the Collector, or the amount of taxes overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the corporation in accordance with the provisions of section 252. In the case of such a tax accrued but not paid, the Commissioner as a condition precedent to the allowance of this credit may require the corporation to give a bond with sureties satisfactory to and to be approved by him in such penal sum as he may require, conditioned for the payment by the taxpayer of any amount of taxes found due upon any such redetermination; and the bond herein prescribed shall contain such further conditions as the Commissioner may require.

(b) This credit shall be allowed only if the taxpayer furnishes evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner showing the amount of income derived from sources within such foreign country or such possession of the United States, as the case may be, and all other information necessary for the computation of such credit.

(c) If a domestic corporation makes a return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, only that proportion of this credit shall be allowed which the part of such period within the calendar year 1918 bears to the entire period.

Corporation Returns.

Sec. 239. That every corporation subject to taxation under this title and every personal service corporation shall make a return, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions and credits allowed by this title. The return shall be sworn to by the president, vice president, or other principal officer and by the treasurer or assistant treasurer. If any foreign corporation has no office or place of business in the United States but has an agent in the United States, the return shall be made by the agent. In cases where receivers, trustees in bankruptcy, or assignees are operating the property or business of corporations, such receivers, trustees, or assignees shall make returns for such corporations in the same manner and form as corporations are required to make returns. Any tax due on the basis of such returns made by receivers, trustees, or assignees shall be collected in the same manner as if collected from the corporations of whose business or property they have custody and control.

Returns made under this section shall be subject to the provisions of sections 226 and 228.

When return is made under section 226 the credit provided in subdivision (c) of section 236 shall be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to the full credit therein provided as the number of months in the period for which such return is made bears to twelve months.

Consolidated Returns.

Sec. 240. (a) That corporations which are affiliated within the meaning of this section shall, under regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, make a consolidated return of net income and invested capital for the purposes of this title and Title III, and the taxes thereunder shall be computed and determined upon the basis of such return; provided, that there shall be taken out of such consolidated net income and invested capital, the net income and invested capital of any such affiliated corporation organized after August 1, 1914, and not successor to a then existing business, 50 per centum or more of whose gross income consists of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived from a Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive. In such case the corporation so taken out shall be separately assessed on the basis of its own invested capital and net income and the remainder of such affiliated group shall be assessed on the basis of the remaining consolidated invested capital and net income.

In any case in which a tax is assessed upon the basis of a consolidated return, the total tax shall be computed in the first instance as a unit and shall then be assessed upon the respective affiliated corporations in such proportions as may be agreed upon among them, or, in the absence of any such agreement, then on the basis of the net income properly assignable to each. There shall be allowed in computing the income tax only one specific credit of $2,000 (as provided in section 236); in computing the war-profits credit (as provided in section 311) only one specific exemption of $3,000; and in computing the excess-profits credit (as provided in section 312) only one specific exemption of $3,000.

(b) For the purpose of this section two or more domestic corporations shall be deemed to be affiliated (1) if one corporation owns directly or controls through closely affiliated interests or by a nominee or nominees substantially all the stock of the other or others, or (2) if substantially all the stock of two or more corporations is owned or controlled by the same interests.

(c) For the purposes of Section 238 a domestic corporation which owns a majority of the voting stock of a foreign corporation shall be deemed to have paid the same proportion of any income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes paid (but not including taxes accrued) by such foreign corporation during the taxable year to any foreign country or to any possession of the United States upon income derived from sources without the United States, which the amount of any dividends (not deductible under Section 234) received by such domestic corporation from such foreign corporation during the taxable year bears to the total taxable income of such foreign corporation upon or with respect to which such taxes were paid; provided, that in no such case shall the amount of the credit for such taxes exceed the amount of such dividends (not deductible under Section 234) received by such domestic corporation during the taxable year.

Time and Place for Filing Returns.

Sec. 241. (a) That returns of corporations shall be made at the same time as is provided in subdivision (a) of Section 227.

(b) Returns shall be made to the collector of the district in which is located the principal place of business or principal office or agency of the corporation, or, if it has no principal place of business or principal office or agency in the United States, then to the collector at Baltimore, Maryland.

PART IV.—ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.

Payment of Taxes.

Sec. 250 (a) That except as otherwise provided in this section and sections 221 and 237 the tax shall be paid in four installments, each consisting of one-fourth of the total amount of the tax. The first installment shall be paid at the time fixed by law for filing the return, and the second installment shall be paid on the fifteenth day of the third month, the third installment on the fifteenth day of the sixth month, and the fourth installment on the fifteenth day of the ninth month, after the time fixed by law for filing the return. Where an extension of time for filing a return is granted the time for payment of the first installment shall be postponed until the date of the expiration of the period of the extension, but the time for payment of the other installments shall not be postponed unless the Commissioner so provides in granting the extension. In any case in which the time for the payment of any installment is at the request of the taxpayer thus postponed there shall be added as part of such installment interest thereon at the rate of ½ of 1 per centum per month from the time it would have been due if no extension had been granted, until paid. If any installment is not paid when due, the whole amount of the tax unpaid shall become due and payable upon notice and demand by the collector.

The tax may at the option of the taxpayer be paid in a single payment instead of in installments, in which case the total amount shall be paid on or before the time fixed by law for filing the return, or, where an extension of time for filing the return has been granted, on or before the expiration of the period of such extension.

(b) As soon as practicable after the return is filed, the Commissioner shall examine it. If it then appears that the correct amount of the tax is greater or less than that shown in the return, the installments shall be recomputed. If the amount already paid exceeds that which should have been paid on the basis of the installments as recomputed, the excess so paid shall be credited against the subsequent installments; and if the amount already paid exceeds the correct amount of the tax, the excess shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

If the amount already paid is less than that which should have been paid, the difference shall, to the extent not covered by any credits then due to the taxpayer under section 252, be paid upon notice and demand by the collector. In such case if the return is made in good faith and the understatement of the amount in the return is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty because of such understatement. If the understatement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added as part of the tax 5 per centum of the total amount of the deficiency, plus interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month on the amount of the deficiency of each installment from the time the installment was due.

If the understatement is false or fraudulent with intent to evade the tax, then, in lieu of the penalty provided by section 3176 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for false or fraudulent returns willfully made, but in addition to other penalties provided by law for false or fraudulent returns, there shall be added as part of the tax 50 per centum of the amount of the deficiency.

(c) If the return is made pursuant to section 3176 of the Revised Statutes as amended, the amount of tax determined to be due under such return shall be paid upon notice and demand by the collector.

(d) Except in the case of false or fraudulent returns with intent to evade the tax, the amount of tax due under any return shall be determined and assessed by the Commissioner within five years after the return was due or was made, and no suit or proceeding for the collection of any tax shall be begun after the expiration of five years after the date when the return was due or was made. In the case of such false or fraudulent returns, the amount of tax due may be determined at any time after the return is filed, and the tax may be collected at any time after it becomes due.

(e) If any tax remains unpaid after the date when it is due, and for ten days after notice and demand by the collector, then, except in the case of estates of insane, deceased, or insolvent persons, there shall be added as part of the tax the sum of 5 per centum on the amount due but unpaid, plus interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month upon such amount from the time it became due: Provided, That as to any such amount which is the subject of a bona fide claim for abatement such sum of 5 per centum shall not be added and the interest from the time the amount was due until the claim is decided shall be at the rate of ½ of 1 per centum per month.

In the case of the first installment provided for in subdivision (a) the instructions printed on the return shall be deemed sufficient notice of the date when the tax is due and sufficient demand, and the taxpayer's computation of the tax on the return shall be deemed sufficient notice of the amount due.

(f) In any case in which in order to enforce payment of a tax it is necessary for a Collector to cause a warrant of distraint to be served there shall also be added as part of the tax the sum of $5.

(g) If the Commissioner finds that a taxpayer designs quickly to depart from the United States or to remove his property therefrom, or to conceal himself or his property therein, or to do any other act tending to prejudice or to render wholly or partly ineffectual proceedings to collect the tax for the taxable year then last past or the taxable year then current unless such procedings be brought without delay, the Commissioner shall declare the taxable period for such taxpayer terminated at the end of the calendar month then last past and shall cause notice of such finding and declaration to be given the taxpayer, together with a demand for immediate payment of the tax for the taxable period so declared terminated and of the tax for the preceding taxable year or so much of said tax as is unpaid, whether or not the time otherwise allowed by law for filing return and paying the tax has expired; and such taxes shall thereupon become immediately due and payable. In any action or suit brought to enforce payment of taxes made due and payable by virtue of the provisions of this subdivision the finding of the Commissioner, made as herein provided, whether made after notice to the taxpayer or not, shall be for all purposes presumptive evidence of the taxpayer's design. A taxpayer who is not in default in making any return or paying income, war profits, or excess profits tax under any act of Congress may furnish to the United States, under regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, security approved by the Commissioner that he will duly make the return next thereafter required to be filed and pay the tax next thereafter required to be paid. The Commissioner may approve and accept in like manner security for return and payment of taxes made due and payable by virtue of the provisions of this subdivision, provided the taxpayer has paid in full all other income, war profits, or excess profits taxes due from him under any act of Congress. If security is approved and accepted pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision and such further or other security with respect to the tax or taxes covered thereby is given as the Commissioner shall from time to time find necessary and require, payment of such taxes shall not be enforced by any proceedings under the provisions of this subdivision prior to the expiration of time otherwise allowed for paying such respective taxes.

Receipts for Taxes.

Sec. 251. That every Collector to whom any payment of any tax is made under the provisions of this title shall upon request give to the person making such payment a full written or printed receipt, stating the amount paid and the particular account for which such payment was made; and whenever any debtor pays taxes on account of payments made or to be made by him to separate creditors the Collector shall, if requested by such debtor, give a separate receipt for the tax paid on account of each creditor in such form that the debtor can conveniently produce such receipts separately to his several creditors in satisfaction of their respective demands up to the amounts stated in the receipts; and such receipt shall be sufficient evidence in favor of such debtor to justify him in withholding from his next payment to his creditor the amount therein stated; but the creditor may, upon giving to his debtor a full written receipt acknowledging the payment to him of any sum actually paid and accepting the amount of tax paid as aforesaid (specifying the same) as a further satisfaction of the debt to that amount, require the surrender to him of such Collector's receipt.

Refunds.

Sec. 252. That if, upon examination of any return of income made pursuant to this act, the act of Aug. 5, 1909, entitled "An act to provide revenue, equalize duties, and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes," the act of Oct. 3, 1913, entitled "An act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," the Revenue act of 1916, as amended, or the Revenue act of 1917, it appears that an amount of income, war profits, or excess profits tax has been paid in excess of that properly due, then, notwithstanding the provisions of Section 3,228 of the Revised Statutes, the amount of the excess shall be credited against any income, war profits, or excess profits taxes, or installment thereof, then due from the taxpayer under any other return, and any balance of such excess shall be immediately refunded to the taxpayer: Provided, that no such credit or refund shall be allowed or made after five years from the date when the return was due, unless before the expiration of such five years a claim therefor is filed by the taxpayer.

Penalties.

Sec. 253. That any individual, corporation, or partnership required under this title to pay or collect any tax, to make a return or to supply information, who fails to pay or collect such tax, to make such return, or to supply such information at the time or times required under this title, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $1,000. Any individual, corporation, or partnership, or any officer or employe of any corporation or member or employe of a partnership, who willfully refuses to pay or collect such tax, to make such return, or to supply such information at the time or times required under this title, or who willfully attempts in any manner to defeat or evade the tax imposed by this title, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both, together with the costs of prosecution.

Returns of Payments of Dividends.

Sec. 254. That every corporation subject to the tax imposed by this title and every personal service corporation shall, when required by the Commissioner, render a correct return, duly verified under oath, of its payments of dividends, stating the name and address of each stockholder, the number of shares owned by him, and the amount of dividends paid to him.

Returns of Brokers.

Sec. 255. That every individual, corporation, or partnership doing business as a broker shall, when required by the Commissioner, render a correct return, duly verified under oath, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, showing the names of customers for whom such individual, corporation, or partnership has transacted any business, with such details as to the profits, losses, or other information which the Commissioner may require, as to each of such customers, as will enable the Commissioner to determine whether all income tax due on profits or gains of such customers has been paid.

Information at Source.

Sec. 256. That all individuals, corporations, and partnerships, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, and employers, making payment to another individual, corporation, or partnership, of interest, rent, cararies, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed, or determinable gains, profits, and income, (other than payments described in Sections 254 and 255,) of $1,000 or more in any taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or emyloyes of the United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Commissioner, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

Such returns may be required, regardless of amounts, (1) in the case of payments of interest upon bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or similar obligations of corporations, and (2) in the case of collections of items (not payable in the United States) of interest upon the bonds of foreign countries and interest upon the bonds of and dividends from foreign corporations by individuals, corporations or partnership, undertakings as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of such interest or dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange.

When necessary to make effective the provisions of this section the name and address of the recipient of income shall be furnished upon demand of the individual, corporation, or partnership paying the income.

The provisions of this section shall apply to the calendar year 1918 and each calendar year thereafter, but shall not apply to the payment of interest on obligations of the United States.

Returns to be Public Records.

Sec. 257. That returns upon which the tax has been determined by the Commissioner shall constitute public records; but they shall be open to inspection only upon order of the President and under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary and approved by the President: Provided, That the proper officers of any State imposing an income tax may, upon the request of the Governor thereof, have access to the returns of any corporation, or to an abstract thereof showing the name and income of the corporation, at such times and in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe; Provided, further, That all bona fide stockholders of record owning 1 per centum or more of the outstanding stock of any corporation shall, upon making request of the Commissioner, be allowed to examine the annual income returns of such corporation and of its subsidiaries. Any stockholder who pursuant to the provisions of this section is allowed to examine the returns of any corporation, and who makes known in any manner whatever not provided by law the amount or source of income, profits, losses, expenditures, or any particular thereof, set forth or disclosed in any such return, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

The Commissioner shall as soon as practicable in each year cause to be prepared and made available to public inspection, in such manner as he may determine, in the office of the collector in each internal revenue district and in such other places as he may determine, lists containing the names and the post-office addresses of all individuals making income-tax returns in such district.

Publication of Statistics.

Sec. 258. That the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prepare and publish annually statistics reasonably available with respect to the operation of the income, war profits and excess-profits tax laws, including classifications of taxpayers and of income, the amounts allowed as deductions, exemptions, and credits, and any other facts deemed pertinent and valuable.

Collection of Foreign Items.

Sec. 259. That all individuals, corporations, or partnerships undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of interest or dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange shall obtain a license from the Commissioner and shall be subject to such regulations enabling the Government to obtain the information required under this title as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe; and whoever knowingly undertakes to collect such payments without having obtained a license therefor, or without complying with such regulations, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

Citizens of United States Possessions.

Sec. 260. That any individual who is a citizen of any possession of the United States (but not otherwise a citizen of the United States) and who is not a resident of the United States, shall be subject to taxation under this title only as to income derived from sources within the United States, and in such case the tax shall be computed and paid in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as in the case of other persons who are taxable only as to income derived from such sources.

Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.

Sec. 261. That in Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands the income tax shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid in accordance with the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended.

Returns shall be made and taxes shall be paid under Title I of such Act in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands, as the case may be, by (1) every individual who is a citizen or resident of Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands or derives income from sources therein, and (2) every corporation created or organized in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands or deriving income from sources therein. An individual who is neither a citizen nor a resident of Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands but derives income from sources therein, shall be taxed in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands as a nonresident alien individual, and a corporation created or organized outside Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands and deriving income from sources therein shall be taxed in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands as a foreign corporation. For the purposes of Section 216 and of paragraph (6) of subdivision (A) of Section 234 a tax imposed in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands upon the net income of a corporation shall not be deemed to be a tax under this title.

The Porto Rican or Philippine Legislature shall have power by due enactment to amend, alter, modify, or repeal the income tax laws in force in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands, respectively.

TITLE III.—WAR-PROFITS AND EXCESS-PROFITS TAX.

PART I.—GENERAL DEFINITIONS.

Sec. 300. That when used in this title the terms "taxable year," "fiscal year," "personal service corporation," "paid or accrued," and "dividends" shall have the same meaning as provided for the purposes of income tax in Sections 200 and 201. The first taxable year for the purposes of this title shall be the same as the first taxable year for the purposes of the income tax under Title II.

PART II.—IMPOSITION OF TAX.

Sec. 301. (a) That in lieu of the tax imposed by Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917, but in addition to the other taxes imposed by this Act, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for the taxable year 1918 upon the net income of every corporation a tax equal to the sum of the following:

First Bracket.

Thirty per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the excess-profits credit (determined under Section 312) and not in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital;

Second Bracket.

Sixty-five per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital;

Third Bracket.

The sum, if any, by which 80 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the war-profits credit (determined under Section 311) exceeds the amount of the tax computed under the first and second brackets.

(b) For the taxable year 1919 and each taxable year thereafter there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon the net income of every corporation (except corporations taxable under subdivision (C) of this section) a tax equal to the sum of the following:

First Bracket.

Twenty per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the excess-profits credit (determined under Section 312) and not in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital;

Second Bracket.

Forty per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital.

(c) For the taxable year 1919 and each taxable year thereafter there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon the net income of every corporation which derives in such year a net income of more than $10,000 from any Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive, a tax equal to the sum of the following:

(1) Such a portion of a tax computed at the rates specified in subdivision (a) as the part of the net income attributable to such Government contract or contracts bears to the entire net income. In computing such tax the excess-profits credit and the war-profits credit applicable to the taxable year shall be used;

(2) Such a portion of a tax computed at the rates specified in subdivision (b) as the part of the net income not attributable to such Government contract or contracts bears to the entire net income.

For the purpose of determining the part of the net income attributable to such Government contract or contracts, the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to gross income derived from such Government contract or contracts and from other sources, respectively, shall be determined under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary.

(d) In any case where the full amount of the excess-profits credit is not allowed under the first bracket of subdivision (a) or (b), by reason of the fact that such credit is in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital, the part not so allowed shall be deducted from the amount in the second bracket.

(e) For the purposes of the Act approved March 21, 1918, entitled "An act to provide for the operation of transportation systems while under Federal control, for the just compensation of their owners and for other purposes," the tax imposed by this title shall be treated as levied by an act in amendment of Title II. of the Revenue Act of 1917.

Sec. 302. That the tax imposed by subdivision (a) of Section 301 shall in no case be more than 30 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $3,000 and not in excess of $20,000, plus 80 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $20,000; the tax imposed by subdivision (b) of Section 301 shall in no case be more than 20 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $3,000 and not in excess of $20,000, plus 40 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $20,000; and the above limitations shall apply to the taxes computed under subdivisions (a) and (b) of Section 301, respectively, when used in subdivision (c) of that section. Nothing in this section shall be construed in such manner as to increase the tax imposed by Section 301.

Sec. 303. That if part of the net income of a corporation is derived (1) from a trade or business (or a branch of a trade or business) in which the employment of capital is necessary, and (2) a part (constituting not less than 30 per centum of its total net income) is derived from a separate trade or business (or a distinctly separate branch of the trade or business) which if constituting the sole trade or business would bring it within the class of "personal service corporations," then (under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary) the tax upon the first part of such net income shall be separately computed (allowing in such computation only the same proportionate part of the credits authorized in Sections 311 and 312,) and the tax upon the second part shall be the same percentage thereof as the tax so computed upon the first part is of such first part: Provided, That the tax upon such second part shall in no case be less than 20 per centum thereof, unless the tax upon the entire net income, if computed without benefit of this section, would constitute less than 20 per centum of such entire net income, in which event the tax shall be determined upon the entire net income, without reference to this section, as other taxes are determined under this title. "The total tax computed under this section shall be subject to the limitations provided in Section 302."

Sec. 304. (a) That the corporations enumerated in Section 231 shall, to the extent that they are exempt from income tax under Title II., be exempt from taxation under this title.

(b) Any corporation whose net income for the taxable year is less than $3,000 shall be exempt from taxation under this title.

(d) In the case of any corporation engaged in the mining of gold, the portion of the net income derived from the mining of gold shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this title, and the tax on the remaining portion of the net income shall be the proportion of a tax computed without the benefit of this subdivision which such remaining portion of the net income bears to the entire net income.

Sec. 305. That if a tax is computed under this title for a period of less than twelve months, the specific exemption of $3,000, wherever referred to in this title, shall be reduced to an amount which is the same proportion of $3,000 as the number of months in the period is of twelve months.

PART III.—CREDITS.

Sec. 310. That as used in this title the term "pre-war period" means the calendar years 1911, 1912, and 1913, or, if a corporation was not in existence during the whole of such period, then as many of such years during the whole of which the corporation was in existence.

Sec. 311. (a) That the war-profits credit shall consist of the sum of:

(1) A specific exemption of $3,000; and

(2) An amount equal to the average net income of the corporation for the pre-war period, plus or minus, as the case may be, 10 per centum of the difference between the average invested capital for the pre-war period and the invested capital for the taxable year. If the tax is computed for a period of less than twelve months such amount shall be reduced to the same proportion thereof as the number of months in the period is of twelve months.

(b) If the corporation had no net income for the prewar period, or if the amount computed under paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) is less than 10 per centum of its invested capital for the taxable year, then the war-profits credit shall be the sum of:

(1) A specific exemption of $3,000; and

(2) An amount equal to 10 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year.

(c) If the corporation was not in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the prewar period, then, except as provided in subdivision (d), the war-profits credit shall be the sum of:

(1) A specific exemption of $3,000; and

(2) An amount equal to the same percentage of the invested capital of the taxpayer for the taxable year as the average percentage of net income to invested capital, for the prewar period, of corporations engaged in a trade or business of the same general class as that conducted by the taxpayer; but such amount shall in no case be less than 10 per centum of the invested capital of the taxpayer for the taxable year. Such average percentage shall be determined by the Commissioner on the basis of data contained in returns made under Title II. of the Revenue Act of 1917, and the average known as the median shall be used. If such average percentage has not been determined and published at least 30 days prior to the time when the return of the taxpayer is due, then for purposes of such return 10 per centum shall be used in lieu thereof; but such average percentage when determined shall be used for the purposes of section 250 in determining the correct amount of the tax.

(d) The war-profits credit shall be determined in the manner provided in subdivision (b) instead of in the manner provided in subdivision (c) in the case of any corporation which was not in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the prewar period, if (1) a majority of its stock at any time during the taxable year is owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by a corporation which was in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the prewar period, or if (2) 50 per centum or more of its gross income (as computed under section 233 for income tax purposes) consists of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived from a Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive.

(e) A foreign corporation shall not be entitled to a specific exemption of $3,000.

Sec. 312. That the excess-profits credit shall consist of a specific exemption of $3,000 plus an amount equal to 8 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year.

A foreign corporation shall not be entitled to the specific exemption of $3,000.

PART IV.—NET INCOME.

Sec. 320. (a) That for the purpose of this title the net income of a corporation shall be ascertained and returned—

(1) For the celandar years 1911 and 1912 upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in section 38 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide revenue, equalize duties, and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes," approved August 5, 1909, except that taxes imposed by such section and paid by the corporation within the year shall be included;

(2) For the calendar year 1913 upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in Section II. of the Aact entitled "An Act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1913, except that taxes imposed by section 38 of such Act of August 5, 1909, and paid by the corporation within the year shall be included, and except that the amounts received by it as dividends upon the stock or from the net earnings of other corporations subject to the tax imposed by Section II. of such Act of October 3, 1913, shall be deducted; and

(3) For the taxable year upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided for income tax purposes in Title II. of this Act.

(b) The average net income for the prewar period shall be determined by dividing the number of years within that period during the whole of which the corporation was in existence into the sum of the net income for such years, even though there may have been no net income for one or more of such years.

PART V.—INVESTED CAPITAL.

Sec. 325. (a) That as used in this title:—

The term "intangible property" means patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulae, good will, trademarks, trade-bands, franchises, and other like property;

The term "tangible property" means stocks, bonds, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness, bills and accounts receivable, leasehold, and other property other than intangible property;

The term "borrowed capital" means money or other property borrowed, whether represented by bonds, notes, open accounts, or otherwise;

The term "inadmissible assets" means stocks, bonds, and other obligations (other than obligation of the United States), the dividends or interest from which is not included in computing net income, but where the income derived from such assets consists in part of gain or profit derived from the sale or other disposition thereof, or where all or part of the interest derived from such assets is in effect included in the net income because of the limitation on the deduction of interest under paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) of section 234, a corresponding part of the capital invested in such assets shall not be deemed to be inadmissible assets; the term "admissible assets" means all assets other than inadmissible assets, valued in accordance with the provisions of subdivision (a) of section 326, section 330, and section 331.

(b) For the purposes of this title, the par value of stock or shares shall, in the case of stock or shares issued at a nominal value or having no par value, be deemed to be the fair market value as of the date or dates of issue of such stock or shares.

Sec. 326. (a) That as used in this title the term "invested capital" for any year means (except as provided in subdivision (b) and (c) of this section):

(1) Actual cash bona fide paid in for stock or shares;

(2) Actual cash value of tangible property, other than cash, bona fide paid in for stock or shares, at the time of such payment, but in no case to exceed the par value of the original [illegible] specifically issued therefor, unless the actual cash value of such tangible property at the time paid in is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been clearly and substantially in excess of such par value, in which case such excess shall be treated as paid-in surplus: Provided, that the Commissioner shall keep a record of all cases in which tangible property is included in invested capital at a value in excess of the stock or shares issued therefor, containing the name and address of each taxpayer, the business in which engaged, the amount of invested capital and net income shown by the return, the value of the tangible property at the time paid in, the par value of the stock or shares specifically issued therefor, and the amount included under this paragraph as paid-in surplus. The Commissioner shall furnish a copy of such record and other detailed information with respect to such cases when required by resolution of either House of Congress, without regard to the restrictions contained in section 257;

(3) Paid-in or earned surplus and undivided profits; not including surplus and undivided profits earned during the year;

(4) Intangible property bona fide paid in for stock or shares prior to March 3, 1917, in an amount not exceeding (a) the actual cash value of such property at the time paid in, (b) the par value of the stock or shares issued therefor, or (c) in the aggregate 25 per centum of the par value of the total stock or shares of the corporation outstanding on March 3, 1917, whichever is lowest;

(5) Intangible property bona fide paid in for stock or shares on or after March 3, 1917, in an amount not exceeding (a) the actual cash value of such property at the time paid in, (b) the par value of the stock or shares issued therefor, or (c) in the aggregate 25 per centum of the par value of the total stock or shares of the corporation outstanding at the beginning of the taxable year, whichever is lowest: Provided, that in no case shall the total amount included under paragraphs (4) and (5) exceed in the aggregate 25 per centum of the par value of the total stock or shares of the corporation outstanding at the beginning of the taxable year; but

(b) As used in this title the term "invested capital" does not include borrowed capital.

(c) There shall be deducted from invested capital as above defined a percentage thereof equal to the percentage which the amount of inadmissible assets is of the amount of admissible and inadmissible assets held during the taxable year.

(d) The invested capital for any period shall be the average invested capital for such period, but in the case of a corporation making a return for a fractional part of a year, it shall (except for the purpose of paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) of section 311) be the same fractional part of such average invested capital.

The average invested capital for the prewar period shall be determined by dividing the number of years within that period during the whole of which the corporation was in existence into the sum of the average invested capital for such years.

Sec. 327. That in the following cases the tax shall be determined as provided in section 328:

(a) Where the Commissioner is unable to determine the invested capital as provided in section 326;

(b) In the case of a foreign corporation;

(c) Where a mixed aggregate of tangible property and intangible property has been paid in for stock or for stock and bonds and the Commissioner is unable satisfactorily to determine the respective values of the several classes of property at the time of payment, or to distinguish the classes of property paid in for stock and for bonds, respectively;

(d) Where upon application by the corporation the Commissioner finds and so declares of record that the tax if determined without benefit of this section would, owing to abnormal conditions affecting the capital or income of the corporation, work upon the corporation an exceptional hardship evidenced by gross disproportion between the tax computed without benefit of this section and the tax computed by reference to the representative corporations specified in section 328. This subdivision shall not apply to any case (1) in which the tax (computed without benefit of this section) is high merely because the corporation earned within the taxable year a high rate of profit upon a normal invested capital, nor (2) in which 50 per centum or more of the gross income of the corporation for the taxable year (computed under section 233 of title II.) consists of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived on a cost-plus basis from a Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, both dates inclusive.

Sec. 328. (a) In the cases specified in section 327 the tax shall be the amount which bears the same ratio to the net income of the taxpayer (in excess of the specific exemption of $3,000) for the taxable year, as the average tax of representative corporations engaged in a like or similar trade or business, bears to their average net income (in excess of the specific exemption of $3,000) for such year. In the case of a foreign corporation the tax shall be computed without deducting the specific exemption of $3,000 either for the taxpayer or the representative corporations.

In computing the tax under this section the Commissioner shall compare the taxpayer only with representative corporations whose invested capital can be satisfactorily determined under section 326 and which are, as nearly as may be, similarly circumstanced with respect to gross income, net income, profits per unit of business transacted and capital employed, the amount and rate of war profits or excess profits, and all other relevant facts and circumstances.

(b) For the purposes of subdivision (a) the ratios between the average tax and the average net income of representative corporations shall be determined by the Commissioner in accordance with regulations prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary.

In cases in which the tax is to be computed under this section, if the tax as computed without the benefit of this section is less than 50 percentum of the net income of the taxpayer, the installments shall in the first instance be computed upon the basis of such tax; but if the tax so computed is 50 percentum or more of the net income, the installments shall in the first instance be computed upon the basis of a tax equal to 50 percentum of the net income. In any case, the actual rate when ascertained shall be used in determining the correct amount of the tax. If the correct amount of the tax when determined exceeds 50 percentum of the net income, any excess of the correct installments over the amounts actually paid shall on notice and demand be paid together with interest at the rate of one-half of 1 percentum per month of such excess from the time the installment was due.

(c) The Commissioner shall keep a record of all cases in which the tax is determined in the manner prescribed in subdivision (a), containing the name and address of each taxpayer, the business in which engaged, the amount of invested capital and net income shown by the return, and the amount of invested capital as determined under such subdivision. The Commissioner shall furnish a copy of such record and other detailed information with respect to such cases when required by resolution of either house of Congress, without regard to restrictions contained in section 257.

PART VI.—REORGANIZATIONS.

Sec. 330. That in the case of the reorganization, consolidation, or change of ownership after Jan. 1, 1911, of a trade or business now carried on by a corporation, the corporation shall for the purposes of this title be deemed to have been in existence prior to that date, and the net income and invested capital of such predecessor trade or business for all or any part of the prewar period prior to the organization of the corporation now carrying on such trade or business shall be deemed to have been the net income and invested capital of such corporation. If such predecessor trade or business was carried on by a partnership or individual the net income for the pre-war period shall, under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, be ascertained and returned as nearly as may be upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided for corporations in Title II., including a reasonable deduction for salary or compensation to each partner or the individual for personal services actually rendered.

In the case of the organization as a corporation before July 1, 1919, of any trade or business in which capital is a material income-producing factor and which was previously owned by a partnership or individual, the net income of such trade or business from January 1, 1918, to the date of such reorganization may at the option of the individual or partnership be taxed as the net income of a corporation is taxed under titles II and III; in which event the net income and invested capital of such trade or business shall be computed as if such corporation had been in existence on and after January 1, 1918, and the undistributed profits or earnings of such trade or business shall not be subject to the surtax imposed in section 211, but amounts distributed on or after January 1, 1918, from the earnings of such trade or business shall be taxed to the recipients as dividends, and all the provisions of titles II and III relating to corporations shall, so far as practicable, apply to such trade or business: Provided, that this paragraph shall not apply to any trade or business the net income of which for the taxable year 1918 was less than 20 per centum of its invested capital for such year: Provided further, that any taxpayer who takes advantage of this paragraph shall pay the tax imposed by section 1000 of this Act and by the first subdivision of section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916, as if such taxpayer had been a corporation on and after January 1, 1918, with a capital stock having no par value.

If any asset of the trade or business in existence both during the taxable year and any pre-war year is included in the invested capital for the taxable year but is not included in the invested capital for such pre-war year, or is valued on a different basis in computing the invested capital for the taxable year and such prewar year, respectively, then under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary such readjustments shall be made as are necessary to place the computation of the invested capital for such prewar year on the basis employed in determining the invested capital for the taxable year.

Sec. 331. In the case of the reorganization, consolidation, or change of ownership of a trade or business, or change of ownership of property, after March 3, 1917, if an interest or control in such trade or business or property of 50 per centum or more remains in the same persons, or any of them, then no asset transferred or received from the previous owner shall, for the purpose of determining invested capital, be allowed a greater value than would have been allowed under this title in computing the invested capital of such previous owner if such asset had not been so transferred or received: Provided, That if such previous owner was not a corporation, then the value of any asset so transferred or received shall be taken at its cost of acquisition (at the date when acquired by such previous owner) with proper allowance for depreciation, impairment, betterment or development, but no addition to the original cost shall be made for any charge or expenditure deducted as expense or otherwise on or after March 1, 1913, in computing the net income of such previous owner for purposes of taxation.

PART VII.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Sec. 335. (a) That if a corporation (other than a personal service corporation) makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, the tax for the first taxable year under this title shall be the sum of: (1) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1917 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates specified in subdivision (A) of section 301 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period.

Any amount heretofore or hereafter paid on account of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917 shall be credited toward the payment of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by this title, and if the amount so paid exceeds the amount of the tax imposed by this title, the excess shall be credited or refunded to the corporation in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

(b) If a corporation makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1918 and ending in 1919, the tax for such fiscal year under this title shall be the sum of: (1) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under subdivision (a) of section 301 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under subdivision (b) or (c) of section 301 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1919 is of the entire period.

(c) If a partnership or a personal service corporation makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, it shall pay the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under Title II. of the Revenue Act of 1917 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1917 is of the entire period.

Any tax paid by a partnership or personal service corporation for any period beginning on or after January 1, 1918, shall be immediately refunded to the partnership or corporation as a tax erroneously or illegally collected.

Sec. 336. That every corporation, not exempt under section 304, shall make a return for the purposes of this title. Such returns shall be made, and the taxes imposed by this title shall be paid, at the same times and places, in the same manner, and subject to the same conditions, as is provided in the case of returns and payment of income tax by corporations for the purposes of Title II., and all the provisions of that title not inapplicable, including penalties, are hereby made applicable to the taxes imposed by this title.

Sec. 337. That in the case of a bona fide sale of mines, oil or gas wells, or any interest therein, where the principal value of the property has been demonstrated by prospecting or exploration and discovery work done by the taxpayer, the portion of the tax imposed by this title attributable to such sale shall not exceed 20 per centum of the selling price of such property or interest.

TITLE IV.—ESTATE TAX.

The term "executor" means the executor or administrator of the decedent, or, if there is no executor or administrator, any person who takes possession of any property of the decedent; and

The term "Collector" means the Collector of Internal Revenue of the district in which was the domicile of the decedent at the time of his death, or, if there was no such domicile in the United States, or, if such part of the district in which is situated the part of the gross esate of the decedent in the United States, or, if such par of the gross estate is situated in more than one district, then the Collector of Internal Revenue of such district as may be designated by the Commissioner.

Sec. 401. That (in lieu of the tax imposed by Title II. of the Revenue act of 1916, as amended, and in lieu of the tax imposed by Title IX. of the Revenue act of 1917) a tax equal to the sum of the following percentages of the value of the net estate (determined as provided in Section 403) is hereby imposed upon the transfer of the net estate of every decedent dying after the passage of this act, whether a resident or nonresident of the United States:

1 per centum of the amount of the net estate not in excess of $50,000;

2 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $50,000 and does not exceed $150,000;

3 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $150,000 and does not exceed $250,000;

4 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $250,000 and does not exceed $450,000;

6 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $450,000 and does not exceed $750,000;

8 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $750,000 and does not exceed $1,000,000;

10 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $1,000,000 and does not exceed $1,500,000;

12 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $1,500,000 and does not exceed $2,000,000;

14 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $2,000,000 and does not exceed $3,000,000;

16 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $3,000,000 and does not exceed $4,000,000;

18 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $4,000,000 and does not exceed $5,000,000;

22 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $8,000,000 and does not exceed $10,000,000; and

25 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $10,000,000.

The taxes imposed by this title or by Title II of the revenue act of 1916 (as amended by the act entitled "An act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the army and navy and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, or by Title IX of the revenue act of 1917, shall not apply to the transfer of the net estate of any decedent who has died or may die while serving in the military or naval forces of the United States in the present war or from injuries received or disease contracted while in such service, and any such tax collected upon such transfer shall be refunded to the executor.

Sec. 402. That the value of the gross estate of the decedent shall be determined by including the value at the time of his death of all property, real or personal, tangible or intangible, wherever situated—

(a) To the extent of the interest therein of the decedent at the time of his death which after his death is subject to the payment of the charges against his estate and the expenses of its administration and is subject to distribution as part of his estate;

(b) To the extent of any interest therein of the surviving spouse, existing at the time of the decedent's death as dower, courtesy, or by virtue of a statute creating an estate in lieu of dower or courtesy;

(c) To the extent of any interest therein of which the decedent has at any time made a transfer, or with respect to which he has at any time created a trust, in contemplation of or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after his death (whether such transfer or trust is made or created before or after the passage of this act,) except in case of a bona fide sale for a fair consideration in money or money's worth. Any transfer of a material part of his property in the nature of a final disposition or distribution thereof, made by the decedent within two years prior to his death without such a consideration, shall, unless shown to the contrary, be deemed to have been made in contemplation of death within the meaning of this title;

(d) To the extent of the interest therein held jointly or as tenants in the entirety by the decedent and any other person, or deposited in banks or other institutions in their joint names and payable to either or the survivor, except such part thereof as may be shown to have originally belonged to such other person and never to have belonged to the decedent;

(e) To the extent of any property passing under a general power of appointment exercised by the decedent (1) by will, or (2) by deed executed in contemplation of, or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after, his death, except in case of a bona fide sale for a fair consideration in money or money's worth; and

(f) To the extent of the amount receivable by the executor as insurance under policies taken out by the decedent upon his own life; and to the extent of the excess over $40,000 of the amount receivable by all other beneficiaries as insurance under policies taken out by the decedent upon his own life.

Sec. 403. That for the purpose of the tax the value of the net estate shall be determined—

(a) In the case of a resident, by deducting from the value of the gross estate—

(1) Such amounts for funeral expenses, administration expenses, claims against the estate, unpaid mortgages, losses incurred during the settlement of the estate arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft, when such losses are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, and such amounts reasonably required and actually expended for the support during the settlement of the estate of those dependent upon the decedent, as are allowed by the laws of the jurisdiction, whether within or without the United States, under which the estate is being administered, but not including any income taxes upon income received after the death of the decedent, or any estate, succession, legacy, or inheritance taxes;

(2) An amount equal to the value at the time of the decedent's death of any property, real, personal, or mixed, which can be identified as having been received by the decedent as a share in the estate of any person who died within five years prior to the death of the decedent, or which can be identified as having been acquired by the decedent in exchange for property so received, if an estate tax under the Revenue Act of 1917 or under this Act was collected from such estate, and if such property is included in the decedent's gross estate;

(3) The amount of all bequests, legacies, devises, or gifts, to or for the use of the United States, any State, Territory, any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes, or to or for the use of any corporation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, or to a trustee or trustees exclusively for such religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes. This deduction shall be made in case of the estates of all decedents who have died since December 31, 1917; and

(4) An exemption of $50,000;

(b) In the case of a nonresident, by deducting from the value of that part of his gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States—

(1) That proportion of the deductions specified in paragraph (1) of subdivision (A) of this section which the value of such part bears to the value of his entire gross estate, wherever situated, but in no case shall the amount so deducted exceed 10 per centum of the value of that part of his gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States;

(2) An amount equal to the value at the time of the decedent's death of any property, real, personal, or mixed, which can be identified as having been received by the decedent as a share in the estate of any person who died within five years prior to the death of the decedent, or which can be identified as having been acquired by the decedent in exchange for property so received, if an estate tax under the Revenue Act of 1917 or under this Act was collected from such estate, and if such property is included in that part of the decedent's gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States; and

(3) The amount of all bequests, legacies, devises, or gifts, to or for the use of the United States, any State, Territory, any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes, or to or for the use of any domestic corporation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, or to a Trustee or Trustees exclusively for such religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes within the United States. This deduction shall be made in case of the estates of all decedents who have died since Dec. 31, 1917; and

No deductions shall be allowed in the case of a nonresident unless the executor includes in the return required to be filed under section 404 the value at the time of his death of that part of the gross estate of the nonresident not situated in the United States.

For the purpose of this title stock in a domestic corporation owned and held by a nonresident decedent, and the amount receivable as insurance upon the life of a nonresident decedent where the insurer is a domestic corporation shall be deemed property within the United States, and any property of which the decedent has made a transfer or with respect to which he has created a trust, within the meaning of subdivision (c) of section 402, shall be deemed to be situated in the United States, if so situated either at the time of the transfer or the creation of the trust, or at the time of the decedent's death.

In the case of any estate in respect to which the tax under existing law has been paid, if necessary to allow the benefit of the deduction under paragraph (3) of subdivision (a) or (b) the tax shall be redetermined and any excess of tax paid shall be refunded to the executor.

Sec. 404. That the executor, within sixty days after qualifying as such, or after coming into possession of any property of the decedent, whichever event first occurs, shall give written notice thereof to the collector. The executor shall also, at such times and in such manner as may be required by regulations made pursuant to law, file with the collector a return under oath in duplicate, setting forth (a) the value of the gross estate of the decedent at the time of his death, or, in case of a nonresident, of that part of his gross estate situated in the United States; (b) the deductions allowed under section 403; (c) the value of the net estate of the decedent as defined in section 403; and (d) the tax paid or payable thereon; or such part of such information as may at the time be ascertainable and such supplemental data as may be necessary to establish the correct tax.

Return shall be made in all cases where the gross estate at the death of the decedent exceeds $50,000, and in the case of the estate of every nonresident any part of whose gross estate is situated in the United States. If the executor is unable to make a complete return as to any part of the gross estate of the decedent, he shall include in his return a description of such part and the name of every person holding a legal or beneficial interest therein, and upon notice from the collector such person shall in like manner make a return as to such part of the gross estate. The Commissioner shall make all assessments of the tax under the authority of existing administrative special and general provisions of law relating to the assessment and collection of taxes.

Sec. 405. That if no administration is granted upon the estate of a decedent, or if no return is filed as provided in Section 404, or if a return contains a false or incorrect statement of a material fact, the Collector or Deputy Collector shall make a return and the Commissioner shall assess the tax thereon.

Sec. 406. That the tax shall be due one year after the decedent's death; but in any case where the Commissioner finds that payment of the tax within one year after the decedent's death would impose undue hardship upon the estate, he may grant an extension of time for the payment of the tax for a period not to exceed three years from the due date. If the tax is not paid within one year and 180 days after the decedent's death, interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum from the expiration of one year after the decedent's death shall be added as part of the tax.

Sec. 407. That the executor shall pay the tax to the Collector or Deputy Collector. If the amount of the tax cannot be determined, the payment of a sum of money sufficient, in the opinion of the Collector, to discharge the tax shall be deemed payment in full of the tax, except as in this section otherwise provided. If the amount so paid exceeds the amount of the tax as finally determined, the Commissioner shall refund such excess to the executor. If the amount of the tax as finally determined exceeds the amount so paid, the Collector shall notify the executor of the amount of such excess and demand payment thereof. If such excess part of the tax is not paid within thirty days after such notification, interest shall be added thereto at the rate of 10 per centum per annum from the expiration of such thirty days' period until paid, and the amount of such excess shall be a lien upon the entire gross estate, except such part thereof as may have been sold to a bona fide purchaser for a fair consideration in money or money's worth.

The Collector shall grant to the person paying the tax duplicate receipts, either of which shall be sufficient evidence of such payment, and shall entitle the executor to be credited and allowed the amount thereof by any court having jurisdiction to audit or settle his accounts.

Sec. 408. That if the tax herein imposed is not paid within 180 days after it is due, the Collector shall, unless there is reasonable cause for further delay, proceed to collect the tax under the provisions of geenral law, or commence appropriate proceedings in any court of the United States, in the name of the United States, to subject the property of the decedent to be sold under the judgment or decree of the court. From the proceeds of such sale the amount of the tax, together with the costs and expenses of every description to be allowed by the court, shall be first paid, and the balance shall be deposited according to the order of the court, to be paid under its direction to the person entitled thereto.

If the tax or any part thereof is paid by, or collected out of that part of the estate passing to or in the possession of, any person other than the executor in his capacity as such, such person shall be entitled to reimbursement out of any part of the estate still undistributed or by a just and equitable contribution by the persons whose interest in the estate of the decedent would have been reduced if the tax had been paid before the distribution of the estate or whose interest is subject to equal or prior liability for the payment of taxes, debts, or other charges against the estate, it being the purpose and intent of this title that so far as is practicable and unless otherwise directed by the will of the decedent the tax shall be paid out of the estate before its distribution. If any part of the gross estate consists of proceeds of policies of insurance upon the life of the decedent receivable by a beneficiary other than the executor, the executor shall be entitled to recover from such beneficiary such portion of the total tax paid as the proceeds, in excess of $40,000, of such policies bear to the net estate. If there is more than one such beneficiary the executor shall be entitled to recover from such beneficiaries in the same ratio.

Sec. 409. That unless the tax is sooner paid in full, it shall be a lien for ten years upon the gross estate of the decedent, except that such part of the gross estate as is used for the payment of charges against the estate and expenses of its administration, allowed by any court having jurisdiction thereof, shall be divested of such lien. If the Commissioner is satisfied that the tax liability of an estate has been fully discharged or provided for, he may, under regulations prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary, issue his certificate releasing any or all property of such estate from the lien herein imposed.

If (a) the decedent makes a transfer of, or creates a trust with respect to, any property in contemplation of or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after his death (except in the case of a bona fide sale for a fair consideration in money or money's worth) or (b) if insurance passes under a contract executed by the decedent in favor of a specific beneficiary, and if in either case the tax in respect thereto is not paid when due, then the transferee, trustee, or beneficiary shall be personally liable for such tax, and such property, to the extent of the decedent's interest therein at the time of such transfer, or to the extent of such beneficiary's interest under such contract of insurance, shall be subject to a like lien equal to the amount of such tax. Any part of such property sold by such transferee or trustee to a bona fide purchaser for a fair consideration in money or money's worth shall be divested of the lien and a like lien shall then attach to all the property of such transferee or trustee, except any part sold to a bona fide purchaser for a fair consideration in money or money's worth.

Sec. 410. That whoever knowingly makes any false statement in any notice or return required to be filed under this title shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Whoever fails to comply with any duty imposed upon him by Section 404, or, having in his possession or control any record, file, or paper, containing or supposed to contain any information concerning the estate of the decedent, or, having in his possession or control any property comprised in the gross estate of the decedent, fails to exhibit the same upon request of the Commissioner or any collector or law officer of the United States, or his duly authorized deputy or agent, who desires to examine the same in the performance of his duties under this title, shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding $500, to be recovered, with costs of suit, in a civil action in the name of the United States.

TITLE V.—TAX ON TRANSPORTATION AND OTHER FACILITIES, AND ON INSURANCE.

Sec. 500. That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 500 of the Revenue Act of 1917—

(a) A tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date, by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power when in competition with carriers by rail or water, of property by freight transported from one point in the United States to another; and a like tax on the amount paid for such transportation within the United States of property transported from a point without the United States to a point within the United States;

(b) A tax of 1 cent for each 20 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid to any person for the transportation on or after such date, by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power when in competition with express by rail or water, of any package, parcel, or shipment, by express, transported from one point in the United States to another; and a like tax on the amount paid for such transportation within the United States of property transported from a point without the United States to a point within the United States;

(c) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date of persons by rail or water, or by any form of mechanical motor power on a regular established line when in competition with carriers by rail or water, from one point in the United States to another or to any point in Canada or Mexico, where the ticket or order therefor is sold or issued in the United States, not including the amount paid for commutation or season tickets for trips less than thirty miles, or for transportation the fare for which does not exceed 42 cents: Provided, that where such water transportation lines are in competition between American ports with foreign water transportation lines from adjacent foreign ports, the tax imposed under this subdivision of amounts paid for water transportation between American ports shall not exceed the amount of the transportation tax to which such foreign water transportation lines are subjected by their government corresponding to this tax;

(d) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for seats, berths, and staterooms in parlor cars, sleeping cars, or on vessels, used on or after such date in connection with transportation upon which tax is imposed by subdivision (c);

(e) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date of oil by pipe line;

(f) In the case of each telegraph, telephone, cable, or radio, dispatch, message, or conversation, which originates on or after such date within the United States, and for the transmission of which the charge is more than 14 cents and not more than 50 cents, a tax of 5 cents; and if the charge is more than 50 cents, a tax of 10 cents: Provided, That only one payment of such tax shall be required, notwithstanding the lines or stations of one or more persons are used for the transmission of such dispatch, message, or conversation; and

(g) A tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the amount paid after such date to any telegraph or telephone company for any leased wire or talking circuit special service furnished after such date. This subdivision shall not apply to the amount paid for so much of such service as is utilized (1) in the collection and dissemination of news through the public press, or (2) in the conduct, by a common carrier or telegraph or telephone company, of its business as such.

(h) No tax shall be imposed under this section upon any payment received for services rendered to the United States or to any State or Territory or the District of Columbia. The right to exemption under this subdivision shall be evidenced in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

Sec. 501. (a) That the taxes imposed by section 500 shall be paid by the person paying for the services or facilities rendered.

(b) If a mileage book used for transportation or accommodation was purchased before November 1, 1917, or if cash fare is paid, the tax imposed by section 500 shall be collected from the person presenting the mileage book, or paying the cash fare, by the conductor or other agent, when presented for such transportation or accommodation, and the amount so collected shall be paid to the United States in such manner and at such times as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe; if a ticket (other than a mileage book) was bought and partially used before November 1, 1917, it shall not be taxed, but if bought but not so used before section 500 takes effect, it shall not be valid for passage until the tax has been paid and such payment evidenced on the ticket in such manner as the Commissioner, with tne approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

(c) The taxes imposed by section 500 shall apply to all services or facilities specified in such section when rendered for hire, whether or not the agency rendering them is a common carrier. In case a carrier (other than a pipe line) principally engaged in rendering transportation services or facilities for hire does not, because of its ownership of the goods transported, or for any other reason, receive the amount which as a carrier it would otherwise charge, such carrier shall pay a tax equivalent to the tax which would be imposed upon the transportation of such goods if the carrier received payment for such transportation, such tax, if it cannot be computed from actual rates or tariffs of the carrier, to be computed on the basis of the rates or tariffs of other carriers for like services as determined by the Commissioner. In the case of any carrier (other than a pipe line) the principal business of which is to transport goods belonging to it on its own account and which only incidentally renders services for hire, the tax shall apply to such services or facilities only as are actually rendered by it for hire. Nothing in this or the preceding section shall be construed as imposing a tax (1) upon the transportation of any commodity which is necessary for the use of the carrier in the conduct of its business as such and is intended to be so used or has been so used; or (2) upon the transportation of company material transported by one carrier, which constitutes a part of a railroad system, for another carrier which is also a part of the same system:

(d) The tax imposed by subdivision (e) of section 500 shall apply to all transportation of oil by pipe line. In case no charge for transportation is made, by reason of ownership of the commodity transported, or for any other reason, the person transporting by pipe line shall pay a tax equivalent to the tax which would be imposed if such person received payment for such transportation, and if the tax can not be computed from actual bona fide rates or tariffs, it shall be computed (1) on the basis of the rates or tariffs of other pipe lines for like services, as determined by the Commissioner, or (2) if no such rates or tariffs exist, on the basis of a reasonable charge for such transportation, as determined by the Commissioner.

Sec. 502. That each person receiving any payments referred to in section 500 shall collect the amount of the tax, if any, imposed by such section from the person making such payments, and shall make monthly returns under oath, in duplicate, and pay the taxes so collected and the taxes imposed upon it under subdivision (c) or (d) of section 501 to the collector of the district in which the principal office or place of business is located.

No carrier collecting the taxes imposed by subdivision (a) or (b) of Section 500 shall be required to list the amount of such tax separately in any bill of lading, freight or express receipt, or other similar document, if the total amount of the transportation charge and the tax is stated therein.

Any person making a refund of any payment upon which tax is collected under this section may repay therewith the amount of the tax collected on such payment; and the amount so repaid may be credited against amounts included in any subsequent monthly return.

The returns required under this section shall contain such information, and be made at such times and in such manner, as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due.

Sec. 503. That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 504 of the Revenue Act of 1917, the following taxes on the issuance of insurance policies, including, in the case of policies issued outside the United States (except those taxable under subdivision 15 of Schedule A of Title XI), their delivery within the United States by any agent or broker, whether acting for the insurer or the insured; such taxes to be paid by the insurer, or by such agent or broker:

(a) Life insurance: A tax equivalent to 8 cents on each $100 or fractional part thereof of the amount for which any life is insured under any policy of insurance, or other instrument, by whatever name the same is called: Provided, That on all policies for life insurance only by which a life is insured not in excess of $500, issued on the industrial or weekly or monthly payment plan of insurance, the tax shall be 40 per centum of the amount of the first weekly premium or 20 per centum of the amount of the first monthly premium, as the case may be; Provided further, That on policies of group life insurance, covering groups of not less than 25 lives in the employ of the same person, for the benefit of persons other than the employer, the tax shall be equivalent to 4 cents on each $100 of the aggregate amount for which the group policy is issued and of any net increase in the amount of the insurance under such policy: And provided further, That on all policies covering life, health, and accident insurance combined in one policy by which a life is insured not in excess of $500, issued on the industrial, or weekly or monthly payment plan of insurance, the tax shall be 40 per centum of the amount of the first weekly premium or 20 per centum of the amount of the first monthly premium, as the case may be;

(b) Marine, inland, and fire insurance: A tax equivalent to 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged under each policy of insurance or other instrument by whatever name the same is called whereby insurance is made or renewed upon property of any description (including rents or profits), whether against peril by sea or inland waters, or by fire or lightning, or other peril;

(c) Casualty insurance: A tax equivalent to 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged under each policy of insurance or obligation of the nature of indemnity for loss, damage, or liability (except bonds and policies taxable under subdivision 2 of schedule A of Title XI) issued or executed or renewed by any person transacting the business of employer's liability, workmen's compensation, accident, health, tornado, plate glass, steam boiler, elevator, burglary, automatic sprinkler, automobile, or other branch of insurance (except life insurance, and insurance described and taxed in the preceding subdivision): Provided, That in case of policies of insurance issued on the industrial or weekly or monthly payment plan the tax shall be 40 per centum of the amount of the first weekly premium or 20 per centum of the amount of the first monthly premium, as the case may be;

(d) Policies issued by any corporation enumerated in section 231, and policies of reinsurance, shall be exempt from the taxes imposed by this section.

Sec 504. That every person issuing policies of insurance upon the issuance of which a tax is imposed by section 503 shall make monthly returns under oath, in duplicate, and pay such tax to the collector of the district in which the principal office or place of business of such persons is located. Such returns shall contain such information and be made at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due.

TITLE VI.—TAX ON BEVERAGES.

Sec. 600. (a) That there shall be levied and collected on all distilled spirits now in bond or that have been or that may be hereafter produced in or imported into the United States, except such distilled spirits as are subject to the tax provided in section 604, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, a tax of $2.20 (or, if withdrawn for beverage purposes or for use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage, a tax of $6.40) on each proof gallon, or wine gallon when below proof, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof or wine gallon, to be paid by the distiller or importer when withdrawn, and collected under the provisions of existing law.

(b) That the tax imposed by subdivision (a) on distilled spirits intended for beverage purposes shall not be due or payable on such spirits while stored in any distillery, bonded warehouse, or special or general bonded warehouse, and which, pursuant to any Act of Congress or proclamation of the President of the United States, can not be lawfully sold or removed from any such warehouse during the period of prohibition fixed by such Act or proclamation; and all warehousing bonds or transportation and warehousing bonds conditioned for the payment of tax on any such spirits so stored on the date such prohibition takes effect shall as to all such spirits actually so stored be canceled and discharged, provided the distiller of such spirits shall in lieu of such bonds and prior to their cancellation execute a bond in a penal sum of not less than $10,000, with sureties satisfactory to the collector of the district, conditioned that the principal shall, during the period of such prohibition, safely keep or cause to be kept in good condition all such spirits and the warehouse in which the same are stored, and shall not remove or suffer to be removed from warehouse, contrary to law, any such spirits during the period of such prohibition; and the bond herein prescribed shall be in such further sum and shall contain such further conditions as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations require. The distiller may, subject to the provisions of this section, be permitted to retain in any such bonded warehouse distilled spirits on which, under the terms of any existing bond, the tax imposed thereon becomes due and payable prior to the date such prohibition takes effect: Provided, That on the removal of such prohibition the distiller shall, as to all spirits as to which the bonded period fixed by law has not expired and which remain stored in warehouse, execute new and satisfactory bond in the form required by existing law, conditioned for the payment of the tax on all such spirits; and all provisions of existing law relating to such bonded warehouses, or the storage of spirits therein, or to the execution of new or additional bonds, so far as applicable, shall continue in force as to all distilled spirits rebonded under the provisions of this section.

Upon the withdrawal of distilled spirits from bonded warehouse, after the period of prohibition has ended, and under the conditions imposed by Section 50 of an act entitled "An act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the support of the Government, and for other purposes," approved Aug. 28, 1894, an allowance for loss by leakage or other unavoidable cause, not exceeding one proof gallon as to packages of a capacity of not less than forty wine gallons, may be made in addition to that provided in said section 50, as amended; and a like additional allowance of one proof gallon as to each package withdrawn may be made for each period of four months, or fraction thereof, for such spirits as shall have remained in warehouse during the period of prohibition and after the expiration of the maximum leakage period fixed by that section.

Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, any imported distilled spirits, wines or other liquors which may be in any customs bonded warehouse under the customs laws on the date such prohibition takes effect shall be permitted to remain therein without payment of any taxes or duties thereon, beyond the three-year period provided in Section 2971 of the Revised Statutes, during such period of prohibition; and may be exported at any time during such extended period. Any imported spirits, wines or other liquors as to which the three-year bonded period may expire after the passage of this act and prior to the date such prohibition takes effect may at the option of the owner remain in bond during such period of prohibition.

(c) In lieu of the internal-revenue tax now imposed thereon by law there shall be levied and collected upon all perfumes hereafter imported into the United States containing distilled spirits, a tax of $1.10 per wine gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such wine gallon. Such tax shall be collected by the collector of customs and deposited as internal-revenue collections, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe.

Sec. 601. That no distilled spirits produced after Oct. 3, 1917, shall be imported into the United States from any foreign country, or from the Virgin Islands (unless produced from products the growth of such islands, and not then into any State or Territory or District of the United States in which the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor is prohibited,) or from Porto Rico, or the Philippine Islands. Under such rules, regulations, and bonds as the Secretary may prescribe, the provisions of this section shall not apply to distilled spirits imported for other than (1) beverage purposes or (2) use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage.

Sec. 602. That at registered distilleries producing alcohol, or other high-proof spirits, packages may be filled with such spirits reduced to not less than one hundred proof from the receiving cisterns and tax paid without being entered into bonded warehouse. Such spirits may be also transferred from the receiving cisterns at such distilleries, by means of pipe lines, direct to storage tanks in the bonded warehouse and may be warehoused in such storage tanks. Such spirits may be also transferred in tanks or tank cars to general bonded warehouses for storage therein, either in storage tanks in such warehouses or in the tanks in which they were transferred. Such spirits may also be transferred from receiving cisterns or warehouse storage tanks to barrels, drums, tanks, tank cars, or other approved containers, and may be transported in such containers for exportation of other lawful purposes. The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby empowered to prescribe all necessary regulations relating to the drawing off, transferring, gauging, storing, and transporting of such spirits; the records to be kept and returns to be made; the size and kind of packages and tanks to be used; the marking, branding, numbering, and stamping of such packages and tanks; the kinds of stamps, if any, to be used; and the time and manner of paying the tax; the kind of bond and the penal sum of same. The tax prescribed by law must be paid before such spirits are removed from the distillery premises, or from general bonded warehouse in the case of spirits transferred thereto, except as otherwise provided by law.

Under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, distilled spirits may hereafter be drawn from receiving cisterns and deposited in distillery warehouses without having affixed to the packages containing the same, distillery warehouse stamps, and such packages, when so deposited in warehouse, may be withdrawn therefrom on the original gauge where the same have remained in such warehouse for a period not exceeding thirty days from the date of deposit.

Under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, the manufacture, warehousing, withdrawal, and shipment, under the provisions of existing law, of ethyl alcohol for other than (1) beverage purposes or (2) use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage, and denatured alcohol, may be exempted from the provisions of section 3283 of the Revised Statutes.

The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations exempt distillers of ethyl alcohol, for use in the production of munitions of war, or for other nonbeverage purposes, from so much of the provisions of sections 3264, 3285, or 3309 of the Revised Statutes, and Acts amendatory thereof, respecting the survey of distilleries, the period of fermentation, the filling and emptying of fermenting tubs, and assessments, as, in his judgment, may be expedient: Provided, That the bond prescribed in Section 3260 of the Revised Statutes shall, in the cases herein provided, be in such sum and contain such further conditions as the Commissioner may require.

Sec. 603. That under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, ethyl alcohol of not less than 180 degrees proof, produced at any central distilling and denaturing plant established under the provisions of Subsection 2, Paragraph N, of Section IV. of the Act entitled "An act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1913, may be removed from such plant to any central denaturing bonded warehouse for denaturation, or may, before or after denaturation, be removed from such plant or from such denaturing bonded warehouse, free of tax, for use of the United States or for shipment to any nation while engaged against the German Government in the present war, and the removal herein authorized may be made in such tank vessels, tank cars, drums, casks, or other containers as may be approved by the Commissioner. It shall be lawful, under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, for an allowance to be made for leakage or loss by unavoidable accident and without fault or negligence of the distiller, owner, carrier, or his agents or employes, which may occur during the transportation of such spirits or while the same are lawfully stored on either of the premises herein described.

Sec. 604. That upon all distilled spirits produced in or imported into the United States upon which the internal revenue tax now imposed by law has been paid, and which, on the day after the passage of this act, are held by any person and intended for sale or for use in the manufacture or production of any article intended for sale, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax of $3.20 (if intended for sale for beverage purposes or for use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage) on each proof gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof gallon.

Sec. 605. That in addition to the tax imposed by this Act on distilled spirits and wines, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the tax imposed by section 304 of the Revenue Act of 1917, a tax of 30 cents on each proof gallon and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof gallon on all distilled spirits or wines hereafter rectified, purified or refined in such manner, and on all mixtures hereafter produced in such manner, that the person so rectifying, purifying, refining, or mixing the same is a rectifier within the meaning of section 3244 of the Revised Statutes, as amended: Provided, That this tax shall not apply to gin produced by the redistillation of a pure suirit over juniper berries and other aromatics.

Upon all such articles heretofore produced, and which on the day after the passage of this Act are held by any person and intended for sale, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax of 15 cents on each proof gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of each proof gallon; and all such distilled spirits so held and not contained in the distillers' original stamped packages, or in bottles or other containers bearing the distillers' original labels, shall for the purpose of this section be regarded as rectified spirits.

When the process of rectification is completed and the taxes prescribed by this section have been paid, it shall be unlawful for the rectifier or other dealer to reduce in proof or increase in volume such spirits or wine by the addition of water or other substance; nothing herein contained shall, however, prevent a rectifier from using again in the process of rectification spirits already rectified and upon which the taxes have theretofore been paid.

The taxes imposed by this section shall not attach to cordials or liqueurs on which a tax is imposed and paid under section 611 or 613, nor to the mixing and blending of wines, where such blending is for the sole purpose of perfecting such wines according to commercial standards, nor to blends made exclusively of two or more pure straight whiskies aged in wood for a period not less than four years and without the addition of coloring or flavoring matter or any other substance than pure water and if not reduced below ninety proof: Provided, That such blended whiskies shall be exempt from tax under this section only when compounded under the immediate supervision of a revenue officer, in such tanks and under such conditions and supervision as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe.

All distilled spirits or wines taxable under this section shall be subject to uniform regulations concerning the use thereof in the manufacture, blending, compounding, mixing, marking, branding, and sale of whisky and rectified spirits, and no discrimination whatsoever shall be made by reason of a difference in the character of the material from which same may have been produced.

The business of a rectifier of spirts shall be carried on, and the tax on rectified spirts shall be paid, under such rules, regeulations, and bonds as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary.

Whoever violates any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, and shall, in addition, be liable to double the tax evaded, together with the tax to be collected by assessment or on any bond given.

Sec. 606. That hereafter collectors shall not furnish wholesale liquor dealers' stamps in lieu of and in exchange for stamps for rectified spirits unless the package covered by stamp for rectified spirits is to be broken into smaller packages.

The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is authorized to discontinue the use of the following stamps whenever in his judgment the interests of the Government will be subserved thereby:

Sec. 607. That the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby authorized to require at distilleries, breweries, rectifying houses, and wherever else in his judgment such action may be deemed advisable, the installation of meters, tanks, pipes, or any other apparatus for the purpose of protecting the revenue, and such meters, tanks, and pipes and all necessary labor incident thereto shall be at the expense of the person on whose premises the installation is required. Any such person refusing or neglecting to install such apparatus when so required by the Commissioner shall not be permitted to conduct business on such premises.

Sec. 608. That there shall be levied and collected on all beer, lager beer, ale, porter, and other similar fermented liquor, containing one-half of one per centum, or more, of alcohol, brewed or manufactured and hereafter sold, or removed for consumption or sale, within the United States, by whatever name such liquors may be called, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, a tax of $6.00 for every barrel containing not more than thirty-one gallons, and at a like rate for any other quantity or for the fractional parts of a barrel authorized and defined by law, to be collected under the provisions of existing law.

Sec. 609. That from and after the passage of this Act taxable fermented liquors may be conveyed without payment of tax from the brewery premises where produced to a contiguous industrial distillery of either class established under the Act entitled "An Act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1913, to be used as distilling material, and the residue from such distillation, containing less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, which is to be used in making beverages, may be manipulated by cooling, flavoring, carbonating, settling, and filtering on the distillery premises or elsewhere.

The removal of the taxable fermented liquor from the brewery to the distillery and the operation of the distillery and removal of the residue therefrom shall be under the supervision of such officer or officers as the Commissioner shall deem proper, and the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby authorized to make such regulations from time to time as may be necessary to give force and effect to this section and to safeguard the revenue.

Sec. 610. That natural wine within the meaning of this Act shall be deemed to be the product made from the normal alcoholic fermentation of the juice of sound, ripe grapes, without addition or abstraction, except such as may occur in the usual cellar treatment of clarifying and aging: Provided, however, That the product made from the juice of sound, ripe grapes by complete fermentation of the must under proper cellar treatment and corrected by the addition (under the supervision of a gauger or storekeeper-gauger in the capacity of gauger) of a solution of water and pure cane, beet, or dextrose sugar (containing respectively, not less than 95 per centum of actual sugar, calculated on a dry basis) to the must or to the wine, to correct natural deficiencies, when such addition shall not increase the volume of the resultant product more than 35 per centum, and the resultant product does not contain less than five parts per thousand of acid before fermentation and not more than 13 per centum of alcohol after complete fermentation, shall be deemed to be wine within the meaning of this Act and may be labeled, transported, and sold as "wine," qualified by the name of the locality where produced, and may be further qualified by the name of its own particular type or variety: And provided further, That wine as defined in this section may be sweetened with cane sugar or beet sugar or pure condensed grape must and fortified under the provisions of this Act, and wines so sweetened or fortified shall be considered sweet wine within the meaning of this Act.

Sec. 611. That upon all still wines, including vermuth, and all artificial or imitation wines or compounds sold as still wine, which are hereafter produced in or imported into the United States, or which on the day after the passage of this Act are on any winery premises or other bonded premises or in transit thereto or at any customhouse, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, taxes at rates as follows, when sold, or removed for consumption or sale:

On wines containing not more than 14 per centum of absolute alcohol, 16 cents per wine gallon, the per centum of alcohol taxable under this section to be reckoned by volume and not by weight;

On wines containing more than 14 per centum and not exceeding 21 per centum of absolute alcohol, 40 cents per wine gallon;

On wines containing more than 21 per centum and not exceeding 24 per centum of absolute alcohol, $1 per wine gallon;

All such wines containing more than 24 per centum of absolute alcohol by voume shall be classed as distilled spirits and shall pay tax accordingly.

Sec. 612. That under such regulations and official supervision and upon the giving of such notices, entries, bonds, and other security as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, any producer of wines defined under the provisions of this title, may withdraw from any fruit distillery or special bonded warehouse grape brandy, or wine spirits, for the fortification of such wines on the premises where actually made: Provided, That there shall be levied and assessed against the producer of such wines a tax (in lieu of the internal-revenue tax now imposed thereon by law) of 60 cents per proof gallon of grape brandy or wine spirits whenever withdrawn and hereafter so used by him in the fortification of such wines during the preceding month, which assessment shall be paid by him within ten months from the date of notice thereof: Provided further, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed as exempting any wines, cordials, liqueurs, or similar compounds from the payment of any tax provided for in this title.

Sec. 613. That upon the following articles which are hereafter produced in or imported into the United States, or which on the day after the passage of this Act are on any winery premises or other bonded premises or in transit thereto or at any customhouse, there shall be levied, collected, and paid taxes at rates as follows when sold, or removed for consumption or sale:

On each bottle or other container of champagne or sparkling wine, 12 cents on each one-half pint or fraction thereof;

On each bottle or other container of artificially carbonated wine, 6 cents on each one-half pint or fraction thereof;

On each bottle or other container of liqueurs, cordials, or similar compounds, by whatever name sold or offered for sale, containing sweet wine fortified with grape brandy, 6 cents on each one-half pint or fraction thereof.

The tax imposed by this section shall, in the case of any article upon which a corresponding internal-revenue tax is now imposed by law be in lieu of such tax.

Sec. 614. That upon all articles specified in section 611 or 613 upon which the internal-revenue tax now imposed by law has been paid and which are on the day after the passage of this Act held by any person and intended for sale, there shall be levied, collected, and paid a floor tax equal to the difference between the tax imposed by this Act and the tax so paid.

Sec. 615. That upon all sweet wines held for sale by the producer thereof upon the day after the passage of this Act there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax equivalent to 30 cents per proof gallon upon the grape brandy or wine spirits used in the fortification of such wine.

Sec. 616. That the taxes imposed by section 611 or 613 shall be paid by stamp on removal of the wines from the customhouse, winery, or other bonded place of storage for consumption or sale, and every person hereafter producing, or having in his possession or under his control when this title takes effect, any wines subject to the tax imposed in section 611 or 613 shall file such notice, describing the premises on which such wines are produced or stored; shall execute a bond in such form; shall make such inventories under oath; and shall, prior to sale or removal for consumption, affix to each cask or vessel containing such wine such marks, labels, or stamps as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may from time to time prescribe, and the premises described in such notice shall, for the purpose of this Act, be regarded as bonded premises. But the provisions of this section, except as to payment of tax and the affixing of the required stamps or labels, shall not apply to wines held by retail dealers, as defined in section 3244 of the Revised Statutes, nor, subject to regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall the tax imposed by section 611 apply to wines produced for the family use of the duly registered producer thereof and not sold or otherwise removed from the place of manufacture and not exceeding in any case two hundred gallons per year.

Sec. 617. That sections 42, 43, and 45 of the Act entitled "An Act to reduce the revenue and equalize duties on imports, and for other purposes," approved October 1, 1890, as amended by section 68 of the Act entitled "An Act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved August 27, 1894, are further amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 42. That any producer of pure sweet wines may use in the preparation of such sweet wines, under such regulations and after the filing of such notices and bonds, together with the keeping of such records and the rendition of such reports as to materials and products as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe, wine spirits produced by any duly authorized distiller, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in determining the liability of any distiller of wine spirits to assessment under section 3309 of the Revised Statutes, is authorized to allow such distiller credit in his computations for the wine spirits withdrawn to be used in fortifying sweet wines under this Act.

"Sec. 43. That the wine spirits mentioned in section 42 is the product resulting from the distillation of fermented grape juice to which water may have been added prior to, during, or after fermentation, for the sole purpose of facilitating the fermentation and economical distillation thereof, and shall be held to include the product from grapes or their residues commonly known as grape brandy, and shall include commercial grape brandy which may have been colored with burnt sugar or caramel; and the pure sweet wine which may be fortified with wine spirits under the provisions of this Act is fermented or partially fermented grape juice only, with the usual cellar treatment, and shall contain no other substance whatever introduced before, at the time of, or after fermentation, except as herein expressly provided: Provided, That the addition of pure boiled or condensed grape must or pure crystalized cane or beet sugar, or pure dextrose sugar containing, respectively, not less than 95 per centum of actual sugar, calculated on a dry basis, or water, or any or all of them, to the pure grape juice before fermentation, or to the fermented product of such grape juice, or to both, prior to the fortification herein provided for, either for the purpose of perfecting sweet wines according to commercial standards or for mechanical purposes, shall not be excluded by the definition of pure sweet wine aforesaid: Provided, however, That the cane or beet sugar, or pure dextrose sugar added for sweetening purposes shall not be in excess of 11 per centum of the weight of the wine to be fortified: And provided further, That the addition of water herein authorized shall be under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may from time to time prescribe: Provided, however, That records kept in accordance with such regulations as to the percentage of saccharine, acid, alcoholic, and added water content of the wine offered for fortification shall be open to inspection by any official of the Department of Agriculture thereto duly authorized by the Secretary of Agriculture; but in no case shall such wines to which water has been added be eligible for fortification under the provisions of this act, where the same, after fermentation and before fortification, have an alcoholic strength of less than 5 per centum of their volume.

"Sec. 45. That under such regulations and official supervision, and upon the execution of such entries and the giving of such bonds, bills of lading, and other security as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe, any producer of pure sweet wines as defined by this Act may withdraw wine spirits from any special bonded warehouse in original packages or from any registered distillery in any quantity not less than eighty wine gallons, and may use so much of the same as may be required by him under such regulations, and after the filing of such notices and bonds and the keeping of such records and the rendition of such reports as to materials and products and the disposition of the same as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe, in fortifying the pure sweet wines made by him, and for no other purpose, in accordance with the foregoing limitations and provisions; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized whenever he shall deem it to be necessary for the prevention of violations of this law to prescribe that wine spirits withdrawn under this section shall not be used to fortify wines except at a certain distance prescribed by him from any distillery, rectifying house, winery, or other establishment used for producing or storing distilled spirits, or for making or storing wines other than wines which are so fortified, and that in the building in which such fortification of wines is practiced no wines or spirits other than those permitted by this regulation shall be stored in any room or part of the building in which fortification of wines is practiced. The use of wine spirits for the fortification of sweet wines under this Act shall be under the immediate supervision of an officer of internal revenue, who shall make returns describing the kinds and quantities of wine so fortified, and shall affix such stamps and seals to the packages containing such wines as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall provide by regulations the time within which wines so fortified with the wine spirits so withdrawn may be subject to inspection, and for final accounting for the use of such wine spirits and for rewarehousing or for payment of the tax on any portion of such wine spirits which remain not used in fortifying pure sweet wines."

Sec. 618. (a) That under such regulations and upon the execution of such notices, entries, bonds, and other security as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, domestic wines subject to the tax imposed by Section 611 may be removed from the winery where produced, free of tax, for storage on other bonded premises or from such premises to other bonded premises (but not more than one such additional removal shall be allowed), or for exportation from the United States or for use as distilling material at any regularly registered distillery: Provided, however, that the distiller using any such wine as material shall, subject to the provisions of Section 3,309 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, be held to pay the tax on the product of such wines as will include both the alcoholic strength therein produced by fermentation and that obtained from the brandy or wine spirits added to such wines at the time of fortification.

(b) Under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, it shall be lawful to produce grape wines on bonded winery premises by the usual method, and to transport and use the same, and like wines heretofore produced and now stored on bonded winery premises, as distilling material for the production of nonbeverage spirits in the production of nonalcoholic wines, containing less than one-half of one per centum of alcohol by volume, in any fruit brandy or industrial distillery: Provided, That all alcoholic spirits so obtained at any industrial distillery shall be denatured, and all spirits so obtained at any fruit distillery shall be removed and used only for nonbeverage purposes or for denaturation.

Sec. 619. That the collection of the tax on imported still wines, including vermouth, and sparkling wines, including champagne, and on imported liqueurs, cordials, and similar compounds, may be made within the discretion of the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, by assessment instead of by stamps.

Sec. 620. That whoever evades or attempts to evade any tax imposed by Sections 611 to 615, both inclusive, or any requirement of Sections 610 to 621, both inclusive, or regulations issued pursuant thereto, or whoever, otherwise than as provided in such sections, recovers or attempts to recover any spirits from domestic or imported wine, or whoever rectifies, mixes, or compounds with distilled spirits any domestic wines, other than in the manufacture of liqueurs, cordials, or similar compounds, shall on conviction, be punished for each such offense by a fine of not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, and in addition thereto by a penalty of double the tax evaded, or attempted to be evaded, to be assessed and collected in the same manner as taxes are assessed and collected, and all wines, spirits, liqueurs, cordials, or similar compounds as to which such violation occurs shall be forfeited to the United States. But the provisions of this section and the provisions of Section 3,244 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, relating to rectification, or other internal revenue laws of the United States, shall not be held to apply to or prohibit the mixing or blending of wines subject to tax under the provisions of Sections 611 to 615, both inclusive, with each other or with other wines for the sole purpose of perfecting such wines according to commercial standards: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as prohibiting the use of tax-paid grain or other ethyl alcohol in the fortification of sweet wines as defined in Section 610 of this act and Section 43 of the act entitled "An act to reduce the revenue and equalize duties on imports, and for other purposes," approved Oct. 1, 1890, as amended by this act.

Sec. 621. That the Commissioner, by regulations to be approved by the Secretary, may require the use at each fruit distillery of such spirit meters, and such locks and seals to be affixed to fermenters, tanks, or other vessels, and to such pipe connections as may in his judgment be necessary or expedient, and is hereby authorized to assign to any such distillery and to each winery where wines are to be fortified such number of gaugers or storekeeper-gaugers in the capacity of gaugers as may be necessary for the proper supervision of the manufacture of brandy or the making or fortifying of wines subject to tax imposed by this section; and the compensation of such officers shall not exceed $5 per diem while so assigned, together with their actual and necessary traveling expenses, and also a reasonable allowance for their board bills, to be fixed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, but not to exceed $2.50 per diem for such board bills.

Sec. 622. That the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby authorized to make such allowances for unavoidable loss of wines while on storage or during cellar treatment as in his judgment may be just and proper.

Sec. 623. That the second paragraph of Section 3,264 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by Section 5 of the act of March 1, 1879, and as further amended by the act of June 22, 1910, be amended so as to read as follows:

"In all surveys forty-five gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and seven gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from molasses shall represent not less than one gallon of molasses, except in distilleries operated on the sour-mash principle, in which distilleries sixty gallons of beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and except that in distilleries where the filtration-aeration process is used, with the approval of the Commission of Internal Revenue; that is, where the mash after it leaves the mash tub is passed through a filtering machine before it is run into the fermenting tub, and only the filtered liquor passes into the fermenting tub, there shall hereafter be no limitation upon the number of gallons of water which may be used in the process of mashing or filtration for fermentation; but the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, in order to protect the revenue, shall be authorized to prescribe by regulation, to be made by him, such character of survey as he may find suitable for distilleries using such filtration-aeration process. The provisions hereof relating to filtration-aeration process shall apply only to sweet-mash distilleries."

Sec. 624. That under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, alcohol or other distilled spirits of a proof strength of not less than one hundred and eighty degrees intended for export free of tax may be drawn from receiving cisterns at any distillery, or from storage tanks in any distillery warehouse, for transfer to tanks or tank cars for export from the United States, and all provisions of existing law relating to the exportation of distilled spirits not inconsistent herewith shall apply to spirits removed for export under the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 625. That section 3255 of the Revised Statutes as amended by the Act of June 3, 1896, and as further amended by the Act of March 2, 1911, be further amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 3255. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may exempt distillers of brandy made exclusively from apples, peaches, grapes, pears, pineapples, oranges, apricots, berries, plums, pawpaws, persimmons, prunes, figs, or cherries from any provision of this title relating to the manufacture of spirits, except as to the tax thereon, when in his judgment it may seem expedient to do so: Provided, That where, in the manufacture of wine, artificial sweetening has been used the wine or the fruit pomace residuum may be used in the distillation of brandy, and such use shall not prevent the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, from exempting such distiller from any provision of this title relating to the manufacture of spirits, except as to the tax thereon, when in his judgment it may seem expedient to do so: And provided further, That the distillers mentioned in this section may add to not less than five hundred gallons (or ten barrels) of grape cheese not more than five hundred gallons of a sugar solution made from cane, beet, starch, or corn sugar, 95 per centum pure, such solution to have a saccharine strength of not to exceed 10 per centum, and may ferment the resultant mixture on a winery or distillery premises, and such fermented product shall be regarded as distilling material."

Sec. 626. That distilled spirits known commercially as gin of not less than 80 per centum proof may at any time within eight years after entry in bond at any distillery be bottled in bond at such distillery for export without the payment of tax, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe.

Sec. 627. That section 3354 of the Revised Statutes as amended by the Act approved June 18, 1890, be, and is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3354. Every person who withdraws any fermented liquor from any hogshead, barrel, keg, or other vessel upon which the proper stamp has not been affixed for the purpose of bottling the same, or who carries on or attempts to carry on the business of bottling fermented liquor in any brewery or other place in which fermented liquor is made, or upon any premises having communication with such brewery, or any warehouse, shall be liable to a fine of $500, and the property used in such bottling or business shall be liable to forfeiture: Provided, however, That this section shall not be construed to prevent the withdrawal and transfer of unfermented, partially fermented, or fermented liquors from any of the vats in any brewery by way of a pipe line or other conduit to another building or place for the sole purpose of bottling the same, such pipe line or conduit to be constructed and operated in such manner and with such cisterns, vats, tanks, valves, cocks, faucets, and gauges, or other utensils or appartus, either on the premises of the brewery or the bottling house, and with such changes of or additions thereto, and such locks, seals, or other fastenings, and under such rules and regulations as shall be from time to time prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, and all locks and seals prescribed shall be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at the expense of the United States: Provided further, That the tax imposed in section 3339 of the Revised Statutes shall be paid on all fermented liquor removed from a brewery to a bottling house by means of a pipe or conduit, at the time of such removal, by the cancellation and defacement, by the collector of the district or his deputy, in the presence of the brewer, of the number of stamps denoting the tax on the fermented liquor thus removed. The stamps thus canceled and defaced shall be disposed of and accounted for in the manner directed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Great Variety of Taxes Designed to Reach All Purses

And any violation of the rules and regulations hereafter prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, in pursuance of these provisions, shall be subject to the penalties above provided by this section. Every owner, agent, or superintendent of any brewery or bottling house who removes, or connives at the removal of, any fermented liquor through a pipe line or conduit, without payment of the tax thereon, or who attempts in any manner to defraud the revenue as above, shall forfeit all the liquors made by and for him, and all the vessels, utensils, and apparatus used in making the same."

Sec. 628. That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid in lieu of the taxes imposed by sections 313 and 315 of the Revenue Act of 1917—

(a) Upon all beverages derived wholly or in part from cereals or substitutes therefor, and containing less than one-half of one per centum of alcohol, sold by the manufacturer, producer, or importer, in bottles or other closed containers, a tax equivalent to 15 per centum of the price for which so sold; and upon all unfermented grape juice, ginger ale, root beer, sarsaparilla, pop, artificial mineral waters (carbonated or not carbonated), other carbonated waters or beverages, and other soft drinks sold by the manufacturer, producer, or importer, in bottles or other closed containers, a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(b) Upon all natural mineral waters or table waters, sold by the producer, bottler, or importer thereof, in bottles or other closed containers, at over 10 cents per gallon, a tax of 2 cents per gallon.

Sec. 629. That each manufacturer, producer, bottler, or importer of any of the articles enumerated in section 628 shall make monthly returns under oath in duplicate and pay the taxes imposed in respect to such articles by such section to the collector for the district in which is located the principal place of business, containing such information necessary for the assessment of the tax, and at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due.

Sec. 630. That on and after May 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid to any person conducting a soda fountain, ice cream parlor, or other similar place of business, for drinks commonly known as soft drinks, compounded or mixed at such place of business, or for ice cream, ice-cream sodas, sundaes, or other similar articles of food or drink, when any of the above are sold on or after such date for consumption in or in proximity to such place of business. Such tax shall be paid by the purchaser to the vendor at the time of the sale and shall be collected, returned, and paid to the United States by such vendor in the same manner as provided in Section 502.

TITLE VII.—TAX ON CIGARS, TOBACCO, AND MANUFACTURES THEREOF.

Sec. 700. (a) That upon cigars and cigarettes manufactured in or imported into the United States, and hereafter sold by the manufacturer or importer, or removed for consumption or sale, there shall be levied, collected, and paid under the provisions of existing law, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, the following taxes, to be paid by the manufacturer or importer thereof—

On cigars of all descriptions made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, $1.50 per thousand;

On cigars made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing more than three pounds per thousand, if manufactured or imported to retail at not more than 5 cents each, $4 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 5 cents each and not more than 8 cents each, $6 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 8 cents each and not more than 15 cents each, $9 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 15 cents each and not more than 20 cents each, $12 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 20 cents each, $15 per thousand.

On cigarettes made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, $3 per thousand.

Weighing more than three pounds per thousand, $7.20 per thousand.

(b) Whenever in this section reference is made to cigars manufactured or imported to retail at not over a certain price each, then in determining the tax to be paid regard shall be had to the ordinary retail price of a single cigar.

(c) The Commissioner may, by regulation, require the manufacturer or importer to affix to each box, package, or container a conspicuous label indicating the clause of this section under which the cigars therein contained have been tax-paid, which must correspond with the tax-paid stamp on such box or container.

(d) Every manufacturer of cigarettes (including small cigars weighing not more than three pounds per thousand) shall put up all the cigarettes and such small cigars that he manufactures or has manufactured for him, and sells or removes for consumption or sale, in packages or parcels containing five, eight, ten, twelve, fifteen, sixteen, twenty, twenty-four, forty, fifty, eighty, or one hundred cigarettes each, and shall securely affix to each of such packages or parcels a suitable stamp denoting the tax thereon, and shall properly cancel the same prior to such sale or removal for consumption or sale under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe; and all cigarettes imported from a foreign country shall be packed, stamped, and the stamps canceled in a like manner, in addition to the import stamp indicating inspection of the custom house before they are withdrawn therefrom.

Sec. 701. (a) That upon all tobacco and snuff manufactured in or imported into the United States, and hereafter sold by the manufacturer or importer, or removed for consumption or sale, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, in lieu of the internal revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, a tax of 18 cents per pound, to be paid by the manufacturer or importer thereof.

(b) Section 3,362 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3,362. All manufactured tobacco shall be put up and prepared by the manufacturer for sale, or removal for sale or consumption, in packages of the following description and in no other manner:

"All smoking tobacco, snuff, fine-cut chewing tobacco, all cut and granulated tobacco, all shorts, the refuse of fine-cut chewing, which has passed through a riddle of thirty-six meshes to the square inch, and all refuse scraps, clippings, cuttings, and sweepings of tobacco, and all other kinds of tobacco not otherwise provided for, in packages containing one-eighth of an ounce, three-eighths of an ounce, and further packages with a difference between each package and the one next smaller of one-eighth of an ounce up to and including two ounces, and further packages with a difference between each package and the one next smaller of one-fourth of an ounce up to and including four ounces, and packages of five ounces, six ounces, seven ounces, eight ounces, ten ounces, twelve ounces, fourteen ounces, and sixteen ounces: Provided, That snuff may, at the option of the manufacturer, be put up in bladders and in jars containing not exceeding twenty pounds.

"All cavendish, plug, and twist tobacco, in wooden packages not exceeding two hundred pounds net weight.

"And every such wooden package shall have printed or marked thereon the manufacturer's name and place of manufacture, the registered number of the manufactory, and the gross weight, the tare, and the net weight of the tobacco in each package: Provided, That these limitations and descriptions of packages shall not apply to tobacco and snuff transported in bond for exportation and actually exported: And provided further, That perique tobacco, snuff flour, fine-cut shorts, the refuse of fine-cut chewing tobacco, refuse scraps, clippings, cuttings, and sweepings of tobacco, may be sold in bulk as material, and without the payment of tax, by one manufacturer directly to another manufacturer, or for export under such restrictions, rules, and regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe: And provided further, That wood, metal, paper, or other materials may be used separately or in combination for packing tobacco, snuff, and cigars, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may establish."

Sec. 702. That upon all the articles enumerated in Section 700 or 701, which were manufactured or imported, and removed from factory or custom house on or prior to the date of the passage of this act, and upon which the tax imposed by existing law has been paid, and which are, on the day after the passage of this act, held by any person and intended for sale, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax equal to the difference between (a) the tax imposed by this act upon such articles according to the class in which they are placed by this title, and (b) the tax imposed upon such articles by existing law other than Section 403 of the Revenue act of 1917.

Sec. 703. That there shall be levied, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 404 of the Revenue Act of 1917, upon cigarette paper made up into packages, books, sets, or tubes, made up in or imported into the United States and hereafter sold by the manufacturer or importer to any person (other than to a manufacturer of cigarettes for use by him in the manufacture of cigarettes) the following taxes, to be paid by the manufacturer or importer: On each package, book, or set, containing more than twenty-five but not more than fifty papers, ½ cent; containing more than fifty but not more than one hundred papers, 1 cent; containing more than one hundred papers, ½ cent for each fifty papers or fractional part thereof; and upon tubes, 1 cent for each fifty tubes or fractional part thereof.

Every manufacturer of cigarettes purchasing any cigarette paper made up into tubes (a) shall give bond in an amount and with sureties satisfactory to the Commissioner that he will use such tubes in the manufacture of cigarettes or pay thereon a tax equivalent to the tax imposed by this section, and (b) shall keep such records and render under oath such returns as the Commissioner finds necessary to show the disposition of all tubes purchased or imported by such manufacturer of cigarettes.

Sec. 704. That section 35 of the Act entitled "An act to provide revenue, equalize duties and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes," approved August 5, 1909, be, and is hereby, repealed, to take effect April 1, 1919.

That section 3360 of the Revised Statutes be, and is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3360. (a) Every dealer in leaf tobacco shall file with the collector of the district in which his business is carried on, a statement in duplicate, subscribed under oath, setting forth the place, and, if in a city, the street and number of the street, where his business is to be carried on, and the exact location of each place where leaf tobacco is held by him on storage, and, whenever he adds to or discontinues any of his leaf tobacco storage places, he shall give immediate notice to the collector of the district in which he is registered.

"Every such dealer shall give a bond with surety, satisfactory to, and to be approved by, the collector of the district, in such penal sum as the collector may require, not less than $500; and a new bond may be required in the discretion of the collector or under instructions of the Commissioner.

"Every such dealer shall be assigned a number by the collector of the district, which number shall appear in every inventory, invoice and report rendered by the dealer, who shall also obtain certificates from the collector of the district setting forth the place where his business is carried on and the places designated by the dealer as the places of storage of his tobacco, which certificates shall be posted conspicuously within the dealer's registered place of business, and within each designated place of storage.

"(b) Every dealer in leaf tobacco shall make and deliver to the collector of the district a true inventory of the quantity of the different kinds of tobacco held or owned, and where stored by him, on the first day of January of each year, or at the time of commencing and at the time of concluding business, if before or after the first day of January, such inventory to be made under oath and rendered in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner.

"Every dealer in leaf tobacco shall render such invoices and keep such records as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner, and shall enter therein, day by day, and upon the same day on which the circumstance, thing or act to be recorded is done or occurs, an accurate account of the number of hogsheads, tierces, cases and bales, and quantity of leaf tobacco contained therein, purchased or received by him, on assignment, consignment, for storage, by transfer or otherwise, and of whom purchased or received, and the number of hogsheads, tierces, cases and bales, and the quantity of leaf tobacco contained therein, sold by him, with the name and residence in each instance of the person to whom sold, and if shipped, to whom shipped, and to what district; such records shall be kept at his place of business at all times and preserved for a period of two years, and the same shall be open at all hours for the inspection of any internal-revenue officer or agent.

"Every dealer in leaf tobacco on or before the tenth day of each month, shall furnish to the collector of the district a true and complete report of all purchases, receipts, sales and shipments of leaf tobacco made by him during the month next preceding, which report shall be verified and rendered in such form as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe.

"(c) Sales or shipments of leaf tobacco by a dealer in leaf tobacco shall be in quantities of not less than a hogshead, tierce, case, or bale, except loose leaf tobacco comprising the breaks on warehouse floors, and except to a duly registered manufacturer of cigars for use in his own manufactory exclusively.

"Dealers in leaf tobacco shall make shipments of leaf tobacco only to other dealers in leaf tobacco, to registered manufacturers of tobacco, snuff, cigars or cigarettes, or for export.

"(d) Upon all leaf tobacco sold, removed or shipped by any dealer in leaf tobacco in violation of the provisions of subdivision (c), or in respect to which no report has been made by such dealer in accordance with the provisions of subdivision (b), there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax equal to the tax then in force upon manufactured tobacco, such tax to be assessed and collected in the same manner as the tax on manufactured tobacco.

"(e) Every dealer in leaf tobacco

"(1) who neglects or refuses to furnish the statement, to give bond, to keep books, to file inventory or to render the invoices, returns or reports required by the Commissioner, or to notify the collector of the district of additions to his places of storage; or

"(2) who ships or delivers leaf tobacco, except as herein provided; or

"(3) who fraudulently omits to account for tobacco purchased, received, sold or shipped, shall be fined not less than $100 or more than $500, or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

"(f) For the purposes of this section a farmer or grower of tobacco shall not be regarded as a dealer in leaf tobacco in respect to the leaf tobacco produced by him."

TITLE VIII.—TAX ON ADMISSIONS AND DUES.

Sec. 800. (a) That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 700 of the Revenue Act of 1917—

(1) A tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admission to any place on or after such date, including admission by season ticket or subscription, to be paid by the person paying for such admission.

(2) In the case of persons (except bona fide employees, municipal officers on official business, persons in the military or naval forces of the United States when in uniform, and children under twelve years of age) admitted free or at reduced rates to any place at a time when and under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons, a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the price so charged to such other persons for the same or similar accommodations, to be paid by the person so admitted;

(3) Upon tickets or cards of admission to theatres, operas, and other places of amusement, sold at news stands, hotels, and places other than the ticket offices of such theatres, operas, or other places of amusement, at not to exceed 50 cents in excess of the sum of the established price therefor at such ticket offices plus the amount of any tax imposed under paragraph (1,) a tax equivalent to 5 per centum of the amount of such excess; and if sold for more than 50 cents in excess of the sum of such established price plus the amount of any tax imposed under paragraph (1,) a tax equivalent to 50 per centum of the whole amount of such excess, such taxes to be returned and paid, in the manner provided in section 903, by the person selling such tickets;

(4) A tax equivalent to 50 per centum of the amount for which the proprietors, managers, or employes of any opera house, theatre, or other place of amusement sell or dispose of tickets or cards of admission in excess of the regular or established price or charge therefor, such tax to be returned and paid, in the manner provided in section 903, by the person selling such tickets;

(5) In the case of persons having the permanent use of boxes or seats in an opera house or any place of amusement or a lease for the use of such box or seat in such opera house or place of amusement (in lieu of the tax imposed by paragraph (1), a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the amount for which a similar box or seat is sold for each performance or exhibition at which the box or seat is used or reserved by or for the lessee or holder, such tax to be paid by the lessee or holder; and

(6) A tax of 1½ cents for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admission to any public performance for profit at any roof garden, cabaret, or other similar entertainment, to which the charge for admission is wholly or in part included in the price paid for refreshment, service, or merchandise; the amount paid for such admission to be deemed to be 20 per centum of the amount paid for refreshment, service, and merchandise; such tax to be paid by the person paying for such refreshment, service, or merchandise.

(b) No tax shall be levied under this title in respect to any admissions all the proceeds of which inure exclusively to the benefit of religious, educational, or charitable institutions, societies, or organizations, societies for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, or exclusively to the benefit of organizations, conducted for the sole purpose of maintaining symphony orchestras and receiving substantial support from voluntary contributions, none of the profits of which are distributed to members of such organizations, or exclusively to the benefit of persons in the military or naval forces of the United States, or admissions to agricultural fairs none of the profits of which are distributed to stockholders or members of the association conducting the same.

(c) The term "admission" as used in this title includes seats and tables, reserved or otherwise, and other similar accommodations, and the charges made therefor.

(d) The price (exclusive of the tax to be paid by the person paying for admission) at which every admission ticket or card is sold shall be conspicuously and indelibly printed, stamped, or written on the face or back therof, together with the name of the vendor if sold other than at the ticket office of the theatre, opera, or other place of amusement. Whoever sells an admission ticket or card on which the name of the venor and price is not so printed, stamped, or written, or at a price in excess of the price so printed, stamped, or written thereon, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $100.

Sec. 801. That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 701 of the Revenue Act of 1917, a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of any amount paid on or after such date, for any period after such date, (a) as dues or membership fees (where the dues or fees of an active resident annual member are in excess of $10 per year) to any social, athletic, or sporting club or organization; or (b) as initiation fees to such a club or organization, if such fees amount to more than $10, or if the dues or membership fees (not including initiation fees) of an active resident annual member are in excess of $10 per year; such taxes to be paid by the person paying such dues or fees: Provided, That there shall be exempted from the provisions of this section all amounts paid as dues or fees to a fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the lodge system. In the case of life memberships a life member shall pay annually, at the time for the payment of dues by active resident annual members, a tax equivalent to the tax upon the amount paid by such a member, but shall pay no tax upon the amount paid for life membership.

Sec. 802. That every person (a) receiving any payments for such admission, dues, or fees shall collect the amount of the tax imposed by section 800 or 801 from the person making such payments, or (b) admitting any person free to any place for admission to which a charge is made, shall collect the amount of the tax imposed by section 800 from the person so admitted. Every club or organization having life members, shall collect from such members the amount of the tax imposed by section 801. In all the above cases returns and payments of the amount so collected shall be made at the same time and in the same manner as provided in section 502.

TITLE IX.—EXCISE TAXES.

Sec. 900. That there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid upon the following articles sold or leased by the manufacturer, producer, or importer, a tax equivalent to the following percentage of the price for which so sold or leased—

(1) Automobile trucks and automobile wagons, (including tires, inner tubes, parts, and accessories therefor, sold on or in connection therewith or with the sale thereof), 3 per centum;

(2) Other automobiles and motorcycles, (including tires, inner tubes, parts, and accessories therefor, sold on or in connection therewith or with the sale thereof), except tractors, 5 per centum;

(3) Tires, inner tubes, parts, or accessories, for any of the articles enumerated in subdivision (1), or (2) sold to any person other than a manufacturer or producer of any of the articles enumerated in subdivision (1) or (2), 5 per centum;

(4) Pianos, organs (other than pipe organs), piano players, graphophones, phonographs, talking machines, music boxes, and records used in connection with any musical instrument, piano player, graphophone, phonograph, or talking machine, 5 per centum;

(5) Tennis rackets, nets, racket covers and presses, skates, snowshoes, skis, toboggans, canoe paddles and cushions, polo mallets, baseball bats, gloves, masks, protectors, shoes and uniforms, football helmets, harness and goals, basket ball goals and uniforms, golf bags and clubs, lacrosse sticks, balls of all kinds, including baseballs, footballs, tennis, golf, lacrosse, billiard and pool balls, fishing rods and reels, billiard and pool tables, chess and checker boards and pieces, dice, games and parts of games (except playing cards and children's toys and games), and all similar articles commonly or commercially known as sporting goods, 10 per centum;

(6) Chewing gum or substitutes therefor, 3 per centum;

(7) Cameras, weighing not more than 100 pounds, 10 per centum;

(8) Photographic films and plates, other than moving-picture films, 5 per centum;

(9) Candy, 5 per centum;

(10) Firearms, shells, and cartridges, except those sold for the use of the United States, any State, Territory, or possession of the United States, any political subdivision thereof, the District of Columbia, or any foreign country while engaged against the German Government in the present war, 10 per centum;

(11) Hunting and bowie knives, 10 per centum;

(12) Dirk knives, daggers, sword canes, stilettos, and brass or metallic knuckles, 100 per centum;

(13) Portable electric fan, 5 per centum;

(14) Thermos and thermostatic bottles, carafes, jugs, or other thermostatic containers, 5 per centum;

(15) Cigar or cigarette holders and pipes, composed wholly or in part of meerschaum or amber, humidors, and smoking stands, 10 per centum;

(16) Automatic slot-device vending machines, 5 per centum, and automatic slot-device weighing machines, 10 per centum; if the manufacturer, producer, or importer of any such machine operates it for profit, he shall pay a tax in respect to each such machine put into operation equivalent to 5 per centum of its fair market value in the case of a vending machine, and 10 per centum of its fair market value in the case of a weighing machine;

(17) Liveries and livery boots and hats, 10 per centum;

(18) Hunting and shooting garments and riding habits, 10 per centum;

(19) Articles made of fur on the hide or pelt, or of which any such fur is the component material of chief value, 10 per centum;

(20) Yachts and motor boats not designed for trade, fishing, or national defense; and pleasure boats and pleasure canoes if sold for more than $15, 10 per centum; and

(21) Toilet soaps and toilet soap powders, 3 per centum.

If any manufacturer, producer, or importer of any of the articles enumerated in this section customarily sells such articles both at wholesale and at retail, the tax in the case of any article sold by him at retail shall be computed on the price for which like articles are sold by him at wholesale.

The taxes imposed by this section shall, in the case of any article in respect to which a corresponding tax is imposed by section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917, be in lieu of such tax.

Sec. 901. That if any person manufactures, produces or imports any article enumerated in section 900, or leases or licenses for exhibition any positive motion-picture film containing a picture ready for projection, and, whether through any agreement, arrangement, or understanding, or otherwise, sells, leases or licenses such article at less than the fair market price obtainable therefor, either (a) in such manner as directly or indirectly to benefit such person or any person directly or indirectly interested in the business of such person, or (b) with intent to cause such benefit, the amount for which such article is sold, leased or licensed shall be taken to be the amount which would have been received from the sale, lease or license of such article if sold, leased or licensed at the fair market price.

Sec. 902. That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon sculpture, paintings, statuary, art porcelains, and bronzes, sold by any person other than the artist, a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the price for which so sold. This section shall not apply to the sale of any such article to an educational institution or public art museum.

Sec. 903. That every person liable for any tax imposed by section 900, 902, or 906, shall make monthly returns under oath in duplicate and pay the taxes imposed by such sections to the collector for the district in which is located the principal place of business. Such returns shall contain such information and be made at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due.

Sec. 904. (a) That on and after May 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of so much of the amount paid for any of the following articles as is in excess of the price hereinafter specified as to each such article, when such article is sold by or for a dealer or his estate on or after such date for consumption or use—

(1) Carpets and rugs, including fiber, except imported and American rugs made principally of wool, on the amount in excess of $5 per square yard;

(2) Picture frames, on the amount in excess of $10 each;

(3) Trunks, on the amount in excess of $50 each;

(4) Valises, traveling bags, suit cases, hat boxes used by travelers, and fitted toilet cases, on the amount in excess of $25 each;

(5) Purses, pocketbooks, shopping and hand bags, on the amount in excess of $7.50 each;

(6) Portable lighting fixtures, including lamps of all kinds and lamp shades, on the amount in excess of $25 each;

(7) Umbrellas, parasols, and sun shades, on the amount in excess of $4 each;

(8) Fans, on the amount in excess of $1 each;

(9) House or smoking coats or jackets, and bath or lounging robes, on the amount in excess of $7.50 each;

(10) Men's waistcoats, sold separately from suits, on the amount in excess of $5 each;

(11) Women's and misses' hats, bonnets, and hoods, on the amount in excess of $15 each;

(12) Men's and boys' hats, on the amount in excess of $5 each;

(13) Men's and boys' caps, on the amount in excess of $2 each;

(14) Men's, women's, misses', and boys' boots, shoes, pumps, and slippers, not including shoes or appliances made to order for any person having a crippled or deformed foot or ankle, on the amount in excess of $10 per pair;

(15) Men's and boys' neckties and neckwear, on the amount in excess of $2 each;

(16) Men's and boys' silk stockings or hose, on the amount in excess of $1 per pair;

(17) Women's and misses' silk stockings or hose, on the amount in excess of $2 per pair;

(18) Men's shirts, on the amount in excess of $3 each;

(19) Men's, women's, misses', and boys' pajamas, night gowns, and underwear, on the amount in excess of $5 each; and

(20) Kimonos, petticoats, and waists, on the amount in excess of $15 each.

(b) The tax imposed by this section shall not apply (1) to any article enumerated in paragraphs (2) to (8), both inclusive, of subdivision (a), if such article is made of or ornamented, mounted, or fitted with, precious metals or imitations thereof or ivory, or (2) to any article made of fur on the hide or pelt, or of which any such fur is the component material of chief value, or to (3) any article enumerated in subdivision (17) or (18) of section 900.

(c) The taxes imposed by this section shall be paid by the purchaser to the vendor at the time of the sale and shall be collected, returned, and paid to the United States by such vendor in the same manner as provided in section 502.

Sec. 905. That on and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid (in lieu of the tax imposed by subdivision (e) of section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917) upon all articles commonly or commercially known as jewelry, whether real or imitation; pearls, precious and semi-precious stones, and imitations thereof; articles made of, or ornamented, mounted or fitted with, precious metals or imitations thereof or ivory (not including surgical instruments); watches; clocks; opera glasses; lorgnettes; marine glasses; field glasses ;and binoculars; upon any of the above when sold by or for a dealer or his estate for consumption or use, a tax equivalent to 5 per centum of the price for which so sold.

Every person selling any of the articles enumerated in this section shall make returns under oath in duplicate (monthly or quarterly as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe) and pay the taxes imposed in respect to such articles by this section to the collector for the district in which is located the principal place of business. Such returns shall contain such information and be made at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due.

Sec. 906. That on and after the 1st day of May 1919, any person engaged in the business of leasing or licensing for exhibition positive motion-picture films containing pictures ready for projection shall pay monthly an excise tax in respect to carrying on such business equal to 5 per centum of the total rentals earned from each such lease or license during the preceding month. If a person owning such a film exhibits it for profit he shall pay a tax equivalent to 5 per centum of the fair rental or license value of such film at the time and place where and for the period during which exhibited. If any such person has, prior to December 6, 1918, made a bona fide contract with any person for the lease or licensing, after the tax imposed by this section takes effect, of such a film for exhibition for profit, and if such contract does not permit the adding of the whole of the tax imposed by this section to the amount to be paid under such contract, then the lessee or licensee shall, in lieu of the lessor or licensor, pay so much of such tax as is not so permitted to be added to the contract price. The tax imposed by this section shall be in lieu of the tax imposed by subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917.

Sec. 907. (a) That on and after May 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid (in lieu of the taxes imposed by subdivisions (g) and (h) of section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917) a tax of 1 cent for each 25 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for any of the following articles when sold by or for a dealer or his estate on or after such date for consumption or use;

(1) Perfumes, essences, extracts, toilet waters, cosmetics, petroleum jellies, hair oils, pomades, hair dressings, hair restoratives, hair dyes, tooth and mouth washes, dentifrices, tooth pastes, aromatic cachous, toilet powders (other than soap powders), or any similar substances, article, or preparation by whatsoever name known or distinguished, any of the above which are used or applied or intended to be used or applied for toilet purposes;

(2) Pills, tablets, powders, tinctures, troches or lozenges, sirups, medicinal cordials or bitters, anodynes, tonics, plasters, liniments, salves, ointments, pastes, drops, waters, (except those taxed under section 628 of this Act), essences, spirits, oils, and other medicinal preparations, compounds, or compositions (not including serums and antitoxins), upon the amount paid for any of the above as to which the manufacturer or producer claims to have any private formula, secret, or occult art for making or preparing the same, or has or claims to have any exclusive right or title to the making or preparing the same, or which are prepared, uttered, vended, or exposed for sale under any letters patent, or trade-mark, or which (if prepared by any formula, published or unpublished) are held out or recommended to the public by the makers, vendors, or proprietors thereof as proprietary medicines or medicinal proprietary articles or preparations, or as remedies or specifics for any disease, diseases, or affection whatever affecting the human or animal body: Provided, That the provisions of this section shall not apply to the sale of vaccines and bacterines which are not advertised to the general lay public, nor to the sale by a physician in personal attendance upon a patient of medicinal preparations not so advertised.

(b) The taxes imposed by this section shall be collected by whichever of the following methods the Commissioner may deem expedient: (1) by stamp affixed to such article by the vendor, the cost of which shall be reimbursed to the vendor by the purchaser; or (2) by payment to the vendor by the purchaser at the time of the sale, the taxes so collected being returned and paid to the United States by such vendor in the same manner as provided in section 502.

TITLE X.—SPECIAL TAXES.

Sec. 1000. (a) That on and after July 1, 1918, in lieu of the tax imposed by the first subdivision of Section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916—

(1) Every domestic corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of so much of the fair average value of its capital stock for the preceding year ending June thirtieth as in excess of $5,000. In estimating the value of capital stock the surplus and undivided profits shall be included:

(2) Every foreign corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business in the United States, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the average amount of capital employed in the transaction of its business in the United States during the preceding year ending June thirtieth.

(b) In computing the tax in the case of insurance companies such deposits and reserve funds as they are required by law or contract to maintain or hold for the protection of or payment to or apportionment among policy holders shall not be included.

(c) The taxes imposed by this section shall not apply in any year to any corporation which was not engaged in business (or in the case of a foreign corporation not engaged in business in the United States) during the preceding year ending June 30, nor to any corporation enumerated in Section 231. The taxes imposed by this section shall apply to mutual insurance companies, and in the case of every such domestic company the tax shall be equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the excess over $5,000 of the sum of its surplus or contingent reserves maintained for the general use of the business and any reserves the net additions to which are included in net income under the provisions of Title II., as of the close of the preceding accounting period used by such company for purposes of making its income tax return: Provided, That in the case of a foreign mutual insurance company the tax shall be equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the same proportion of the sum of such surplus and reserves, which the reserve fund upon business transacted within the United States is of the total reserve upon all business transacted, as of the close of the preceding accounting period used by such company for purposes of making its income tax return.

(d) Section 257 shall apply to all returns filed with the Commissioner for purposes of the tax imposed by this section.

Sec. 1,001. That on and after Jan. 1, 1919, there shall be levied, collected, and paid annually the following special taxes:

(1) Brokers shall pay $50. Every person whose business it is to negotiate purchases or sales of stocks, bonds, exchange, bullion, coined money, bank notes, promissory notes, other securities, produce or merchandise, for others, shall be regarded as a broker. If a broker is a member of a stock exchange, or if he is a member of any produce exchange, board of trade, or similar organization, where produce or merchandise is sold, he shall pay an additional amount as follows: If the average value, during the preceding year ending June 30, of a seat or membership in such exchange or organization was $2,000 or more but not more than $5,000, $100; if such value was more than $5,000, $150.

(2) Pawnbrokers shall pay $100. Every person whose business or occupation it is to take or receive, by way of pledge, pawn, or exchange, any goods, wares, or merchandise, or any kind of personal property whatever, as security for the payment of money loaned thereon, shall be regarded as a pawnbroker.

(3) Ship brokers shall pay $50. Every person whose business it is as a broker to negotiate freights and other business for the owners of vessels, or for the shippers or consignors or consignees of freight carried by vessels, shall be regarded as a ship broker.

(4) Customhouse brokers shall pay $50. Every person whose occupation it is, as the agent of others, to arrange entries and other customhouse papers, or transact business at any port of entry relating to the importation or exportation of goods, wares, or merchandise, shall be regarded as a customhouse broker.

(5) Proprietors of theatres, museums, and concert halls, where a charge for admission is made, having a seating capacity of not more than two hundred and fifty, shall pay $50; having a seating capacity of more than two hundred and fifty and not exceeding five hundred, shall pay $100; having a seating capacity exceeding five hundred and not exceeding eight hundred, shall pay $150; having a seating capacity of more than eight hundred, shall pay $200. Every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays, or performances, for admission to which entrance money is received, not including halls or armories rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations, and not including edifices owned by religious, educational, or charitable institutions, societies or organizations where all the proceeds from admissions inure exclusively to the benefit of such institutions, societies or organizations or exclusively to the benefit of persons in the military or naval forces of the United States, shall be regarded as a theatre: Provided, That in cities, towns, or villages of five thousand inhabitants or less the amount of such payment shall be one-half of that above stated: Provided further, That whenever any such edifice is under lease at the time the tax is due, the tax shall be paid by the lessee, unless otherwise stipulated between the parties to the lease.

(6) The proprietor or proprietors of circuses shall pay $100. Every building, space, tent, or area, where feats of horsemanship or acrobatic sports or theatrical performances not otherwise provided for in this section are exhibited shall be regarded as a circus: Provided, That no special tax paid in one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall exempt exhibitions from the tax in another State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and but one special tax shall be imposed for exhibitions within any one State, Territory, or district.

(7) Proprietors or agents of all other public exhibitions or shows for money not enumerated in this section shall pay $15: Provided, That a special tax paid in one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall not exempt exhibitions from the tax in another State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and but one special tax shall be required for exhibitions within any one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia: Provided, further, That this paragraph shall not apply to Chautauquas, lecture lyceums, agricultural or industrial fairs, or exhibitions held under the auspices of religious or charitable associations: Provided further, That an aggregation of entertainments, known as a street fair, shall not pay a larger tax than $100 in any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia.

(8) Proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms shall pay $10 for each alley or table. Every building or place where bowls are thrown or where games of billiards or pool are played, except in private homes, shall be regarded as a bowling alley or a billiard room, respectively.

(9) Proprietors of shooting galleries shall pay $20. Every building, space, tent, or area, where a charge is made for the discharge of firearms at any form of target shall be regarded as a shooting gallery.

(10) Proprietors of riding academies shall pay $100. Every building, space, tent, or area, where a charge is made for instruction in horsemanship or for facilities for the practice of horsemanship shall be regarded as a riding academy.

(11) Persons carrying on the business of operating or renting passenger automobiles for hire shall pay $10 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than two and not more than seven, and $20 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than seven.

(12) Every person carrying on the business of a brewer, distiller, wholesale liquor dealer, retail liquor dealer, wholesale dealer in malt liquor, retail dealer in malt liquor, or manufacturer of stills, as defined in section 3244 as amended and section 3247 of the Revised Statutes, in any State, Territory, or District of the United States contrary to the laws of such State, Territory, or District, or in any place therein in which carrying on such business is prohibited by local or municipal law, shall pay, in addition to all other taxes, special or otherwise, imposed by existing law or by this Act, $1,000.

The payment of the tax imposed by this subdivision shall not be held to exempt any person from any penalty or punishment provided for by the laws of any State, Territory, or District for carrying on such business in such State, Territory, or District, or in any manner to authorize the commencement or continuance of such business contrary to the laws of such State, Territory, or District, or in places prohibited by local or municipal law.

The taxes imposed by this section shall, in the case of persons upon whom a corresponding tax is imposed by section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916, be in lieu of such tax.

Sec. 1002. That on and after January 1, 1919, there shall be levied, collected, and paid annually, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 408 of the Revenue Act of 1916 the following special taxes, the amount of such taxes to be computed on the basis of the sales for the preceding year ending June 30—

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed fifty thousand and do not exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $12;

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed two hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $24, and at the rate of 16 cents per thousand pounds, or fraction thereof, in respect to the excess over two hundred thousand pounds;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed one hundred thousand and do not exceed two hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $12;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed four hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $24, and at the rate of 10 cents per thousand cigars, or fraction thereof, in respect to the excess over four hundred thousand cigars;

Manufacturers of cigarettes, including small cigars weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, shall each pay at the rate of 6 cents for every ten thousand cigarettes, or fraction thereof.

In arriving at the amount of special tax to be paid under this section, and in the levy and collection of such tax, each person engaged in the manufacture of more than one of the classes of articles specified in this section shall be considered and deemed a manufacturer of each class separately.

Sec. 1003. That sixty days after the passage of this Act, and thereafter on July 1 in each year, and also at the time of the original purchase of a new boat by a user, if on any other date than July 1, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid in lieu of the tax imposed by section 603 of the Revenue Act of 1917, upon the use of yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, and sailing boats, of over five net tons, and motor boats with fixed engines, not used exclusively for trade, fishing or national defense, or not built according to plans and specifications approved by the Navy Department, a special excise tax to be based on each yacht or boat, at rates as follows: Yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, motor boats with fixed engines, and sailing boats, of over five net tons, length not over fifty feet, $1 for each foot; length over fifty feet and not over one hundred feet, $2 for each foot; length over one hundred feet, $4 for each foot; motor boats of not over five net tons with fixed engines, $10.

In determining the length of such yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, motor boats with fixed engines, and sailing boats, the measurement of overall length shall govern.

In the case of a tax imposed at the time of the original purchase of a new boat on any other date than July 1, and in the case of the tax taking effect sixty days after the passage of this Act, the amount to be paid shall be the same number of twelfths of the amount of the tax as the number of calendar months (including the month of sale, or the month in which is included the sixty-first day after the passage of this Act, as the case may be) remaining prior to the following July 1.

If the tax imposed by section 603 of the Revenue Act of 1917, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, has been paid in respect to the use of any boat, the amount so paid shall under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, be credited upon the first tax due under this section in respect to the use of such boat, or be refunded to the person paying the first tax imposed by this section in respect to the use of such boat.

Sec. 1004. That if the tax imposed by section 407 or 408 of the Revenue Act of 1916, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, has been paid by any person subject to the corresponding tax imposed by this title, collectors may issue a receipt in lieu of special tax stamp for the amount by which the tax under this title is in excess of that paid or payable and evidenced by stamp under the Revenue Act of 1916. Such receipt shall be posted as in the case of the special tax stamp, as provided by law, and with it, within the place of business of the taxpayer.

If the corresponding tax imposed by section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916 was not payable by stamp, the amount paid under such section for any period for which a tax is also imposed by this title may be credited against the tax imposed by this title.

Sec. 1005. That any person who carries on any business or occupation for which a special tax is imposed by sections 1000, 1001, or 1002, without having paid the special tax therein provided, shall, besides being liable for the payment of such special tax, be subject to a penalty of not more than $1,000 or to imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 1006. That section 1 of the Act of Congress approved December 17, 1914, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 1. That on or before July 1 of each year every person who imports, manufactures, produces, compounds, sells, deals in, dispenses, or gives away opium or coca leaves, or any compound, manufacture, salt, derivative, or preparation thereof, shall register with the collector of internal revenue of the district his name or style, place of business and place or places where such business is to be carried on, and pay the special taxes hereinafter provided:

"Every person who on January 1, 1919, is engaged in any of the activities above enumerated, or who between such date and the passage of this Act first engages in any of such activities, shall within 30 days after the passage of this Act make like registration, and shall pay the proportionate part of the tax for the period ending June 30, 1919; and

"Every person who first engages in any of such activities after the passage of this Act shall immediately make like registration and pay the proportionate part of the tax for the period ending on the following June 30th;

"Importers, manufacturers, producers, or compounders, $24 per annum; wholesale dealers, $12 per annum; retail dealers, $6 per annum; physicians, dentists, veterinary surgeons, and other practitioners lawfully entitled to distribute, dispense, give away, or administer any of the aforesaid drugs to patients upon whom they in the course of their professional practice are in attendance, shall pay $3 per annum.

"Every person who imports, manufactures, compounds, or otherwise produces for sale or distribution any of the aforesaid drugs shall be deemed to be an importer, manufacturer, or producer.

"Every person who sells or offers for sale any of said drugs in the original stamped packages, as hereinafter provided, shall be deemed a wholesale dealer.

"Every person who sells or dispenses from original stamped packages, as hereinafter provided, shall be deemed a retail dealer: Provided, That the office, or if none, the residence, of any person shall be considered for the purpose of this Act his place of business; but no employee of any person who has registered and paid special tax as herein required, acting within the scope of his employment, shall be required to register and pay special tax provided by this section: Provided further, That officials of the United States, Territorial, District of Columbia, or insular possessions, State or municipal governments, who in the exercise of their official duties engage in any of the business herein described, shall not be required to register, nor pay special tax, nor stamp the aforesaid drugs as hereinafter prescribed, but their right to this exemption shall be evidenced in such manner as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may by regulations prescribe.

"It shall be unlawful for any person required to register under the provisions of this Act to import, manufacture, produce, compound, sell, deal in, dispense, distribute, administer, or give away any of the aforesaid drugs without having registered and paid the special tax as imposed by this section.

"That the word 'person' as used in this Act shall be construed to mean and include a partnership, association, company, or corporation, as well as a natural person; and all provisions of existing law relating to special taxes, as far as necessary, are hereby extended and made applicable to this section.

"That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon opium, coca leaves, any compound, salt, derivative, or preparation thereof, produced in or imported into the United States, and sold, or removed for consumption or sale, an internal-revenue tax at the rate of 1 cent per ounce, and any fraction of an ounce in a package shall be taxed as an ounce, such tax to be paid by the importer, manufacturer, producer, or compounder thereof, and to be represented by appropriate stamps, to be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury; and the stamps herein provided shall be so affixed to the bottle or other container as to securely seal the stopper, covering, or wrapper thereof.

"The tax imposed by this section shall be in addition to any import duty imposed on the aforesaid drugs.

"It shall be unlawful for any person to purchase, sell, dispense, or distribute any of the aforesaid drugs except in the original stamped package or from the original stamped package; and the absence of appropriate tax-paid stamps from any of the aforesaid drugs shall be prima facie evidence of a violation of this section by the person in whose possession same may be found; and the possession of any original stamped package containing any of the aforesaid drugs by any person who has not registered and paid special taxes as required by this section shall be prima facie evidence of liability to such special tax: Provided, That the provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to any person having in his or her possession any of the aforesaid drugs which have been obtained from a registered dealer in pursuance of a prescription, written for legitimate medical uses, issued by a physician, dentist, veterinary surgeon, or other practitioner registered under this Act; and where the bottle or other container in which such drug may be put up by the dealer upon said prescription bears the name and registry number of the druggist, serial number of prescription, name and address of the patient, and name, address, and registry number of the person writing said prescription; or to the dispensing, or administration, or giving away of any of the aforesaid drugs to a patient by a registered physician, dentist, veterinary surgeon, or other practitioner in the course of his professional practice, and where said drugs are dispensed or administered to the patient for legitimate medical purposes, and the record kept as required by this act of the drugs so dispensed, administered, distributed, or given away.

"And all the provisions of existing laws relating to the engraving, issuance, sale, accountability, cancellation, and destruction of tax-paid stamps provided for in the internal revenue laws are, in so far as necessary, hereby extended and made to apply to stamps provided by this section.

"That all unstamped packages of the aforesaid drugs found in the possession of any person, except as herein provided, shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture and all the provisions of existing internal revenue laws relating to searches, seizures, and forfeitures of unstamped articles are hereby extended to and made to apply to the articles taxed under this Act and the persons upon whom these taxes are imposed.

"Importers, manufacturers, and wholesale dealers shall keep such books and records and render such monthly returns in relation to the transactions in the aforesaid drugs as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may by regulations require.

"The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall make all needful rules and regulations for carrying the provisions of this Act into effect."

Sec. 1,007. That section 6 of such Act of December 17, 1914, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 6. That the provisions of this act shall not be construed to apply to the manufacture, sale, distribution, giving away, dispensing, or possession of preparation and remedies which do not contain more than two grains of opium, or more than one-fourth of a grain of morphine, or more than one-eighth of a grain of heroin, or more than one grain of codeine, or any salt or derivative of any of them in one fluid ounce, or, if a solid or semi-solid preparation, in one avoirdupois ounce; or to liniments, ointments, or other preparations which are prepared for external use only, except liniments, ointments, and other preparations which contain cocaine or any of its salts or alpha or beta eucaine or any of their salts or any synthetic substitute for them: Provided, that such remedies and preparations are manufactured, sold, distributed, given away, dispensed, or possessed as medicines and not for the purpose of evading the intentions and provisions of this act: Provided further, that any manufacturer, producer, compounder, or vendor (including dispensing physicians) of the preparations and remedies mentioned in this section shall keep a record of all sales, exchanges, or gifts of such preparations and remedies in such manner as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall direct. Such record shall be preserved for a period of two years in such a way as to be readily accessible to inspection by any officer, agent, or employee of the Treasury Department duly authorized for that purpose, and the State, Territorial, district, municipal, and insular officers named in section 5 of this act, and every such person so possessing or disposing of such preparations and remedies shall register as required in section 1 of this act and, if he is not paying a tax under this Act, he shall pay a special tax of $1 for each year, or fractional part thereof, in which he is engaged in such occupation, to the Collector of Internal Revenue of the district in which he carries on such occupation as provided in this Act. The provisions of this Act as amended shall not apply to decocainized coca leaves or preparations made therefrom, or to other preparations of coca leaves which do not contain cocaine."

Sec. 1008. That all opium, its salts, derivatives, and compounds, and coca leaves, salts, derivatives, and compounds thereof, which may now be under seizure or which may hereafter be seized by the United States Government from any person or persons charged with any violation of the Act of October 1, 1890, as amended by the Acts of March 3, 1897, February 9, 1909, and January 17, 1914, or the Act of December 17, 1914, shall upon conviction of the person or persons from whom seized be confiscated by and forfeited to the United States; and the Secretary is hereby authorized to deliver for medical or scientific purposes to any department, bureau, or other agency of the United States Government, upon proper application therefor under such regulation as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, any of the drugs so seized, confiscated, and forfeited to the United States.

The provisions of this section shall also apply to any of the aforesaid drugs seized or coming into the possession of the United States in the enforcement of any of the above-mentioned Acts where the owner or owners thereof are unknown. None of the aforesaid drugs coming into possession of the United States under the operation of said Acts, or the provisions of this section, shall be destroyed without certification by a committee appointed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, that they are of no value for medical or scientific purposes.

Sec. 1009. That the Act approved October 22, 1914, entitled "An Act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes," and the joint resolution approved December 17, 1915, entitled "Joint resolution extending the provisions of the Act entitled 'An Act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes,' approved October twenty-second, nineteen hundred and fourteen, to December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen," are hereby repealed, excpt that the provisions of such Act shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of all special taxes imposed by Sections 3 and 4 thereof, or by such sections as extended by such joint resolution, for any year or part thereof ending prior to January 1, 1917, and of all other taxes imposed by such Act, or by such Act as so extended, accrued prior to September 8, 1916, and for the imposition and collection of all penalties or forfeitures which have accrued or may accrue in relation to any of such taxes.

TITLE XI.—STAMP TAXES.

Sec. 1100. That on and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, for and in respect of the several bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock and of indebtedness, and other documents, instruments, matters, and things mentioned and described in Schedule A of this title, or for or in respect of the vellum, parchment, or paper upon which such instruments, matters, or things, or any of them, are written or printed, by a person who makes, signs, issues, sells, removes, consigns, or ships the same, or for whose use or benefit the same are made, signed, issued, sold, removed, consigned, or shipped, the several taxes specified in such schedule. The taxes imposed by this section shall, in the case of any article upon which a corresponding stamp tax is now imposed by law, be in lieu of such tax.

Sec. 1101. That there shall not be taxed under this title any bond, note, or other instrument, issued by the United States, or by any foreign Government, or by any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or local subdivision thereof, or municipal or other corporation exercising the taxing power; or any bond of indemnity required to be filed by any person to secure payment of any pension, allowance, allotment, relief, or insurance by the United States; or stocks and bonds issued by co-operative building and loan associations which are organized and operated exclusively for the benefit of their members and make loans only to their shareholders, or by mutual ditch or irrigating companies.

Sec. 1102. That whoever—

(a) Makes, signs, issues, or accepts, or causes to be made, signed, issued, or accepted, any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever without the full amount of tax thereon being duly paid;

(b) Consigns or ships, or causes to be consigned or shipped, by parcel post any parcel, package, or article without the full amount of tax being duly paid;

(c) Manufactures or imports and sells, or offers for sale, or causes to be manufactured or imported and sold, or offered for sale, any playing cards, package, or other article without the full amount of tax being duly paid;

(d) Makes use of any adhesive stamp to denote any tax imposed by this title without canceling or obliterating such stamp as prescribed in section 1104;

Is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than $100 for each offense.

Sec. 1103. That whoever—

(a) Fraudulently cuts, tears, or removes from any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title, any adhesive stamp or the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other article provided, made, or used in pursuance of this title;

(b) Fraudulently uses, joins, fixes, or places to, with, or upon any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title, (1) any adhesive stamp, or the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other article, which has been cut, torn, or removed from any other vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title; or (2) any adhesive stamp or the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other article of insufficient value; or (3) any forged or counterfeit stamp, or the impression of any forged or counterfeited stamp, die, plate, or other article;

(c) Willfully removes, or alters the cancellation, or defacing marks of, or otherwise prepares, any adhesive stamp, with intent to use, or cause the same to be used, after it has been already used, or knowingly or willfully buys, sells, offers for sale, or gives away, any such washed or restored stamp to any person for use, or knowingly uses the same;

(d) Knowingly and without lawful excuse (the burden of proof of such excuse being on the accused) has in possession any washed, restored, or altered stamp, which has been removed from any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article;

Is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, and any such reused, canceled, or counterfeit stamp and the vellum, parchment, document, paper, package, or article upon which it is placed or impressed shall be forfeited to the United States.

Sec. 1104. That whenever an adhesive stamp is used for denoting any tax imposed by this title, except as hereinafter provided, the person using or affixing the same shall write or stamp or cause to be written or stamped thereupon the initials of his or its name and the date upon which the same is attached or used, so that the same may not again be used: Provided, That the Commissioner may prescribe such other method for the cancellation of such stamps as he may deem expedient.

Sec. 1105. (a) That the Commissioner shall cause to be prepared and distributed for the payment of the taxes prescribed in this title suitable stamps denoting the tax on the document, articles, or thing to which the same may be affixed, and shall prescribe such method for the affixing of said stamps in substitution for or in addition to the method provided in this title, as he may deem expedient.

(b) The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is authorized to procure any of the stamps provided for in this title by contract whenever such stamps can not be speedily prepared by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; but this authority shall expire on January 1, 1920, except as to imprinted stamps furnished under contract, authorized by the Commissioner.

(c) All internal-revenue laws relating to the assessment and collection of taxes are hereby extended to and made a part of this title, so far as applicable, for the purpose of collecting stamp taxes omitted through mistake or fraud from any instrument, document, paper, writing, parcel, package, or article named herein.

Sec. 1106. That the Commissioner shall furnish to the Postmaster General without prepayment a suitable quantity of adhesive stamps to be distributed to and kept on sale by the various postmasters in the United States. The Postmaster General may require each such postmaster to give additional or increased bond as postmaster for the value of the stamps so furnished, and each such postmaster shall deposit the receipts from the sale of such stamps to the credit of and render accounts to the Postmaster General at such times and in such form as he may by regulations prescribe. The Postmaster General shall at least once monthly transfer all collections from this source to the Treasury as internal-revenue collections.

Sec. 1107. That the collectors of the several districts shall furnish without prepayment to any assistant treasurer or designated depositary of the United States located in their respective collection districts a suitable quantity of adhesive stamps for sale. In such cases the collector may require a bond, with sufficient sureties, to an amount equal to the value of the adhesive stamps so furnished, conditioned for the faithful return, whenever so required, of all quantities or amounts undisposed of, and for the payment monthly of all quantities or amounts sold or not remaining on hand. The Secretary may from time to time make such regulations as he may find necessary to insure the safekeeping or prevent the illegal use of all such adhesive stamps.

SCHEDULE A.—STAMP TAXES.

1. Bonds of indebtedness: On all bonds, debentures, or certificates of indebtedness issued by any person, and all instruments, however termed, issued by any corporation with interest coupons or in registered form, known generally as corporate securities, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents: Provided, That every renewal of the foregoing shall be taxed as a new issue: Provided further, That when a bond conditioned for the repayment or payment of money is given in a penal sum greater than the debt secured, the tax shall be based upon the amount secured.

2. Bonds, indemnity and surety: On all bonds executed for indemnifying any person who shall have become bound or engaged as surety, and on all bonds executed for the due execution or performance of any contract, obligation or requirement, or the duties of any office or position, and to account for money received by virtue thereof, and on all policies of guaranty and fidelity insurance, including policies guaranteeing titles to real estate and mortgage guarantee policies, and on all other bonds of any description, made, issued, or executed, not otherwise provided for in this schedule, except such as may be required in legal proceedings 50 cents: Provided, That where a premium is charged for the issuance, execution, renewal or continuance of such bond the tax shall be 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged: Provided further, That policies of reinsurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision.

3. Capital stock, issue: On each original issue, whether on organization or reorganization, of certificates of stock, or of profits, or of interest in property or accumulations, by any corporation, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents: Provided, That where a certificate is issued without face value, the tax shall be 5 cents per share, unless the actual value is in excess of $100 per share, in which case the tax shall be 5 cents on each $100 of actual value or fraction thereof.

The stamps representing the tax imposed by this subdivision shall be attached to the stock books and not to the certificates issued.

4. Capital stock, sales or transfers: On all sales, or agreements to sell, or memoranda of sales or deliveries of, or transfers of legal title to shares or certificates of stock or of profits or of interest in property or accumulations in any corporation, or to rights to subscribe for or to receive such shares or certificates, whether made upon or shown by the books of the corporation, or by any assignment in blank, or by any delivery, or by any paper or agreement or memorandum or other evidence of transfer or sale, whether entitling the holder in any manner to the benefit of such stock, interest, or rights, or not, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 2 cents, and where such shares are without par or face value, the tax shall be 2 cents on the transfer or sale or agreement to sell on each share, unless the actual value thereof is in excess of $100 per share, in which case the tax shall be 2 cents on each $100 of actual value or fraction thereof: Provided, That it is not intended by this title to impose a tax upon an agreement evidencing a deposit of certificates as collateral security for money loaned thereon, which certificates are not actually sold, nor upon the delivery or transfer for such purpose of certificates so deposited: Provided further, That the tax shall not be imposed upon deliveries or transfers to a broker for sale, nor upon deliveries or transfers by a broker to a customer for whom and upon whose order he has purchased same, but such deliveries or transfers shall be accompanied by a certificate setting forth the facts: Provided further, That in the case of sale where the evidence of transfer is shown only by the books of the corporation the stamp shall be placed upon such books; and where the change of ownership is by transfer of the certificate the stamp shall be placed upon the certificate; and in cases of an agreement to sell or where the transfer is by delivery of the certificate assigned in blank there shall be made and delivered by the seller to the buyer a bill or memorandum of such sale, to which the stamp shall be affixed; and every bill or memorandum of sale or agreement to sell before mentioned shall show the date thereof, the name of the seller, the amount of the sale, and the matter or thing to which it refers. Any person liable to pay the tax as herein provided, or any one who acts in the matter as agent or broker for such person, who makes any such sale, or who in pursuance of any such sale delivers any certificate or evidence of the sale of any stock, interest or right, or bill or memorandum thereof, as herein required, without having the proper stamps affixed therto with intent to evade the foregoing provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not exceeding $1,000, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both.

5. Produce, sales of, on exchange: Upon each sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell (not including socalled transferred or scratch sales,) any products or merchandise at, or under the rules or usages of, any xchange, or board of trade, or other similar place, for future delivery, for each $100 in value of the merchandise covered by said sale or agreement of sale or agreement to sell, 2 cents, and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof in excess of $100, 2 cents: Provided, That on every sale or agreement of sale or agreement to sell as aforesaid there shall be made and delivered by the seller to the buyer a bill, memorandum, agreement, or other evidence of such sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, to which there shall be affixed a lawful stamp or stamps in value equal to the amount of the tax on such sale: Provided further, That sellers of commodities described herein, having paid the tax provided by this subdivision, may transfer such contracts to a clearing-house corporation or association, and such transfer shall not be deemed to be a sale, or agreement of sale, or an agreement to sell within the provisions of this Act, provided that such transfer shall not vest any beneficial interest in such clearing-house association but shall be made for the sole purpose of enabling such clearing-house association to adjust and balance the accounts of the members of such clearing-house association on their several contracts. Every such bill, memorandum, or other evidence of sale or agreement to sell shall show the date thereof, the name of the seller, the amount of the sale, and the matter or thing to which it refers; and any person liable to pay the tax as herein provided, or anyone who acts in the matter as agent or broker for such person, who makes any such sale or agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, or who, in pursuance of any such sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, delivers any such products or merchandise without a bill, memorandum, or other evidence thereof as herein required, or who delivers such bill, memorandum, or other evidence of sale, or agreement to sell, without having the proper stamps affixed thereto, with intent to evade the foregoing provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not exceeding $1,000 or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both.

No bill, memorandum, agreement, or other evidence of such sale, or agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, in case of cash sales of products or merchandise for immediate or prompt delivery which in good faith are actually intended to be delivered shall be subject to this tax.

6. Drafts or checks (payable otherwise than at sight or on demand) upon their acceptance or delivery within the United States whichever is prior, promissory notes, except bank notes issued for circulation, and for each renewal of the same, for a sum not exceeding $100, 2 cents; and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof, 2 cents.

This subdivision shall not apply to a promissory note secured by the pledge of bonds, or obligations of the United States issued after April 24, 1917, or secured by the pledge of a promissory note which itself is secured by the pledge of such bonds or obligations: Provided, That in either case the par value of such bonds or obligations shall be not less than the amount of such note.

7. Conveyances: Deed, instrument, or writing, whereby any lands, tenements, or other realty sold shall be granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, the purchaser or purchasers, or any other person or persons, by his, her, or their direction, when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining thereon at the time of sale, exceeds $100 and does not exceed $500, 50 cents; and for each additional $500 or fractional part thereof, 50 cents. This subdivision shall not apply to any instrument or writing given to secure a debt.

8. Entry of any goods, wares, or merchandise at any customhouse, either for consumption or warehousing, not exceeding $100 in value, 25 cents; exceeding $100 and not exceeding $500 in value, 50 cents; exceeding $500 in value, $1.

9. Entry for the withdrawal of any goods or merchandise from customs bonded warehouse, 50 cents.

10. Passage ticket, one way or round trip, for each passenger, sold or issued in the United States for passage by any vessel to a port or place not in the United States, Canada, or Mexico, if costing not exceeding $30, $1; costing more than $30 and not exceeding $60, $3; costing more than $60, $5. This subdivision shall not apply to passage tickets costing $10 or less.

11. Proxy for voting at any election for officers, or meeting for the transaction of business, of any corporation, except religious, educational, charitable, fraternal, or literary societies, or public cemeteries, 10 cents.

12. Power of attorney granting authority to do or perform some act for or in behalf of the grantor, which authority is not otherwise vested in the grantee, 25 cents. This subdivision shall not apply to any papers necessary to be used for the collection of claims from the United States or from any State for pensions, back pay, bounty, or for property lost in the military or naval service, or to powers of attorney required in bankruptcy cases.

13. Playing cards: Upon every pack of playing cards containing not more than fifty-four cards, manufactured, or imported, and sold, or removed for consumption or sale, a tax of 8 cents per pack.

14. Parcel-post packages: Upon every parcel or package transported from one point in the United States to another by parcel post on which the postage amounts to 25 cents or more, a tax of 1 cent for each 25 cents or fractional part thereof charged for such transportation, to be paid by the consignor.

No such parcel or package shall be transported until a stamp or stamps representing the tax due shall have been affixed thereto.

15. On each policy of insurance, or certificate, binder, covering note, memorandum, cablegram, letter, or other instrument by whatever name called whereby insurance is made or renewed upon property within the United States (including rents and profits) against peril by sea or on inland waters or in transit on land (including transshipments and storage at termini or way points) or by fire, lightning, tornado, wind-storm, bombardment, invasion, insurrection, or riot, issued to or for or in the name of a domestic corporation or partnership or an individual resident of the United States by any foreign corporation or partnership or any individual not a resident of the United States, when such policy or other instrument is not signed or countersigned by an officer or agent of the insurer in a State, Territory, or district of the United States within which such insurer is authorized to do business, a tax of 3 cents on each dollar, or fractional part thereof of the premium charged: Provided, That policies of reinsurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision.

Any person to or for whom or in whose name any such policy or other instrument is issued, or any solicitor or broker acting for or on behalf of such person in the procurement of any such policy or other instrument, shall affix the proper stamps to such policy or other instrument, and for failure to affix such stamps with intent to evade the tax shall, in addition to other penalties provided therefor, pay a fine of double the amount of the tax.

TITLE XII.—TAX ON EMPLOYMENT OF CHILD LABOR.

SEC. 1200. That every person (other than a bona fide boys' or girls' canning club recognized by the Agricultural Department of a State and of the United States) operating (a) any mine or quarry situated in the United States in which children under the age of sixteen years have been employed or permitted to work during any portion of the taxable year; or (b) any mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment situated in the United States in which children under the age of fourteen years have been employed or permitted to work, or children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen have been employed or permitted to work more than eight hours in any day or more than six days in any week, or after the hour of seven o'clock post meridian, or before the hour of six o'clock ante meridian, during any portion of the taxable year, shall pay for each taxable year, in addition to all other taxes imposed by law, an excise tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the entire net profits received or accrued for such year from the sale or disposition of the product of such mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment.

SEC. 1201. That in computing net profits under the provisions of this title, for the purpose of the tax there shall be allowed as deductions from the gross amount received or accrued for the taxable year from the sale or disposition of such products manufactured within the United States the following items:

(a) The cost of raw materials entering into the production;

(b) Running expenses, including rentals, cost of repairs, and maintenance, heat, power, insurance, management, and a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensations for personal services actually rendered, and for depreciation;

(c) Interest paid within the taxable year on debts or loans contracted to meet the needs of the business, and the proceeds of which have been actually used to meet such needs;

(d) Taxes of all kinds paid during the taxable year with respect to the business or property relating to the production; and

(e) Losses actually sustained within the taxable year in connection with the business of producing such products, including losses from fire, flood, storm, or other casualties, and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

Sec. 1202. That if any such person during any taxable year or part thereof, whether under any agreement, arrangement, or understanding or otherwise, sells or disposes of any product of such mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment at less than the fair market price obtainable therefore either (a) in such manner as directly or indirectly to benefit such person or any person directly or indirectly interested in the business of such person; or (b) with intent to cause such benefit; the gross amount received or accrued for such year or part thereof from the sale or disposition of such product shall be taken to be the amount which would have been received or accrued from the sale or disposition of such product if sold at the fair market price.

Sec. 1203. (a) That no person subject to the provisions of this title shall be liable for the tax herein imposed if the only employment or permission to work which but for this section would subject him to the tax, has been of a child as to whom such person has in good faith procured at the time of employing such child or permitting him to work, and has since in good faith relied upon and kept on file a certificate, issued in such form, under such conditions and by such persons as may be prescribed by a board consisting of the Secretary, the Commissioner, and the Secretary of Labor, showing the child to be of such age as not to subject such person to the tax imposed by this title. Any person who knowingly makes a false statement or presents false evidence in or in relation to any such certificate or application therefor shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100, nor more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

In any State designated by such board an employment certificate or other similar paper as to the age of the child, issued under the laws that State, and not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, shall have the same force and effect as a certificate herein provided for.

(b) The tax imposed by this title shall not be imposed in the case of any person who proves to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the only employment or permission to work which but for this section would subject him to the tax, has been of a child employed or permitted to work under a mistake of fact as to the age of such child, and without intention to evade the tax.

Sec. 1204. That on or before the first day of the third month following the close of each taxable year, a true and accurate return under oath shall be made by each person subject to the provisions of this title to the collector for the district in which such person has his principal office or place of business, in such form as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe, setting forth specifically the gross amount of income received or accrued during such year from the sale or disposition of the product of any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment, in which children have been employed subjecting him to the tax imposed by this title, and from the total thereof deducting the aggregate items of allowance authorized by this title, and such other particulars as to the gross receipts and items of allowance as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may require.

Sec. 1205. That all such returns shall be transmitted forthwith by the collector to the Commissioner, who shall, as soon as practicable, assess the tax found due and notify the person making such return of the amount of tax for which such person is liable, and such person shall pay the tax to the collector on or before thirty days from the date of such notice.

Sec. 1206. That for the purposes of this Act the Commissioner, or any other person duly authorized by him, shall have authority to enter and inspect at any time any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment. The Secretary of Labor, or any person duly authorized by him, shall, for the purpose of complying with a request of the Commissioner to make such an inspection, have like authority, and shall make report to the Commissioner of inspections made under such authority in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Any person who refuses or obstructs entry or inspection authorized by this section shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 1207. That as used in this title the term "taxable year" shall have the same meaning as provided for the purposes of income tax in section 200. The first taxable year for the purposes of this title shall be the period between sixty days after the passage of this Act and December 31, 1919, both inclusive, or such portion of such period as is included within the fiscal year (as defined in section 200) of the taxpayer.

TITLE XIII.—GENERAL ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.

[This title fixes the duties, salaries, etc., of the administrative force of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and prescribes methods for the collection of the various taxes.]

TITLE XIV.—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Sec. 1,400. (a) That the following parts of Acts are hereby repealed, subject to the limitations provided in subdivision (b);

(1) The following titles of the Revenue Act of 1916:

Title I. (called "Income Tax");

Title II. (called "Estate Tax");

Title III. (called "Munitions Manufacturers' Tax"), as amended;

Title IV. (called "Miscellaneous Taxes").

(2) The following parts of the Act entitled "An Act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the army and navy and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917:

Title III. (called "Estate Tax");

Section 402 (called "Returns of Dividends").

(3) The following titles of the Revenue Act of 1917:

Title I. (called "War Income Tax");

Title II. (called "War Excess Profits Tax");

Title III. (called "War Tax on Beverages");

Title IV. (called "War Tax on Cigars, Tobacco, and Manufactures Thereof");

Title V (called "War Tax on Facilities Furnished by Public Utilities, and Insurance");

Title VI (called "War Excise Taxes");

Title VII (called "War Tax on Admissions and Dues");

Title VIII (called "War Stamp Taxes");

Title IX (called "War Estate Tax");

Title X (called "Administrative Provisions");

Title XII (called "Income-Tax Amendments").

(b) Such parts of Acts shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of all taxes which have accrued thereunder, and for the imposition and collection of all penalties or forfeitures which have accrued and may accrue in relation to any such taxes, and except that the unexpended balance of any appropriation heretorore made and now available for the administration of any such part of an Act shall be available for the administration of this Act or the corresponding provision thereof: Provided, That, except as otherwise provided in this Act, no taxes shall be collected under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917, or Title I or II of the Revenue Act of 1917, in respect to any period after December 31, 1917: Provided further, That the assessment and collection of all estate taxes, and the imposition and collection of all penalties or forfeitures, which have accrued under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Act entitled "An Act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the Army and Navy and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, or Title IX of the Revenue Act of 1917, shall be according to the provisions of Title IV of this Act. In the case of any tax imposed by any part of an Act herein repealed, if there is a tax imposed by this Act in lieu thereof, the provision imposing such tax shall remain in force until the corresponding tax under this Act takes effect under the provisions of this Act.

Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917 shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of the income tax in Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands, except as may be otherwise provided by their respective legislatures.

Sec. 1401. That section 1100 of the Revenue Act of 1917 is hereby repealed, to take effect on July 1, 1919, and thereafter the rate of postage on all mail matter of the first class shall be the same as the rate in force on October 2, 1917: Provided, That letters written and mailed by soldiers, sailors, and marines assigned to duty in a foreign country engaged in the present war may be mailed free of postage, subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Postmaster General.

Sec. 1402. That if any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this act, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment has been rendered.

"Sec. 903. That this act may be cited as the 'Revenue Act of 1916.'"

Sec. 1404. That the Revenue Act of 1917 is hereby amended by adding at the end there of a section to read as follows:

"Sec. 1303. That this act may be cited as the 'Revenue Act of 1917.'"

Sec. 1405. That this act may be cited as the "Revenue Act of 1918."

Sec. 1406. That all persons serving in the military or naval forces of the United States during the present war who have since April 6, 1917, resigned or been discharged under honorable conditions (or in the case of reservists, been placed on inactive duty), or who at any time hereafter (but not later than the termination of the current enlistment or term of service) in the case of the enlisted personnel and female nurses, or within one year after the termination of the present war in the case of officers, may resign or be discharged under honorable conditions (or, in the case of reservists, be placed on inactive duty), shall be paid, in addition to all other amounts due them in pursuance of law, $60 each.

This amount shall not be paid (1) to any person who though appointed or inducted into the military or naval forces on or prior to November 11, 1918, had not reported for duty at his station on or prior to such date; or (2) to any person who has already received one month's pay under the provisions of section 9 of the Act entitled "An Act to Authorize the President to Increase Temporarily the Military Establishment of the United States," approved May 18, 1917; or (3) to any person who is entitled to retired pay; or (4) to the heirs or legal representatives of any person entitled to any payment under this section who has died or may die before receiving such payment. In the case of any person who subsequent to separation from the service as above specified has been appointed or inducted into the military of naval forces of the United States and has been or is again separated from the service as above specified, only one payment of $60 shall be made.

The above amount, in the case of separation from the service on or prior to the passage of this Act, shall be paid as of this Act, and in the case of separation soon as practicable after the passage from the service after the passage of this Act shall be paid at the time of such separation.

The amounts herein provided for shall be paid out of the appropriations for "Pay of the Army" and "Pay of the Navy," respectively, by such disbursing officers as may be designated by the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy.

The Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy respectively shall make all regulations necessary for the enforcement of the provisions of this section.

Sec. 1407. That the provisions of section 5 of the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, relating to intoxicating liquors in interstate commerce, as amended by section 1110 of an Act entitled "An Act to provide revenue to defray war expenses, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1917, be, and the same are hereby, made applicable to the District of Columbia.

Sec. 1408. That every person who on or after April 6, 1917, has entered into any contract, undertaking, or agreement with the United States, or with any department, bureau, officer, commission, board, or agency under the United States or acting in its behalf, or with any other person having contract relations with the United States, for the performance of any work or the supplying of any materials or property for the use of or for the account of the United States, shall, within thirty days after a request of the Commissioner therefor, file with the Commissioner a true and correct copy of every such contract, undertaking, or agreement.

Whoever fails to comply with such request of the Commissioner shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

The Commissioner shall (when not violative of the technical military or naval secrets of the Government) have access to all information and data relating to any such contract, undertaking, or agreement, in the possession, control, or custody of any department, bureau, board, agency, officer, or commission of the United States and may call upon any such department, bureau, board, agency, officer or commission for a full statement and description of any allowance for amortization, obsolescence, depreciation or loss, or of any valuation, appraisal, adjustment or final settlement, made in pursuance of any such contract, undertaking, or agreement.

Passed the House of Representatives September 20, 1918.

Attest: SOUTH TRIMBLE,
Clerk.

WANTED—GENERAL MERCHANDISE MAIL ORDER MAN WHO CAN COMMAND BIG SALARY

We want a general merchandise man thoroughly familiar with and competent to take complete charge of merchandising a mail order business. We are not interested in man who cannot command big salary—one with wide mail order experience, who is either now receiving or has offers of big salary as head merchandising man with mail order house. The proper man, and not the salary wanted, will determine the selection. All applications must be made in writing and will be held in strictest confidence.

FESS OUT FOR SPEAKER.

Triangular Contest Promises to be a Lively One.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Representative S. D. Fess, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, will announce tomorrow his candidacy for Speaker. It has long been expected that Mr. Fess would enter the field, although friends have advised him to give his support to Gillett and assure the defeat of Mann.

With his entrance into the field the Republicans will be plunged into a lively contest. Mr. Fess represents a progressive element of the party and, it is said, will receive strong support from the prohibition forces, which are interested in having drastic legislation enacted to enforce the prohibition amendment.

Mr. Fess has received assurance of support from his own State, Ohio, and from the Middle and Far West.

Better 'Ole Songs

FROM the trench scene of that great show, "The Better 'Ole," at the Cort Theatre—to every theatre, restaurant and home—has come this beautiful song, now sung by everybody, everywhere. It's a blend of lovable sentiment and charming melody that just fixes itself in your heart and stays there. Get it for your piano, talking machine or player piano.

MISSES CASSEL AND WAGNER DEFEAT MISS GOSS AND MRS. WOOD IN TENNIS BATTLE

WOMEN NET STARS WIN EASY VICTORY

TO PLAY FINALS TODAY

Miss Cassel and Miss Wagner Are Winners in One of Best Matches Seen in Tournament.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleonora Sears won their way into the finals of the women's cup doubles at the Heights Casino yesterday afternoon by winning an easy victory from Mrs. W. H. Prichard and Mrs. D. C. Mills. The path to the finals was not so smooth for Miss Clare Cassel and Miss Marie Wagner, for in defeating Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Rawson Wood they had a battle on their hands every minute, and it was only after a hard fought match that they finally came through to a victory at 6—3, 8—6.

The finals in the doubles will be played this afternoon. The semi-finals in the women's cup singles will be played this morning when Miss Bjurstedt will oppose Mrs. de Forest Candee and Miss Eleanor Goss will play Miss Marie Wagner. As these events bring together some of the best women racquet wielders in the game, the competion is sure to be interesting.

It would require the most superior tennis to oppose successfully a combination as strong as Miss Bjurstedt and Miss Sears, so the downfall of Mrs. Prichard and Mrs. Mills was expected. The Norse girl and her Boston partner smashed their way to victory with a vigorous game which was difficult to battle against. Both are such accomplished and skillful experts of the court that their performance was a delight to witness. In the first set, Mrs. Prichard and Mrs. Mills managed to win a game, but in the second set the other combination worked so smoothly that the match ended with a love set. The winners used a variety of tactics which kept their opponents bewildered. They had all the tricks of the game at their command and brought them into play at will.

The defeat of Miss Goss and Mrs. Wood, however, did not come until after one of the best matches that has ever been seen in a women's tournament at the Casino courts. There was a time in the second set when they had the upper hand and were going at such a terrific pace that it looked as if Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel were facing a sure defeat. Miss Goss's service was never more effective and in this second set Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel were at a decided disadvantage when they tried to meet the terrific attack. Miss Goss's work was easily the feature of the match.

This pair lost the first set 6—3. Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel got away to an excellent start and carried the play along so swiftly that they had their opponents 4—1 on games. Miss Goss and Miss Wood managed to halt the attack temporarily, but their defense was not sustained enough to hold off defeat.

The second set, however, saw Miss Goss and Mrs. Wood going at top speed and at such a pace that Misses Wagner and Cassel could not diagnose the play. By a most dazzling sort of a rally, Miss Goss and her partner had their opponents 5—1 on games and victory was easily within their grasp. Miss Goss had the service in the seventh game and her drives were just as swift and difficult as ever to return. Mrs. Wood, playing close to the net, missed a couple of strokes and the complexion of the game changed. It was in this game that Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel were first able to break through Miss Goss's service and this proved to be the turning point of the match.

Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel immediately took advantage of this "break" and settled down to a steady hard game. They directed their attack against Mrs. Wood whenever possible, and when once they had their opponents on the run they piled up point after point with alarming rapidity. Miss Goss and Mrs. Wood were unable to check the attack and it became more aggressive in each game. They managed to carry the score to a second deuce at 6—all and then Miss Cassel sent over some brilliant passing drives and the set and match were won.

The summaries:

Heights Casino Women's Cup Singles.—Fourth Round—Miss Eleanor Goss defeated Miss Helene Pollak, 6—2, 6—1.

Heights Casino Women's Cup Doubles.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Eleonora Sears defeated Mrs. W. H. Prichard and Mrs. D. C. Mills, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Claire Cassel and Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Rawson Wood, 6—3, 8—6.

BALK AT NEW CONTRACTS.

McGraw and Huggins Confer with Holdouts.

That familiar personage of baseball's off season, the holdout, is already making himself heard, and with Manager McGraw out in Higginsport, Ohio, trying to talk sense to Slim Sallee and Manager Huggins of the Yanks deliberating with Derrill Pratt and Frank Baker, the annual argument about major league salaries is under way.

It is expected that the loudest of the holdouts will be silenced, however, when the managers get a chance to explain to them the difference between the contracts this season and last. As the club owners explain it, the difference is simply this: The players will be paid a monthly salary for the playing season. This monthly salary in the majority of cases is just as large as it always has been, but the season will be one month shorter.

A player who received $500 or $600 a month for the last few seasons will get the same this year, only there will be one month salary chopped off on account of shaving the season from 154 to 140 games. The total amount of the salary of course will be smaller than last season and this is the fact that makes the players balk. It will take some diplomacy and an unlimited amoun of argumentation in many cases to make the baseball players understand the situation, but in the end it is believed that they will see that the position taken by the club owners is sound.

Among the most notable of the holdouts thus far is Babe Ruth of Boston, who says that he will demand a higher salary than last season—thatis, he will demand more for five months work this season than he got for six month s work in the past. The club owners have a lot of arguments to place before the holdouts, nevertheless, and they expect that these will be effective in the end. The ball players who look ahead a little will see that, if baseball regains its former popularity this season, and there is every indication that it will, it will mean greater things for them in the season of 1920.

The club owners knew that a policy of retrenchment which would lessen the players' salary for the season would cause no end of trouble, and they decided to make the season shorter. The retrenchment comes in the length of the season and not in the monthly pay envelope. So in reality the ball player this season is going to receive just as much for his services in proportion to the length of the actual playing season as he has in the past.

Ernie Shore, the tall lanky pitcher who came to the Yanks in the big deal with the Boston Red Sox, was in town yesterday and called on the club officials. Shore has been an Ensign in the navy, and outside of pitching a couple of games for his service team, he played no baseball last season. Shore is in fine shape, and says he is anxious for the Spring training season to start.

Shore's contract was sent to his home in East Bend, N. C., but he has not yet received it. He had a short talk with Colonel Huston of the New York Club, and as the two smiled when parting, it is believed that Shore and the club will have no difficulty in coming to terms. Shore should rank with Bob Shawkey as one of the mainstays of Huggins's pitching staff. He has by no means reached the top of his playing powers, and he anticipates a better season than he has ever had before.

Another one of the Boston players who came to the Yanks in this same deal, Duffy Lewis, has left his home in California and is expected here next week. Lewis will talk over terms with the club and there is no doubt that the slugging outfielder will be on deck when the Yanks pull out for Florida.

Eddie Cicotte Signs Up.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Eddie Cicotte, veteran pitcher with the Chicago Americans, signed a contract for the 1919 season tonight.

YALE CLUB LEADS SQUASH TOURNEY

Standing of the Clubs.

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Yale	4	1	.800
Harvard	3	2	.600
Columbia	2	3	.400
Princeton-Squash	1	4	.200

Yale Club and Columbia Club squash teams were the victors yesterday in the metropolitan championship squash tennis tournament under the auspices of the National Squash Tennis Association. The Eli contingent defeated the Harvard Club quintet on the latter's court by a score of 4 matches to 1. This victory placed the Yale men in the lead in the chase for the championship, with a record of four victories and one setback. Columbia Club, on the Blue and White court, scored in similar fashion over the Princeton Squash Club, the score being 4 matches to 1.

Lieutenant H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Squash Club dropped his army duties long enough to compete for his club and avert the humiliation of a whitewashing. Lieutenant Mixsell, who is the Class B squash tennis champion, engaged Lieutenant Jay Gould, former court tennis title holder, in what proved to be the only match lost by the Columbia Club. This was Lieutenant Mixsell's first competitive appearance in a year, while Lieutenant Gould was participating in his first squash match in two years. The Class B champion showed flashes of his known form and won, after dropping the first game, by 7—15, 15—11, and 15—8.

Lieutenant Gould displayed surprising ability, and forced his rival to the limit before bowing in defeat. The Columbia Club player played a strong game in the opening set, driving the ball hard and forcing the play continually and effectively. This game went to Lieutenant Gould by 15—7.

W. Adams produced a surprise in the match between Yale and Harvard when he scored ower J. W. Burden, the Crimson leader, by scores of 18—15, 15—6. This match was replete with set games. Donald McKay defeated J. V. Onatavia, Jr., of Harvard, in their match, by 15—7, 18—15, but narrowly escaped serious injury in accomplishing his success. In the second set, when McKay was standing in the centre of the court, he was struck in the eye by the ball. Onatavia played brilliantly in this game, but lost after a series of errors and erratic plays.

Prentice Sanger won the only match for Harvard when he defeated J. A. Vietor by 17—14, 15—8.

The summaries:

YALE CLUB vs. HARVARD CLUB.

D. McKay, Yale Club, defeated J. V. Onatavia, Jr., Harvard Club, 15—7, 18—15; L. Platt, Yale Club, defeated F. H. Davis, Harvard Club, 18—13, 15—11; P. Sanger, Harvard Club, defeated J. A. Vietor, Yale Club, 17—14, 15—8; H. W. Carhart, Yale Club, defeated Captain E. A. E. Ellis Harvard Club, 16—17, 18—14, 15—4; W. Adams, Yale Club, defeated J. W. Burden, Harvard Club, 18—15, 15—6.

Score—Yale Club, 4 matches, Harvard Club, 1.

COLUMBIA CLUB vs. PRINCETON-SQUASH CLUB.

R. L. Strebeigh, Columbia Club, defeated Dr. A. D. Mittendorf, Princeton-Squash Club, 15—12, 18—14; Lieutenant F. Kidde, Columbia Club, defeated H. Tobey, Princeton-Squash Club, 15—6, 11—15, 15—9; Lieutenant H. R. Mixsell, Princeton-Squash Club, defeated Lieutenant Jay Gould, Columbia Club, 7—15, 15—11, 15—8; H. D. Buckley, Columbia Club, defeated J. A. Cruse, Princeton Squash Club, 15—9, 15—12; Fred S. Keeler, Columbia Club, defeated H. Sterns, Princeton-Squash Club, 15—5, 15—7.

APPROVE SERVICE GAME.

Army and Navy Elevens May Play at Polo Grounds.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 6.—Information which is credited at the Naval Academy has been received here that the heads of the departments at Washington have approved the playing of the football game between the elevens of the naval and military academies at the New York Polo Grounds on Nov. 29 next. This is a week later than the date reserved on the schedules of the two institutions, and will make possible the playing of another game by each.

It is also believed that the baseball game will be played between the two on May 31 and that the midshipmen will be permitted to send a team to the tournament of the Inter-collegiate Fencing Association and crews to the American Henley.

ANOTHER JUNE GOLF DATE.

Another June date was added to that already overcrowded month when the Connecticut Golf Association at its annual meeting decided to hold its championship tournament on June 26, 27, and 28 over the links of the Shuttle Meadow Club. This course is near New Britain. The dates conflict with the Apawamis invitation meeting, but, as most of Connecticut is outside of the metropolitan fifty-five-mile limit, it really makes little difference.

The 1918 officals were re-elected, as follows: President—Henry H. De Loss of Brooklawn; Vice President—James T. Soutter of Greenwich; Secretary-Treasurer Edwin Morris of Hartford.

Word has been received that Mike Brady, the Massachusetts open champion, who rumor had it was going to locate with a club in the metropolitan district, has signed up with the Oakley Country Club, the organization he was with before going to the Coast. Brady's name was mentioned in connection with the Hollywood berth, and it was said that an offer was also made by the Atlanta Athletic Club.

ELEVEN FOR BARNARD FIVE.

Downs Berkeley-Irving Basket Ball Team by 21 to 6.

A well-sustained offensive in the second half gave the Barnard School basket ball team a one-sided victory over Berkeley-Irving School's quintet on the former's court yesterday, by a score of 21 to 6. This victory gave the Barnard School team its eleventh success in twelve games. The Barnard contingent swept aside the defensive efforts of Berkeley-Irving in the closing half and piled up points in quick succession.

ERASMUS BEATS MARQUAND.

Flatbush Five Wins by Score of 19 to 14.

Erasmus Hall High School's basket ball team defeated Marquand yesterday at Erasmus court by the score of 19 to 14. Goebel, for Erasmus, was in great form, and practically won the game for his team. At the end of the first half Marquand led by 11 to 9. Camidon, for the latter, was the only substitute to enter he game.

SWIM MEET CALLED OFF.

C. C. N. Y. and Princeton Forced to Postpone Contests.

Eli Friedman, manager of the swimming team of the College of the City of New York, has called off the dual smimming met and water-polo game with Princeton, which was scheduled to take place in the Princeton natatorium tonight. The postponement was found necessary because the Faculty Committee on athletics would not give their sanction to an intercollegiate contest which was scheduled while examinations are being held.

UNGER SAVES GAME BY A GREAT RALLY

Class C Billiard Champion Pulls Match with Neustadt from Fire.

Ferdinand A. Unger of Newark, N. J., national Class C amateur 18.2 balkline billiard champion, turned victory into defeat last night in his game against Joseph Neustadt, the young Brooklyn amateur, in the national Class C 18.2 balkline title tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. The score at the end of forty-five innings of such tense and spectacular play as has seldom been surpassed in a championship tournament of this class favored Unger by 150 to 144. Unger averaged 3 15-45, while his rival for the title averaged 3 12-44.

A run of 39 points in his thirtieth inning saved his title for Unger. This brilliant cluster, which equaled the high run record of the tournament, also made by Unger, placed the titleholder within striking distance of his formidable opponent, with the score at 118 to 102 in Neustadt's favor. Five innings later Unger gathered in 23 points in another impressive display of form and took the lead by 137 to 125.

The titleholder never relinquished his advantage thereafter, although a run of ten buttons in his forty-third inning placed Neustadt within two points of Unger, the score being 145 to 143.

The contest was witnessed by a crowd which taxed the capacity of the Lawler Brothers' Academy. Some venturesome spectators utilized ladders, placed at the back of the seating facilities, so that they could glance over the heads of their more fortunate companions and watch the match.

Neustadt got off well. A run of eighteen in his sixth inning gave him 22 points to Unger's 6 for the same period. In his tenth inning Neustadt collected 19 points, increasing his margin to 44 to 6. The Brooklyn youngster continued his brilliant play, leading at the sixteenth inning by 72 to 23, and at the twenty-sixth inning, by 111 to 63.

Then came Unger's victorious rally, which started in the thirtieth inning with his cluster of 39, continued when he took the lead with a run of 23 points in the thirty-fifth inning, and kept him in front to the finish.

The result of the game creates a tie between Unger and Neustadt, who have each won five contests and lost one. They will cross cues this evening in the deciding match of the tournament.

The score:

F. A. Unger—3 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 1 5 7 2 6 0 4 1 6 11 0 0 1 2 0 0 0 39 0 11 0 1 23 2 3 0 0 0 2 9 1 1 4—150. Average—3 15-45. High runs—39 and 23.

Cannefax Cuts Otis's Lead.

Robert Cannefax of St. Louis, former three-cushion carrom billiard champion, defeated C. S. Otis of Brooklyn last night in the second block of their 150 point three-cushion match at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn by a score of 61 to 50 in seventy innings. This victory enabled Cannefax to decrease his rival's lead by eleven points. Cannefax made a high run of 7, while Otis had two runs of 5 points. The total score now favors Otis by 100 to 93.

Spence Wins by a Single Point.

D. L. Spence defeated James Cosgrove last night in the Class A three-cushion billiard tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Thum's Academy in a closely contested game by the score of 50 to 49 in ninety-seven innings. Spence made a high run of 3, while his opponent's highest was 4.

YALE ELEVEN LOSES GATES.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 6.—Yale has lost Artmas Gates as football Captain for next season's football team. He has another season in athletics, but has decided to return from military service at once and to complete his college course this Spring. He will arrive at college in about three weeks. Another star of the famous 1916 eleven who has decided to come at once to college and finish his course this Spring, instead of taking another year and playing football next season, is Howard Baldridge who, with Gates, played tackle three seasons ago.

Gates's decision will probably cause the candidate for the Yale team to decide to elect a Captain at their meeting tomorrow night. Jim Braden, Tim Callahan and Chester La Roche of the 1916 eleven have decided to remain in college next Fall. Spring plans will be announced by Professor Robert Corwin, head of the Board of Athletic Control, at tomorrow night's meeting. Spring practice will start in April

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Eddie Collins of the Chicago Americans, who enlisted in the marines and was stationed at the Quartermaster's Depot here during the war, has been discharged from the service, it became known today. He will join the White Sox when they go to their Spring training grounds.

FLETCHER SIGNS CONTRACT.

Arthur Fletcher, the veteran shortstop of the Giants, has signed his 1919 contract with the New York Club, it was announced last night by Secretary John B. Foster. Manager John McGraw, who is making a flying visit through the West to round up a number of prospective holdouts, stopped off in Collinsville, Ill., the home of Fletcher, and signed the player.

Fletcher will be Captain of the Giants this year. He was not among the holdouts and no trouble was anticipated in getting his signature to the contract. He is reported to be anxious for the training season to begin.

RECOGNIZING THE BOLSHEVIKI.

The Russian Soviet "Government" has accepted, which is the same thing as saying that Mr. LENINE has accepted, the invitation of the Supreme Council at Paris to send its representatives to Princes' Islands, there to meet representatives of the Entente Powers for conference concerning the affairs of Russia. No other government group in Russia has accepted the invitation. The Supreme Council, according to reports, will send a "joint committee" of two representatives from each of the five great Powers to meet the Soviet envoys. It is hardly necessary to point out that this is equivalent to a recognition of Mr. LENINE and the Soviets as the Government of Russia. It is a surprising decision, in view of the origin and character of the Soviet Government, it is a decision not easy to be explained on any theory of morality, of justice, or of humanity. It will be said that the Supreme Council is very credulous, very hopeful, or that it has information not disclosed to the rest of the world. Putting hypotheses aside, it will be well to consider the actual state of affairs.

The Soviet Government imposes conditions, it makes promises. The extent to which it will be able to meet the Entente Powers "will depend upon its military position in relation to that of the Entente Governments, and it must be emphasized that its position improves every day." The Soviet envoys, therefore, will go to Princes' Islands as conquerors to confer with Powers their troops have repulsed in the field. There may be some dispute about that, but this phrase can be passed by as one employed to satisfy the pride of Moscow and to carry the proposal to accept the invitation. The Soviet envoys will confer with all the Entente Powers, with some of them separately, "or even with some of the Russian political groups."

The promises are alluring. The Soviet Government will guarantee the payment of interest on "its debts" by exportation of "stipulated quantities of raw materials." It is declared in the press dispatch summarizing the terms of the acceptance that Mr. LENINE's Government will "acknowledge financial obligations regarding the creditors of Russia of Entente nationality." That would include all of Russia's external loan, it would cover the vast debt she owes to France. It would be natural to suppose that this promise may have had some weight in inclining the French Government to assent to the conference.

In view of recent reports that LENINE is more and more inclining to cease his war upon the capitalistic class and come to an understanding with the bourgeoisie, the next promise is interesting. It is declared that the Bolshevist Government is willing "to place concessions in mines, forests, and so forth, at the disposal of citizens of the Entente," with this important proviso, however, that "the social and economic order of the Soviet Government is not affected by internal disorders connected with these concessions." That is, the Soviet Government can guarantee no protection to foreign capital lured into Russian investments, for the development of Russian resources, by the pleasing prospects of peace, civil order, and good business under a Government having at its head a man of Mr. LENINE's well-known social and political beliefs.

It cannot be that the promises and guarantees of the Soviet Government have induced the Supreme Council to propose and enter upon this conference. The promise of Moscow is worthless, it can guarantee nothing whatever. The Supreme Council must have had some other motive. If we examine the terms of the invitation, some hint of the nature of the motive may be discovered. It is possible that, quite at its wits' end as to a problem so complex and difficult that it seems to defy solution, the Council may have felt that this was the most promising road to peace in Russia, to cessation of hostilities between troops of the Allied Powers and the Bolsheviki, to the abandonment of the settled policy of pillage and assassination by which the Bolsheviki have thus far sustained themselves, to the restoration of something like order in Russia, to the establishment of conditions out of which ultimately a sane and acceptable government might be created. The invitation declared it to be the "single object" of the Associated Powers "to help the Russian people, not to interfere with them." "It is clear to them," that is to the members of the Council, "that the troubles and distrust of the Russian people will steadily increase, hunger and privation of every kind become more and more acute, more and more widespread, and more and more impossible to relieve unless order is restored and normal conditions of labor, trade, and transportation once more created." Further, the representatives of the Associated Powers are "keenly alive to the fact that Europe and the world cannot be at peace if Russia is not." This was often and clearly pointed out many months ago; the Supreme Council was late in reaching that conclusion. Therefore, the invitation is extended to "every organized group" now attempting to exercise political or military authority in Russia to send representatives to Princes' Islands, "provided in the meantime there is a truce of arms among the parties invited." Although the Soviet answer, so far as it has been transmitted here, makes no allusion to the cessation of hostilities, it must be assumed that that condition will be complied with.

Except for this conference, and whatever it may promise or perform, the Allies have abandoned Russia. They promised help to the Russian people, they did not keep their promise, for aid was given only in a half-hearted, and, as the result proves, wholly ineffective way. Save for what the small force at Archangel was able to do, and that was little, European Russia has been abandoned to Mr. LENINE, Mr. TROTZKY, and the Soviets. They have murdered thousands of Russians, they have stolen all the property they could lay their hands on, nobody can say how many Russians have starved or will starve under their administration of affairs, the business of transportation and production has been completely disorganized, Russians have lived in a condition of anarchy, under a rule of mass and individual terrorism. It is a condition to inspire horror and pity, we hope, too, some remorse and self-condemnation for having permitted the people of a great nation to suffer these torments. We have been told from Paris that the Allied Governments will send no more military aid to the Russians. That decision having been taken, for reasons not disclosed, it may be that the Supreme Council turns to the Princes' Islands conference as a possible means of repairing past errors and neglect, as to a path, tortuous and difficult as it may seem, which may lead to better behavior on the part of the Bolsheviki, to a cessation of murder and rapine, to some approach to peace in Russia. Huge inconsistencies, manifest abandonments of principle, are involved in this decision, but in the big politics of the world it is customary to forget much, to ignore much.

ADJUSTMENTS IN THE NEAR EAST

The Peace Conference may seem to be moving slowly in some ways, but it is succeeding very well in clearing up differences among the Allies. The stopping of hostilities between Poles and Czechs a few days ago was an instance of what it could do by taking a firm stand, and the dispatches of yesterday pointing to a speedy and harmonious settlement of the difficulties between Italy and Greece gave an example of the possibilities of friendly agreement. Mr. VENIZELOS seems to have made a very great impression by the presentation of his country's claims to the Conference, and Mr. ORLANDO has expressed his sympathy with Greece's claim for national reunion, which should naturally appeal to an Italy that has just reconquered the last of her own Irredenta from the Hapsburgs. Apparently the two interested parties are on the way to reaching an agreement themselves by negotiation, always the most satisfactory way to adjust differences of this sort, and there can be no ground for disapproval by the Conference if an arrangement is made which suits the Italians and the Greeks.

There is no insuperable obstacle in the way of an adjustment, for the Greek interest in Northern Epirus, the Aegean Islands, and Asia Minor is racial, the Italian strategic and economic. Mr. VENIZELOS has given plentiful evidence that he recognizes the validity of these Italian claims, while holding out firmly for the right of the Greek people to belong to the Greek State. It now appears that Italian possession of Valona will meet the strategic demand in Northern Epirus, leaving the regions to the east and southeast, where the Greeks predominate, to go with Greece. It is indicated that Italy will allow the Greeks of the Dodecanesus to join Greece, and will raise no obstacle to the union of the Greeks of Asia Minor with their free kinsmen; on the other hand, the Greek Government will recognize Italian economic influence further east in the peninsula.

The exact distribution of Anatolian territories can hardly have been decided on as yet, and there is reason to doubt the accuracy of some of the forecasts. But there is plenty of room to meet the legitimate Italian claim for economic advantage to compensate that which England will gain in Mesopotamia and France in Syria, without the dismemberment of another civilized people which has hailed the downfall of the Turk as the long-awaited opportunity for national redintegration.

A CROWDER CENSUS.

In his second annual report of the selective service system Provost Marshal General CROWDER recommends that the draft machinery be used to take the decennial census next year. This, of course, must not be confounded with the special statistical inquiries which are carried on between the periodical counts of population, the results being published from time to time. It requires years to complete the statistical work and put it into volumes for distribution. In 1910 the enumerators of population were allowed fifteen days in cities to finish their count and obtain personal descriptions, and thirty days in smaller towns and the country districts. They began to make their rounds in April, and it was not until Dec. 10 that the Director announced the population of the Continental United States as 91,972,266, and with Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico 93,402,151. General CROWDER with his draft procedure registered 13,000,000 persons in a single day and 24,000,000 in four days, with a classification of their domestic and industrial status. He concludes, therefore, that the enumeration figures of the decennial census could be tallied with the machinery now available in a few days and published promptly.

It must be remembered, however, that the selective service law required men of military age to present themselves before the 3,500 registration boards throughout the country. Penalties were provided for failure to appear. Fully informed of their duty, and in most cases stimulated by appeals to their patriotism, there were comparatively few delinquents among the men affected by the emergency law. The decennial census calls for the counting of every man, woman, and child, including very considerable numbers who have to be sought patiently by the enumerators. Evasion is not uncommon, and the ignorant often refuse to answer questions. Presentation in person before registration boards, as under the draft system, would have to be limited, apparently, to heads of families and to others of responsible age, an arrangement that could hardly fail to prove unsatisfactory. But General CROWDER might devise a system that would bring out the last individual to be counted. His draft plan was a marvel of effective simplicity. Reviewing the results of the enrollment of men of military age for service, he says in his new report that they "would be instantly rejected as impossible did not the actual facts stand as irrefutable testimonials of their accomplishment."

Our census methods have not been simple, direct, and expeditious. In fact, the system has been cumbrous, expensive, and handicapped by politics. The selective service enumeration has shown what can be done when people make up their minds to be counted quickly and enter into the spirit of the thing. The decennial census could be speeded up. Why should not General CROWDER be detailed to devise a new system based upon his remarkable success with the draft? He will not reach the age of retirement for about four years. Given a free hand, he would undoubtedly save time not only in effecting the enumeration of people in the United States and its possessions, but in completing the elaborate statistical inquiries that now drag on almost interminably.

RAILWAY PRINCIPLES.

Mr. WARBURG's address before the Chamber of Commerce gains weight from the fact that the railway situation, on which he spoke yesterday, is now in a condition needing betterment as much as our banking and currency situation did when he previously addressed the same audience. In 1911 there was the same Babel of financial reform as now there is regarding the rescue of the railways from excess of zeal on the part of the regulators and reformers. There is no need to recall the leading part Mr. WARBURG took in promoting the Federal Reserve system, and afterward in administering it.

His conspicuous success is due to the fact that he was firmly grounded in financial principles and stood for them against those who proposed all sorts of happy thoughts and ingenious devices to get around obstacles instead of removing them from the thoroughfare. He now proposes the same procedure for the railways. Others have plans. He has principles, and, as it chances, the principles are those about which he is most competent to speak and of which the railways are most in need. If the finances of the railways were sound, or were made sound, all other betterment of their conditions might await a convenient season. But the financial condition of the railways is pressingly bad, and getting worse fast. On the same day with Mr. WARBURG's address was published the testimony of the Director General that the real trouble with the railways is "chiefly financial." The Government has not paid them accrued rental of $881,000,000 under its guarantee, the $500,000,000 "revolving fund" is exhausted, and he asks for $750,000,000 more. How to let the railways earn their keep instead of loading it on the taxpayers by the billion is the problem.

In the first place, Mr. WARBURG dismisses Government operation on the principle that politics and business should be separated, and that experience is against that expedient to avoid present embarrassment by creating future trouble. There never was a Government-operated railway which gave as good or cheap service as ours, and there would be no hope of maintaining our present standard under administration by bureaucrats. Mr. WARBURG's testimony on this point is convincing, because he speaks from knowledge of Washington, and knows that what the Federal Reserve wanted done it had to do itself, official aid being a poor reliance.

That the railways' credit is prostrated is beyond question. Railways have ceased financing themselves by stock issues; not a dozen could sell shares at par. The difficulty in the way of letting the railways earn such a profit that investors would advance them funds without putting them under ruinous mortgage burdens is the same in the opinion of both Mr. WARBURG and the Director General. "Suspicion" that a fair profit would be an excessive profit is one root of the trouble. Another obstacle is the necessity of fixing the same rates for both weak and strong roads. Another is the fear of investors that if, despite everything, railways earn profits they will be regulated away from them.

Mr. WARBURG's chief remedy—the temptation is to say his sufficient remedy—is a change in the character of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He would have it composed of five members representing law, finance, business, labor, and railways, with dignities and powers worthy of Cabinet or highest judicial rank. He would not have a railway Cabinet membership in any form, for that violates the principle against political control. Such a commission would find a way through the valuation entanglement. And when valuation removed the suspicion of unfair profits it would be feasible to fix rates with a margin of yield, say 4½ to 6 or 7 per cent., which would encourage efficiency of operation. A portion of the margin he would divide between the officers and workers who produced it, with a share even to the Government, on analogy with the division of excess profits between Federal banks and the Government. When disputes arose, as they would, he would have them settled by "supreme courts of finance, railroads, trade, and labor," and he would have the Judges of such courts nominated by themselves for the President's appointment.

Nothing is happier in this address than the counsel to stop looking backward, and base future action on hopes rather than regrets. There could be no more hopeful reform than the reconstitution of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Its first members were its ablest, and the best of them all declared that it was impossible that the railways should be well administered by them. Their successors tried it and failed. How could success be expected from a membership which never included a single member "qualified by first-rate experience in railway operation, or by broad business experience"? The Interstate Commerce Commission has been honest and has done its best, but no one can say what its principles of administration have been. A commission of Mr. WARBURG's sort would have prevented the troubles we are in, and perhaps now it might even cure them. At least the country would do better under such a commission than by leaving the railroads in the hands of those assuming control, although their policies are the basic cause of the trouble.

LAST OF THE ROSSETTIS.

Mr. LOWELL said that the ROSSETTIS seemed to hold genius by a tenure of gavelkind, by equal division among all the children. WILLIAM MICHAEL ROSSETTI, who is just dead at 90, never published any original work of much importance, but he was a man of scholarship and distinction in many ways. It seems like a memory of a forgotten world, this death of the last survivor of the aspiring seven of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood of 1848. DANTE ROSSETTI, MILLAIS, HOLMAN HUNT, THOMAS WOOLNER, sculptor and poet, are the best-remembered of those returners to pious mystic art; and MILLAIS was an early deserter.

The father of the ROSSETTIS, GABRIELE, made one of the strangest mystic-religious-political commentaries on DANTE; and was a mystical poet, too. So the younger ROSSETTIS were naturally inclined or bred to mysticism. An immense noise of praise and attack resounded around the eager Pre-Raphaelites, and so much has been written about them and their continuers and collaterals, BURNE-JONES, MORRIS, WALTER CRANE, that the contemporary art world, always busy with movements of its own, has not too much patience with the elders, and their prophet, RUSKIN, is looked down upon probably by the youngest art student. Still, they brought back poetry. It is always worth bringing back, if bringing back it needs, albeit some of its avatars seem of the queerest.

DANTE ROSSETTI, brilliant in two arts; CHRISTINA ROSSETTI, a poet of high talent, one genius and one intense mediaeval talent born again, are likely to maintain the glory of the family, even if MARIA FRANCESCA and WILLIAM MICHAEL grow shadowy. GABRIELE ROSSETTI was born in 1783. Thus his life and that of WILLIAM stretch almost from the end of the Revolutionary to that of the Great War.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Discoveries Abounding in Promise.

A dispatch from London announces that army medical officers who have been investigating the diseases of soldiers in France have reported to the Director General of the Army Medical Service the isolation and identification of the bacilli causing influenza, trench fever, and some forms of nephritis, and that a like success has been achieved with respect to the causes of mumps, measles, and typhus. This is news of the sort to be described as "important, if true." There is no particular reason for doubting it except the number of the triumphs, and that may have resulted from the discovery of a process equally applicable to several, or even all, of closely related origin.

The probability that the report is correct is increased by the fact that the Army Medical Corps of the Allies have had at command the very highest professional talent, working with a wealth of material and limitless financial resources, and it is natural enough that they should have solved problems hitherto unconquered. Finding the cause of a disease, however, is not always equivalent to the prevention of that disease, and rarely does much in the way of curing it. Our own army surgeons earned in Cuba a high and permanent place in medical history when they settled forever how yellow fever was transmitted, and incidentally made easy the abolition of that and the other maladies formerly described as "malarial." Since then nobody, in or out of the tropics, suffers from those scourges except because of criminal negligence on the part of local health authorities. There has been an approach to the same success in the case of typhoid, but the nearly complete knowledge gained years ago in regard to the origin and nature of tuberculosis has not yet resulted in a like banishment of that plague from any country.

Their Task Far from Fully Done.

It remains to be seen whether or not the isolation and identification of the germs mentioned above means the conquest of the diseases they cause. That it would help toward that highly desirable end cannot be questioned. So many and so well advertised, in recent years, have been the advances made in medical science that in the popular mind there exists something like a belief that disease has few secrets or none that still elude the doctors and the biologists. In reality there are many such secrets that remain almost or quite as dark as ever, and there is more to do than has been done.

Not a few of the commonest maladies must still be treated empirically, with attention given to symptoms rather than to causes. Measles, as well as scarlet fever, comes in that category, for though it is confidently assumed that they, too, are "germ" diseases, the isolation of their "germs" has not hitherto been accomplished, and all that could be said about them was that they were "germs" that must be too small to be caught by any filter or to be seen through any microscope.

If the curtain that has covered these familiar mysteries has at last been raised it is permissible at least to hope that the time has come for another long step toward victory over man's most deadly foes. Almost certainly it will be in the nature of prevention rather than of cure.

Sincere Only in Letters.

Thanks to discoveries made by the officials who censor the letters written by Germans living in the region occupied by the American forces, there is likely to be a sudden termination of the foolish talk, so abundant of late, about the fervent affection felt by our soldiers for their new neighbors and by the new neighbors for our soldiers. Ever to have believed those tales required not only a phenomenal amount of credulity, but an utter ignorance of what human nature is everywhere.

It is not at all necessary for one to consider the Germans abnormally wicked before feeling sure that they have an intense dislike for the humiliation imposed upon them by the presence in their cities and towns of an alien soldiery, billeted in their houses and exercising arbitrary power over all their activities. Nobody could or does help hating to be in such a situation, and nobody, anywhere, ever did or could help transferring the hatred from the situation to those who created it.

It is perfectly natural, and quite inevitable, therefore, that in writing letters they thought would be uncensored the people of Coblenz characterize their new masters as "these detestable Americans," and pray for the day when "the curse of their presence will be removed from us." It would be unreasonable to resent such expressions of emotion as these. The only thing surprising about them—the only thing distinctively German—is that the same people, when face to face with the American invaders, can smile upon them sweetly, talk to them suavely, and pretend to be glad they are there. Next will come disproof of the closely related tales about the eagerness of the American soldiers to declare their involuntary and most reluctant hosts a charming and lovable people. Surely not many of our men can be caught by wiles so cheap and obvious. Most of them have memories, and most of them must have sense enough to know just why it is that they are treated as welcome guests in a conquered country.

At Least the Form Is Novel.

One large debt to Commissioner ENRIGHT is owed and should be acknowledged. When asked to explain the demotion of Inspector COSTIGAN he has refrained from using the euphemism long since worn so thin—"for the good of the service." Instead he darkly hints at dark entries on a record—entries of which the public knows nothing and will not be allowed to know anything.

Utterances like that are hardly fair to the man who has been thrown from a high to a low place in the police hierarchy, but really they are no more invidious than was the ancient phrase, and seem harsher only because they are less familiar.

So the subject of them probably will not complain. His is only the common fate. As he said himself, "It has happened before!"

CHINA AND JAPAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to some of us Japanese that China is now trying very hard to make the most of the Peace Conference in order to free herself from all foreign dominance or influence. According to THE TIMES of Jan. 24 the Chinese agency in Washington officially announced that China is going to demand the revision of the China-Japanese treaty of 1915, which, she insists, is of the same nature as those of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest, because it was signed under duress and coercion. Moreover, she is now appealing very strongly to the public opinion of the United States to have the rights of extra-territoriality removed on the ground that her courts of law, if not already equal to those of western countries, can be gradually improved, just as the Japanese courts were.

Well, we are quite willing to revise the treaty if there is in it any terms which are a real menace to the independence of China, for Japan, too, wants to have her neighbor as an independent State.

It is commonly held in Japan that her policy toward China must be based on principles of fairness and justice and that the most desirable thing of all is mutual aid and permanent friendship between the two nations. This conviction was well illustrated when Viscount Uchida, her Minister for Foreign Affairs, officially stated that Japan would deal in a spirit of justice and friendliness with all questions affecting Chinese interests which might come up before the Peace Conference.

But, it must be emphasized, Japan desires to do this of her own volition because it is a matter between herself and China. We would resent being compelled by any foreign power to do that which we might otherwise do from our own sense of justice. We are an independent people and we should feel deeply humiliated if coerced by foreign powers or compelled to ask for help or mercy from them. This spirit is inherent in any nation with a national sense of honor.

We believe, if China really desires the revision of the treaty, that it would be simpler and easier for her to negotiate with Japan directly and frankly. To submit the problem to the Peace Conference may result, we fear, only in provoking a neighbor who wishes to be friendly and helpful. "The shaking hands with the far and invading the near" policy is by no means adaptable to the international relations of the present day.

As for the problem of extra-territoriality, we heartily sympathize with China because we, too, had to go through the same bitter experience for many years. At the same time China must be well aware that it was not the mercy or help of foreign powers that freed Japan from such treaties, but unremitting study and struggle.

We cannot help feeling that if the able young men of China are really thirsting for her independence they should, first of all, stop their internal quarrels and endeavor to make their country great and strong before engaging in the empty business of propaganda and asking for the sympathy of foreign powers. Heaven helps those who help themselves.

We of Japan had, indeed, to pay a very high price to learn that independence is precious only because it is gained by holy drops of sweat. We sincerely love China and the Chinese, not only because we know our own existence and interests depend so much upon her, but also because we feel a brotherly affection toward our neighbor who was once our good teacher. It is because of this affection and interest that we presume to advise her to awaken and learn the real meaning of the word "Independent."

Two Adriatic Questions.

Let me ask two blunt questions just to "start something":

To which does civilization owe the more—the Jugoslavs or the Italians?

Hasn't Italy quite as much right to Vallona, Zara, and the Dalmatic islands as we have to the Panama Canal?

BOLSHEVIK INN.

Narrow and damp is Bolshevik Inn.
The host is spectrally pale and thin;
His lips are warped to a twisted grin
  As he beckons his guests, a prowling rout,
  Who clamor and shout in the cold without
To come within;

"Come in! Come in! Your hearts' desire
  To sit in the seats of the great and strong
  Must not wait long!
Just pile in here from the murk and mire.
Your souls aspire for Olympian fire—
Do you not see it, leaping higher
  Than ever it flared in your lifetime span?
  The redemption of man
From unweaned babe to tottering sire
Is blazing within it; your poverty dire,
  Your pitiful dearth,
  Is here transmuted to riches of earth.
    Come in! Come in!"

And in they herd, a riotous ruck,
From the mire and muck.
  When their bodies sag and their footsteps lag,
  The host flaunts high a blood-red rag.
  "Humanity's flag,"
He croaks, "will win!
Come in! Come in!"

To Bolshevik Inn, like the hosts of Sin,
  Withered and worn, with hungry eyes,
  With fists uplifted to curse the skies,
They come, the rabble, with murmur and babble,
    "We want to dine
    On meats and wine,
    On wine, red wine
    And wheaten bread,"
    But the host, instead,
    Doles molten lead!

"Come taste," he mocks, "what I distill;
Come drink your fill!"
  His voice pipes shrill above the din
  And his lips twist wide to a ghastly grin.

Narrow and damp is Bolshevik Inn,
  Across it the storms of the world sweep by,
And they whom the winds whirl wan within,
    With gasping breath
    And startled eye,
    Behold but Death!

DEPEW OPPOSES BIG NAVY.

Says Daniels's Program Means Large Increase in Taxation.

Former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, speaking yesterday at a meeting of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, of which he is an honorary member, declared that he was opposed to Secretary Daniels's naval program because of the increase in taxation involved. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, Rector of St. Thomas's Church, spoke of the benefits young Americans had gained from their experience as fighters and gave an account of his work in France with the Y. M. C. A.

"I think we Americans have become accustomed to so many big things" said Mr. Depew, introducing his remarks on the naval program, "that we are going to experience difficulty in getting back to normal. The enormous outlays demanded by the war, the tremendous demands made upon almost every line of endeavor; the stupendous losses on the battlefield, and the like; all these have become so common that now when we hear of comparatively small loss, for example of $60,000 and a number of lives, we dismiss it as too trivial to consider.

"Unless this country can face the relatively small things it can't survive. The Secretary of the Navy now asks for a large yearly outlay for the navy. Remembering as I do the time when we became a $1,000,000,000 nation, and having watched successive increases, I see clearly the need now, when big things only gain public consideration, the need for that forgotten statesman—an economist. We need now in the United States Senate a man combining the qualities of Washington and Lincoln—a man who will call a halt to these excesses.

"The spending of this tremendous sum of money for the increase of the United States Navy spells increases in taxation, and taxation raises prices. Until taxes are reduced there will be no reduction in the cost of living, and therefore no return to that comfortable way of living, which made the United States the paradise that it is.

"I believe that there are moral forces which will serve the same ends as the proposed naval program outlined by the Secretary of the Navy. The demonstration of power and reserve power, which we have made during this war, has had such a moral effect upon the world that we will not need the great fleet. The keeping of the peace is in the hands of the English-speaking nations. England's views are the same as ours; Great Britain has a Government which is most quickly responsive to the will of the people.

It was announced that a gift of $20,000 had been made to the Genealogical Society by Samuel Putnam Avery of Hartford, Conn., for the establishment of a fund to be used for the purchase of portraits, views, surveys, records, manuscripts, and autograph letters.

NAVY BILL FACES FIGHT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The debate on the Navy Bill today brought to the fore the opposition of the group of small navy men to the three-year program advocated by President Wilson. Representative Saunders of Virginia, a Democrat, as the leader in this group, opposed increasing the size of the navy at this time, asserting that its present strength was larger than that of France, Italy and Japan combined.

Representative Padgett, Chairman of the Committee, in replying, said that conditions abroad called for preparation for any emergency and certainly there could be no honest opposition to authorizing the President to go ahead with the building program after February, 1920, if the Peace Conference did not call for disarmament or limitation in the size of the navies of each country.

Svensson Says America Is Ready to Help the Neutrals.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 5.—All the papers here today print sympathetic articles about Magnus Svensson, the representative of Food Commissioner Hoover, who has arrived in Copenhagen to take charge of the distribution of provisions to different countries in need. He is characterized as an American of Wilson's type, an idealist but a practical man, with a firm hand and a warm heart, proud of the United States of today.

"We will now help the neutrals," he said in an interview, "and first of all the Finns. We have big supplies in America. That is, we have nothing superfluous, but our crops will be large, and we hope they will reach very far.

"At present we will help with food only, and if the people cannot pay, they will have it for nothing."

Speaking about the recent criticism of Hoover, Svensson said it was only due to politics, without any basis.

"Mr. Hoover," he said, "is one of the greatest products of the war time. We will help everybody except the Bolsheviki, and, I believe, the hungry parts of the Central Powers, too, to prevent them from being swallowed by Bolshevism."

HEROES CITED FOR BRAVERY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Two more lists of American soldiers who have been cited for bravery in action in France were made public today by the War Department. Not a man from this city appears on the latest list of heroes who have received the Distinguished Service cross, and there is only one from this State. The names of the men on the lists and their home addresses follow:

Private Tom Powell of Cockran, Ga.; Private Spirley Irby of Blackstone, Va.; Private Alfred Williamson of San Diego, Cal.; Private Arthur Johnson of Newcomer, Penn.; Sergt. C. T. Monroe of Senrog, Va.; Sergt. Emmitt Thompson of Quincy, Ill.; Sergt. Lester Possie of Metropolis, Ill.; Bugler C. B. Rymer of St. Louis, Mo.; Bugler J. J. Coff of St. Louis, Mo.; Lieut. H. O. ROOT ASSAILS FORD IN LEAGUE INQUIRY

Says He Went to "Verge" of Disloyalty and Was Not Fit for Senate.

DEFENDS BAN ON NOMINEES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Elihu Root, Honorary President of the National Security League, testifying today before the House committee investigating the activities of that organization, asserted that Henry Ford, in some of his utterances, had gone to the "very verge" of disloyalty, "if he did not go over it." This statement was prompted by a question propounded by Representative Browne of Wisconsin, who examined Mr. Root.

Literature issued by the organization against Representative Jeannette Rankin was read in which it was shown that Miss Rankin had supported the McLemore resolution, and voted against the war and the selective draft bill. Mr. Root approved the league's action in issuing this and said that he supported the other literature that was sent out by the league against Miss Rankin.

"If she voted against these measures she should not have been re-elected," he said, "and was not qualified to sit in Congress."

"Do you believe that the league would have been guilty of political activity if it had opposed Mr. Ford?" Mr. Root was asked.

"No," he replied. "Mr. Ford was not a Democrat. He was a Republican if anything. He was a pacifist and against the war. He had uttered many things which made it of the greatest importance to the successful conduct of the war that no such man should be put in Congress."

Mr. Root said that Professor McElroy's letter was only a personal expression.

"But did not Mr. Ford aid the War Department a great deal after the war was started?" asked Representative Browne.

"I am not so sure of that," said Mr. Root.

"President Wilson thought so," added Mr. Browne.

"I don't agree with President Wilson on many things," replied Mr. Root.

"You would not characterize Mr. Ford as a disloyal man?" continued Mr. Browne.

"He came to the very verge of it if he did not go over it," replied Mr. Root.

Representative Browne read excerpts from the McElroy letter. He referred especially to two expressions. One was:

"This is the time in the history of the country when we can least afford to resort to the leadership of uncertain minds. He (Ford) could be counted upon to do the wrong thing upon every vital issue arising before the Senate. Whether that is the qualification which makes him valuable in the eyes of the Administration I cannot say, but it is his most striking qualification."

The second reference in the letter read:

"There cannot be two foot rules, one for the greatest idealist living in the isolation of his ivory tower which he associates with the ideas of common counsel, and another foot rule for the less ambitious mortals who are candidates for the other offices. If we oppose the one we must oppose the other."

"Do you agree with the letter written by the former Princeton professor?" asked Representative Browne.

"In some respects I do. It was merely, as I said, a personal expression and did not reflect the views of the league," said Mr. Root.

"Was not the action of the committee in opposing Miss Rankin, Representative Fuller, and others, political activity?" he was asked.

"Of course, in one sense of the word it was," Mr. Root said. "In a narrow sense, and that is the acceptable use of the world politics, it means the advocacy of one party candidate against another, which this was not. In a broad sense the league sought to defeat men whom it did not consider patriotic, and to that extent it was engaged in politics but in a broad sense only."

Chairman Johnson took up the examination of Mr. Root and tried to make him admit that the League was actuated by selfish motives and was supported chiefly by profiteers.

"It is charged publicly on the floor of the House and elsewhere that profiteers were behind the National Security League and that its supporters were interested in seeing the United States go into the war," said Mr. Johnson.

"The members of the League were acuated solely by patriotic motives, and I deny that there was any selfish motive behind the movement," replied Mr. Root. "There was no possible relation between profiteers and the waging of this war. I can see no motive or purpose in what these men did except to secure the effective prosecution of the war."

Mr. Johnson said that the Chairman of the legislative committee was interested in getting the highest price for sisal, that his assistant was a well-known lobbyist, that John D. Rockefeller and other rich men had contributed heavily to the league and that 95 per cent. of the contributors represented those interested in big corporations.

"Is that not symptomatic of sinister motives?" asked Mr. Johnson.

"No; you cannot get an organization together without having wealthy men in it, those interested in big affairs," replied Mr. Root. "If you need money you must go to people who have it."

Mr. Root said that the League, in opposing Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago and Representative Fred Britten, had performed "an imperative public duty."

"Was this activity political?" asked Mr. Browne.

"It was political in a broad sense," said Mr. Root. "It was an attempt to secure what all agreed should be secured, the nomination of a man who could be depended upon to strengthen the United States in the war. It was the broadest kind of patriotism to wake up the people of Chicago to the danger."

"After opposing Mr. Britten, Republican, the league supported him for election," said Mr. Browne.

"I suppose that it was the choice of two evils," replied Mr. Root, adding that he personally knew nothing about Mr. Britten.

CLASH ON FORD CONTEST.

Reed Sees Filibuster Threat—Senators Move for Compromise.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A basis for a possible compromise on the proposed investigation of the Ford-Newberry Senatorial election contest from Michigan was reached by the Senate late today after several hours of spirited discussion.

Criticisms by Republican and Democratic Senators, respectively, of the campaigns of Henry Ford, the unsuccessful Democratic candidate, and Lieut. Commander Truman H. Newberry, the victorious Republican candidate, resulted in concessions from both sides.

When the Senate adjourned leaders were considering a plan to limit the immediate action to the preservation of evidence upon which the next Senate might make a final decision. Democratic Senators conceded that Mr. Newberry was entitled to be sworn in and take his seat in the next Senate, subject to further action.

Immediate investigation of the charges was urged by Senator Pomerene of Ohio, who said that the Senate would be derelict in its duty in view of the wide accusations made if it did not act.

Senator Townsend of Michigan denied that the present Senate had jurisdiction to pass upon the qualifications of a candidate elected for a succeeding session. He announced that if the Senate was to determine whether it had jurisdiction to make the inquiry he had thousands of affidavits from Michigan residents relative to the controversy which he desired to read in the Senate. He said he was not desirous of interfering with the Senate business, but thought that these affidavits should be presented.

"When the Senator says he is going to present thousands of affidavits we know what he means," Senator Reed declared, adding that it was the "baldest, clearest-cut threat of a filibuster" he had ever heard on the Senate floor.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

"Traviata" and "Petrushka."

A double bill at the Metropolitan Opera House last night brought a repetition of "La Traviata," with Hempel, Egener, Mattfeld, Hackett, De Luca, Rossi, Bada, Reschiglian, and d'Angelo; Roberto Moranzoni, conductor, and a ballet pantomime, "Petrushka," scenario by Alexander Benois, music by Igor Stravinsky, staged by Alexander Bolm, and conducted by Pierre Monteux. Here is the cast in the pantomime:

Th Ballerina	Rosina Galli
Petrushka	Adolf Bolm
The Moor	Giuseppe Bonfiglio
The Old Magician	Ottokar Bartik
The Merchant	Armando Agnini
Street Dancers	Regina Smith Florence Rudolf
Gypsies	Lilian Ogden Bessie Roggie

The scenery and costumes were designed by John Wegner, a Russian, and the scenery painted by James Fox.

Mr. Bolm has told us that "Petrushka" has not been given in Russia. Diaghileff, who produced it here a few years during his season of the Ballet Russe, had planned to go to Petrograd, but the war intervened. The tragi-comic story has been called the Russian "Pagliacci." It shows the rivalry of the puppets, Petrushka and the Moor, for the love of the little Ballerina. But the Old Magician who controls the puppets, punishes the hero for his quarrel with the Moor and locks him up in the dark. He later meets the Moor and is slain. Then to calm the crowd the Magician proves Petrushka to be only a rag doll. The moral might be: What fools these puppets be to pattern after mankind!

Stravinsky's music is delicious, absurd, grotesque, with streaks of genius mixed with the mud-gutter vulgarity of the gamin who twiddles his dirty fingers at his nose-tip. Suitable music with dislocated rhythms and the noises of crockery broken in a drunken rage, and picked up, carried away by dissipated pouter pigeons, xylophones, pianoforte arpeggios and harp glissandi. The performance was capital, just missing the native wood-note wild of the original Russian ballet. As the curtain went up after 11 o'clock, details of the solo pantomimists and dancers must be deferred. The audience greatly enjoyed the new piece, which was given a fitting production, as may be well imagined.

But the evening for the musical will be a memorable one. "La Traviata," that hackneyed apotheosis of a sentimental lady—the French slang is now "Ma vague"—Violetta Dumas fils, took on new life because of the beautiful singing and acting of Frieda Hempel. She has seldom sung with such fervor and delicacy, acted so unaffectedly and with such pathos, or looked so charming. What a singer, what an artiste, what a charming personality! Her "Addio" in the last scene was exquisite, and the scene with that old humbug father—we suspect he was fond of his son's mistress—was, thanks to the co-operation of De Lucca—whose "Di Provenza" was particularly good—went very well. Pity it is that Miss Hempel nears the end of her present season at the Metropolitan. Her art is rare nowadays.

Young Carlo Hackett confirmed the favorable criticisms of his first appearance last week as Almaviva in the "Barber." Alfredo is a severer test, but he stood it. He has a lyric tenor, musical as to quality, which he uses intelligently. He has youthful mannerisms; he spins his tone down to a pianissimo but too slowly, thereby stopping the flow of the music. He has some fire, though the texture of his voice is not warm. Owing to natural nervousness he sang flat in the first act duo a half dozen bars before and after his "Miseria." His enunciation is clear, his pronunciation good. He has style, too, and no little authority for such a novice. Perhaps he exaggerates his portamento, not an unusual trait in a singer with an abundance of voice.

His acting, not skillful in the early scenes, became freer, in gesture more varied, as he forgot himself in the rôle. He overemphasized the woe of the farewell to Mlle. Tubercules, indulging in the "voix larmoyante" and not disdaining the always conveniently thrilling glottis-stroke. A well-set-up young man is Mr. Hackett and of gallant bearing. He needs routine, of course—so do some of his older and more experienced contemporaries—and it may be recorded that he made a gratifying impression. The audience was very enthusiastic, and at the end he was, with La Diva, heartily applauded. If only a Hackett cult is not started to spoil a promising singer! However, the abiding impression with us is the lovely singing and impersonation of Miss Hempel.

In its desperate search for plots, musical comedy has at least reached back to the early days of Arthur Wing Pinero, whose farce, "The Magistrate," was metamorphosed last night at the Shubert into "Good Morning, Judge." The original was produced so long ago that Ada Rehan aspired to play its boy hero, reputed to be fourteen; but unless we should impute an undue antiquity to the story we hasten to add that she was finally persuaded to play his mother. And besides he was really nineteen.

That was the chief novelty of the plot, as grave and reverend seignors of the theatre well remember: the lad had lost five precious years in consequence of the fact that his mother erred in her own chronology. But though he was dressed in an Eton jacket he had a mannish heart and a disposition bursting with wild oats. Under his gay guidance his new stepfather, a London Magistrate, was beguiled into a supper-and-dance emporium, where, as it happened, they encountered the feminine members of the family. The conduct of one and all was Victorian quite; but when the place was pulled by the police, for ignoring the London closing hour, they found themselves haled before the court in which the erring Magistrate presided. Here again was an engaging situation. The farce was, in fact, one of the most original and widely popular of its generation, and had a wide vogue throughout the world.

In its musical reincarnation, its fate bids fair to be the same. The London production is now in its second year, and the atmosphere of success was thick last night at the Shubert. It cannot be said that the lyrics are other than banal in the extreme; but the music is gay and tuneful, the costumes and scenes in the richest Shubert manner.

The chief burden of comedy lies on the broad shoulders of George Hassell, who played the errant magistrate, and they rested there lightly as a feather. An incomparable Shakespearean clown, warmly remembered for his Stephano in "The Tempest," he makes child's play of the lighter buffooneries of the musical stage, passing from magisterial solemnity to nascent rakish glee with the utmost east and unction, and holding the whole performance together by the infectious spirit of his comedy.

Charles King was the boy hero, and, with Mollie King as his partner in song and dance, romped through the evening. Margaret Dale was the fibbing—or rather the unfibbing—mother, and Grace Daniels her sister. Very attractive dance specialties were contributed by Cunningham and Clements, Emilie Lea and little Alata Doré, the last named a child of really poetic lightness and grace.

Charity Ball at Waldorf Tonight.

More than seven thousand tickets have been sold for the time-honored Charity Ball, which has been the foster-parent of the Nursery and Child's Hospital for the last sixty-two years, which will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel tonight. The whole second floor of the hotel will be used, giving four ball rooms for dancing. There will be continuous music by three orchestras.

MUSIC NOTES.

"Faust," and not "Tosca," will be the popular-price attraction at the Lexington on Saturday evening of next week. In the cast of Gounod's opera are Yvonne Gall, John O'Sullivan, and Marcel Journet, together with Mmes. Pavloska and Borat. Messrs. Defrere, Derman, and Conductor Charlier.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Le Coq d'Or" will be performed by the Metropolitan company at the Brooklyn Academy next Tuesday night. In the first are Easton, Perini, Crimi, and Montesanto, led by Moranzoni, and in the second, Barrientos and Galli, Didur and Bolm, with others, led by Monteux.

In Memoriam.

DICKEY.—Whereas, the members of this board have learned with profound sorrow of the death on Monday, Feb. 3, 1919, of Mr. Charles Denston Dickey, late a valued and highly esteemed Director of this company; therefore be it

Resolved, That Mr. Dickey's friends and associates on this board hereby desire to bear witness to their deep appreciation of the value of the services rendered by him to the company during the years in which he held office. Mr. Dickey was elected a Director upon the organization of this company in 1893 and had successively served since then on the Executive and several sub-committees of the board, being at the time of his death an active and honored member of all of these committees. In the discharge of the duties pertaining to these various offices Mr. Dickey evinced at all times high intelligence and untiring zeal, while his long affiliation with the company, his unceasing efforts to promote its welfare, his sterling character and genial presence, endeared him to the entire board in all of their official and personal intercourse.

Resolved, That its members extend to Mrs. Dickey and to her family the assurance of their most heartfelt sympathy in the great bereavement and affliction which they have sustained, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary be instructed to spread these resolutions upon the records of the company and to forward a copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct copy of a resolution adopted at a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company held Feb. 6, 1919, at which a quorum was present.

HENRY L. SERVOSS, Secretary.

Comparison of Income from tax-exempt and taxable securities

We have prepared a table comparing the income yield from tax-exempt securities with the income yield from taxable securities. This comparison is at the rates applied to 1918 income in the new schedule passed by the United States Senate.

The leaflet contains also the details of each Liberty Loan Issue. The conditions under which the maximum amount of tax-exemption value may be obtained are tabulated.

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

Experts are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much as to whether to buy now as it is to use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a diversified list of securities, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to types and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

A combination of developments which seemed to be integral factors in the task of readjusting business and prices to a peace basis pressed itself upon the stock market situation yesterday with the result that prices moved off. The copper stocks naturally enough led in the declining movement, being influenced early in the day by the reduction of the American Smelting and Refining dividend, and later by definite news that copper selling agencies were offering considerable metal at 18½ cents a pound. After the copper price movement came in for study the attention of the financial community was drawn to recessions in cotton, coffee, and corn. Altogether the news of the day was of a depressing character from the point of view of speculators who had been watching for signs of a general forward movement in stocks, but it may be that the occurrences in the commodities' markets marked a forward step toward a new business basis which may ultimately prove of great benefit in awakening industry and trade. With the exception of a number of specialties the stock market closed with declines running from large fractions to more than 2 points. The railroad stocks were less affected by selling pressure than the industrials, but were not neglected.

The chief significance of the decline of copper lay in the fact that some of the larger selling agencies became active for the first time since the armistice was signed. The reports for the last quarter and also for the last half year of 1918 issued by a number of producers showed that costs were well up toward the 17 cents per pound level, and it is difficult to see how much profit can be made at the current price. This, however, would be of little moment if the drastic reduction brought consumers into the market on a large scale. While the purposes of the sellers in lowering quotations were not disclosed, it would not be unreasonable to believe that they hope that by reaching a basis where producer and consumer could get together a demand would be stimulated which might at no distant date reduce accumulated supplies and tend to bring a recovery of the price. As far as could be learned sales for export have not yet become substantial, but it would not be surprising if the new price, which is 4½ cents to the pound under the former quoted figure, brought about an increase of foreign inquiry in the early future.

An acceptance credit of $50,000,000 is being negotiated with local bankers in behalf of Belgium, a financial undertaking which bodes well for the expansion of ordinary commercial relations with European countries. The purpose of the transaction is to finance the purchase of goods for Belgium, and is the first stage of a movement to facilitate trade that is expected to make considerable progress in the next few weeks. Bankers have repeatedly stated that the only way to promote exports to the allied nations is through extension of credit in one form or another, and the practical features of the program are being forwarded by bankers and business men who are now abroad.

Indications were seen of a continued output of new railroad securities. The Illinois Central Railroad sold $16,000,000 fifteen-year 5½ per cent. bonds, and inquiries for other issues were reported in the market. Whether or not the Railroad Administration is urging roads with strong credit to fund a part of the Government loans made to them, as was reported, it would be natural for the carriers to do this as far as market conditions permit. The money market continued favorable for additional security sales.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Italian Bonds on the Curb.

For the first time, as far as the records show, an open market for Italian internal war bonds was created on the Broad Street Curb yesterday. The reason for this—the bonds have enjoyed a more or less favorable market over the counter for some time—was that one customer decided he wanted to see his purchase recorded in an open market, and to accommodate him his brokers took the operation out to Broad Street and put it through there. Whether this means that attempts will be made to popularize the Italian bonds in the outside market could not be ascertained last night, but some leading spirits on the Curb think it does. The Russian bonds are already there, and with the Italian bonds opening yesterday there are possibilities in prospect. The Italian bonds are quoted in dollars per 1,000 lira, so that a price of $141 means that the bonds are worth 89½ per cent. of par with exchange at 6.35, and if exchange is figured at the normal of 5.18¼, they are worth only 73 per cent. of mint par. Speculation in them thus becomes a dual gamble in the bonds and in Italian exchange.

Commodity Prices Readjustment.

A good deal is being said these days about the "readjustment of commodity prices" and the "curtailment of the cost of living," and keen speculators who try to anticipate such things as these are shaping their course in the direction of the bear. Yesterday it was notable that a good many commodity prices were down. Coffee, cotton, corn, and copper all suffered reductions in value. The breaks in all of these, furthermore, were sufficient to have made any single case dramatic had it not been for the very general situation. Taken individually the decline in any one of these commodities would have been notable.

⁂

Advancing Dollars.

"If commodity prices are to decline appreciably, then dollars must advance correspondingly," said a prominent banker yesterday. On that theory, he explained, it would be nearly as profitable and a good deal safer to buy bonds as it would be to sell stocks. Possibly this will be a good selling argument when the next Liberty-Victory Loan campaign starts.

⁂

Pacific Freight Rates Cut.

The announcement by the Shipping Board of a cut in ocean freight rates from Pacific Coast ports to China, Japan, the Philippines and other far Eastern ports, of about 60 per cent. caused no particular surprise in local shipping circles yesterday as it had been expected since the recent cut in transatlantic rates that action on the Eastern ocean freights would quickly follow. Shippers to far Eastern ports have been insisting for many weeks that a big reduction would have to be made if American exporters and importers were to retain even a small part of the business they enjoyed in the war period, when freight rates did not play so important a part as they do in securing new business.

⁂

Marine Insurance Rates Higher.

It was reported in marine insurance circles yesterday that the recent increase in the number of vessels being sunk in the North Atlantic by floating mines, may cause a sharp advance in the war risk rate on ships plying in those lanes from ⅛ to ¼ of 1 per cent. In some quarters it was stated that one underwriter refused to take such a risk, but other underwriters were not so positive, and one man said that he would write anything, provided the buyer of the insurance would pay the rate asked. This stiffening in the war risk rate was influenced to some extent by the reports of Captains of vessels which have sailed through waters which they said were infested with floating mines.

⁂

Railway Executives Meet.

Members of the Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives who drafted the recent plan of that body for the return of the railroads to a modified private ownership subject to responsible governmental regulation are meeting today in Washington to receive reports from their committee which has been planning for legislation necessary to allow a readjustment plan to go through. At the meeting further steps in placing the association's ideas before Congress will be discussed and the immediate action to be taken may be decided upon.

Necessary Proxies Received.

The Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation has received the proxies necessary to a voting of the proposed issue of $25,000,000 notes. For a time proxies were held up owing to the warning against their delivery by Henry Evans. It was said yesterday that his proxies for more than 18,000 shares had been promised to the corporation. There has been no question that the Cuba Cane Corporation needed the new financing, but it was the contention of Mr. Evans that, in issuing the proposed notes, there should be a provision that no dividends be paid on the common stock until the notes had been retired. Whether this concession has been made is not certain.

WILL OFFER BRITISH BONDS.

Securities Not Absorbed in Note Conversion to be Announced Today.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that less than $30,000,000 of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland 5½ per cent. notes which matured on Feb. 1 remained unconverted on that date into twenty-year bonds. A syndicate, headed by the Morgan firm and including the Guaranty Trust Company, the National City Company, Harris, Forbes & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., and other banking houses engaged recently to underwrite the conversion of the notes, and the group will offer shortly the portion of the long-term bonds which were not absorbed in conversions. The amount, which is expected to be in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, is to be made public today, together with the sale price.

The United Kingdom notes, which aggregated $250,000,000 of one-year and two-year maturity, were put out in January, 1917. Of these about $142,000,000 matured Feb. 1. They were distributed through a country-wide syndicate of dealers and banks, and, according to yesterday's announcement, those agents which were most active in the original sale will be offered participations in the sale of the bonds.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A. B. Leach & Co. have purchased and are offering, at 95 and interest, $550,000 Cincinnati Gas and Electric Company first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds due in 1956.

George B. Gibbons & Co. are offering City of Paterson 4¾ per cent. improvement and hospital bonds, maturing serially, at prices yielding 4.55 per cent.

Allen Broomhall, formerly with John Burnham & Co., is now with McClure, Jones & Reed, members of the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Broomhall will specialize in bank stocks, and will be associated with Charles R. Blachly in the unlisted securities department of the firm.

Ernest C. van Dyke, for thirteen years with Dow, Jones & Co., has resigned to become associated with Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, where he will take charge of the security department.

R. M. Grant & Co. have ready for immediate distribution a chart of the new Federal income tax as affecting individual incomes. The figures contained in this chart are those of the Senate, agreed upon by the Conference Committee and accepted by the House.

The Atlas Powder Company announces the election to the Board of Directors of Leonard Richards, Jr., of Stamford, Conn. This election increases the board from five to six members.

A second successive monthly dividend of 1 per cent. has been declared on Dayton Coal, Iron & Railway Company preferred stock, payable March 15, to stockholders of record Feb. 20.

The Corporation Trust Company has prepared for distribution an analytical pamphlet on the new revenue bill. Copies may be had upon application to the company.

BELGIUM ASKS FOR $100,000,000 CREDIT

American Bankers Prepare to Make Their First Advance $50,000,000.

MONEY WILL BE SPENT HERE

Local Financiers Expect This Operation, if Successful, Will Be Followed by Many Similar Ones.

Arrangements are being perfected, it was learned yesterday, for the establishment of a large credit in this country in favor of some of the leading financial and commercial institutions of Belgium. No details of the credit have been arrived at as yet, but it is understood that the Belgian interests have requested that the amount be upward of $100,000,000. To date, American bankers are inclined to make the first advance, approximately $50,000,000.

The loan will not result in a public offering of securities. On the contrary, it will be in the form of an acceptance credit, along the general lines of the credits established here some time ago in favor of France. The bills, it is expected, will be eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Banks. A powerful banking syndicate will underwrite the transaction and it was said yesterday that the proceeds of the credit would be entirely spent in this country.

This operation is not to be of the so-called "rehabilitation financing," but is designed primarily to help Belgium obtain the raw materials she needs and may purchase in this market. It was pointed out that, while this would help Belgium a great deal, it would also help American industry.

Bankers who have been engaged in the negotiations of this credit have been forced to go very slowly, and it was said yesterday that it might be some weeks before the transaction is completed. Neither the United States Government nor the government of Belgium is directly concerned in the operation, but consent of both has to be obtained before plans can be finally agreed upon. This, together with the slowness of communications, has caused some delay already and is expected to result in more before the matter is finally settled.

Cabled advices recently received have stated that London bankers are willing and anxious to extend large credits to Belgium and private reports say that a good deal of this financing could be done at Paris. American bankers point out that if the United States is to take its place in world finance, it must undertake financing of this sort. This has been emphasized to authorities at Washington and it is said co-operation is expected. Local bankers believe that if this Belgian credit is arranged satisfactorily it will be merely the first of a considerable number of similar transactions.

NEW RAILROAD FINANCING.

Illinois Central Sells $16,000,000 Bonds to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

New railroad financing received fresh stimulus yesterday through the sale of $16,000,000 fifteen-year 5½ per cent. bonds of the Illinois Central Railroad Company to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. The banking firm immediately offered them for public sale at 97½ and interest, a price which yields the purchaser 5¾ per cent. if the bonds are held to maturity, or 6¼ per cent. if they are redeemed at the earliest redemption date. The issue is secured by the deposit of securities with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of a market value of $20,000,000, and the proceeds are to be used to discharge obligations entailed in expenditures made for additions and betterments.

The funds which the road has spent for improving its property and facilities are understood to have been provided in part by the Railroad Administration through advances last year. The total of these advances to the Illinois Central in 1918 was $17,425,000. The fact that the company had moved to fund its outlay on roadbed, terminals, and equipment aroused the expectation that a number of railroads would act in the near future to issue new securities for the purpose of retiring loans from the Government. These loans are partly call loans and partly of the long-term variety. A report that the Railroad Administration was urging the companies in position to do so to fund their loans as soon as possible could not be confirmed, although it was believed in banking quarters that the advances would be converted into security issues as rapidly as the state of the security market permitted.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy recently applied to the Illinois Public Service Commission for permission to issue $18,500,000 bonds. The Pennsylvania Railroad is planning to seek the consent of stockholders to a new authorization of $75,000,000 bonds. The Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company has asked stockholders to authorize $35,000,000 bonds, which are to be used as collateral for bank loans to repay advances of the Railroad Administration. The Railroad Administration owes the roads about $381,000,000 for back rent, and it is expected that payments on this account will be used in part to liquidate obligations to the Government.

COTTON PRICES DROP AGAIN.

Unsettlement again characterized the cotton market yesterday. The ring traders, inclined to cover some of their short commitments early in the day, found an abundant supply of cotton when they bought and, more or less convinced from this that the underlying market situation favored a further decline, turned bearish again and sold with vigor on all rallies. New Orleans was also a heavy seller, and it was reported that many of the big Southern mills were selling futures as hedges against stocks of cotton and cotton goods now held at plants. Then, commission houses were also numbered among the sellers, the supply from this source being mostly long cotton.

At the outset, the market was dull and prices were generally down, the range being 12 to 20 points under Wednesday's closing level. The early covering movement lifted the market to about on a parity with Wednesday's last figures and then, when this slight demand was satisfied and the Southern selling orders began to arrive, the market declined rapidly until, in mid-afternoon, it was about a full cent a pound down for the day. A good many stop orders were met on the decline and aided in depressing values. At the low levels some short covering stopped the break and sent quotations up slightly. The closing rally was not very strong and left the market anywhere from 60 to 90 points below Wednesday's figures.

The domestic situation as concerns labor was again capitalized by the bears, but of greater concern was the feeling that all commodities are on the decline. The feeling is that a widespread readjustment of commodity prices is in progress, and the cotton market interests are becoming alarmed. While the traders have been making money in speculation for the fall, it is realized that lasting harm will come to all concerned if the price of the staple is scaled down too sharply or too far.

UNITED CIGAR PROFITS GROW

$4,010,204 in 1918, as Against $2,873,501 in 1917.

The United Cigar Stores Company of America in its annual report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, shows net earnings of $4,010,204 after the deduction of Federal taxes. This is equivalent to $13.59 a share on the outstanding common stock after the subtraction of preferred dividends. In 1917 the net earnings of the company were $2,873,501, equivalent to $9.41 a share on the common stock, after Federal tax deductions and provisions for preferred dividends.

The net profits for 1918 were $5,010,204 as compared with net profits of $3,423,501 in the preceding year. After the payment of taxes and dividends on both the preferred and common stocks there was left a surplus last year of $1,384,544 as compared with a surplus in 1917 of $451,556. The balance sheet shows that holdings of stocks and bonds increased during the year just past from $868,179 to $1,599,421. The profit and loss surplus of the company now stands at $5,067,761.

FOUNDRIES' EARNINGS DROP

A sharp falling off in earnings is shown in the annual report of American Steel Foundries for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918. The surplus, after charges and war taxes, amounted to $2,695,727, a decrease from the 1917 report of $2,846,112. The surplus of last year was equivalent to $15.68 a share on the $17,184,000 capital stock, whereas in 1917 the surplus was equivalent to $32.13 a share.

The total income for last year was $4,189,424 as compared with $8,038,674 in 1917. The Federal tax reserve for last year was $1,357,200 which compares with $2,287,600 in the preceding year.

Five Stock Exchange Seats Sold.

Five Stock Exchange seats were sold yesterday, the highest priced being $70,000. The seat of Joe Bach, deceased, was sold to William C. Wilson for $68,000, and the seat of William H. Dixon went to William Cochran at the same figure. The seat of Huette Cammack was sold to David E. Levy for $69,500; that of James H. Jenkins went to Neville Gordon Hart for $70,000, and that of William F. Safford, deceased, to O. Carley Harriman for $69,500. Bancroft Smith, Benjamin F. Schwartz, George F. Naphen, and Donald Y. Hill were elected to the Exchange.

COPPER AT 18½ CENTS NOW

Copper was offered yesterday by all producers at 18½ cents, this being a reduction of 4½ cents a pound from the 23 cent level which prevailed after the first of the year when the Government price fixing ended. The 23 cent price was quoted for foreign trade by the Copper Export Association and thereupon became the price at which the producers held the metal for domestic trade. The price of 23 cents brought little or no buying into the market and the industry was stagnated with the copper mined piling up as a big surplus.

It develops that the outside sellers have, for the last week, been selling copper at 18½ cents and on Wednesday the big three—Anaconda, American Smelting and Refining and Phelps Dodge—began offering the metal at the same figure. It was said by a leading representative of an outside company that the outsiders might shade the 18½ cent price. He estimated that between six and eight million pounds of copper had changed hands at the 18½ cent level.

It was asserted that, relatively speaking, demand was lacking. The fact that actual sales were being consummated however was taken as a hopeful sign by some observers. Until a few days ago only about five per cent. of the output of the country, since the signing of the armistice, had been sold according to information given out in Washington. There was a disposition to see in the present sales at least a resumption of activity in the disposal of copper even though the price is sharply below that which was quoted by the larger companies up to Wednesday. The prediction was made by one authority that despite the reduced price now, copper would be selling higher at the close of this year than it was at the beginning.

The suggested combination can be acquired for about $1,600, and the dividend yield will approximate 10% on this investment—or on larger amounts by increased commitments in multiples of five.

A high yield investment in securities of reputable companies so fully developed is now opportune by reason of increased living costs, and also affords opportunity to exchange non-income producing, for dividend-paying securities.

The Care of Your Affairs While You Are Traveling

IT is a problem with many who travel how to provide properly for the care of their securities and numerous matters of personal business during their absence.

Our TRUST DEPARTMENT has a division organized solely for attention to such matters, with specialized facilities for taking care of your interests.

In connection with the care of your securities, we assume responsibility for their physical safety; collect and credit or remit to you promptly the income from your investments; collect and credit or remit the maturing principal of your securities, and endeavor to advise you in advance of due dates in order that you may have sufficient time to consider reinvestment; attend to the transfer or sale of securities upon order from you; etc.

We also attend to such matters as the payment of taxes, interest, insurance premiums, rents, allowances, as you may direct. We endeavor in each case to meet the particular needs of our clients.

The fee for this service is very moderate.

It will be a pleasure to explain to you in person at our Uptown or Downtown Offices, or by mail, how this service will meet your requirements. An explanatory booklet, The Safekeeping of Securities, will be sent on request.

This Company, through its Trust Department, acts as:
Executor Administrator Trustee under Deeds of Trust
Testamentary Trustee Guardian and in every other fiduciary capacity

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Securities values closed weak in a moderately active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final prices recorded substantial net losses throughout the list, with the copper issues the weakest group in the market. Fractional improvement as compared with the lowest levels was made in the final moments of trading, but the undertone of the market was unsettled and nervous.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—4,779 pkgs. Fresh receipts moderate, demand fairly active, and arrivals are clearing closely at slightly higher prices. Less improvement on low than high grade creamery, ladles and packing stock firmer. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 50@50½c; extras, 92 score, 49@49½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 46@48½c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 41@45c; lower grades, 38@40c; unsalted, higher than extras, 51½@52c; extras, 50½@51c; firsts, 47@49½c; seconds, 42@45½c; State dairy tubs, finest, 47¼@48¼c; good to prime, 43@47c; common to fair, 37@41c; renovated, extras, 43c; firsts, 40@41½c; lower grades, 35@39c; imitation creamery, firsts, 38@39c; ladles, current make, firsts, 37c; seconds, 35@36c; lower grades, 31@33c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 34½@35c; No. 2, 33@34c; lower grades, 29@32c.

EGGS.—21,894 cases. On the New York Mercantile Exchange sales of firsts were made in range of 46@47c. This price has affected the demand somewhat at the close, and some dealers are refusing to take hold, except on the basis of tomorrow's market. Tone closes irregular and the sharp advance is generally considered to be temporary. There has been some accumulation of stock here under shippers' limits. Nearby white eggs are in light supply and higher, and California stock shows improvement also. A good deal of California stock is, however, due to arrive, and it is doubtful whether present prices can be maintained. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 48¼@49c; extra firsts, 47½@48c; firsts, 46@47c; seconds and poorer, 40@43½c; dirties, No. 1, 42@43c; No. 2 and poorer, 40@41c; checks, good to choice, dry, 40@41c; undergrades, 37@39c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 58@60c; ordinary to prime, 54@57c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 53@58c; Pacific Coast whites, extras, 57c; lower grades, 48@55c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 48@55c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 52@55c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 47@49c.

To the Creditors of

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Plan and Agreement of Reorganization of John B. Rose Company and Rose Brick Company, dated January 17, 1919, has been adopted by the undersigned Reorganization Committee, and that a printed copy of same duly executed has been lodged with The New York Trust Company, as Depositary.

Creditors of John B. Rose Company and Rose Brick Company may become parties to said Plan and Agreement by executing assignments of their claims against said companies, or either of them, and any subsidiary or affiliated company, and John B. Rose individually, and depositing the same with the Depositary, THE NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY, 26 Broad Street, New York City, ON OR BEFORE FEBRUARY 21, 1919. All promissory notes and other original evidences of indebtedness must accompany the assignments.

After FEBRUARY 21, 1919, no deposits will be received except upon such terms and conditions as the Committee may impose. Participating creditors must pay to the Depositary for the account of the Committee at such times and in such amounts as the Committee may determine, their pro rata share of the new funds required for the purpose of effectuating the Plan of Reorganization. The calls for these payments will be made on at least ten days' published notice as provided in the Agreement of Reorganization.

The Depositary will issue to participating creditors its transferable Certificates of Deposit in respect of deposited claims.

The Secretary of the Committee upon application therefor will furnish copies of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization and forms of assignment of claims and powers of attorney.

TO THE HOLDERS OF
NEW ORLEANS RAILWAY & LIGHT CO.
REFUNDING AND GENERAL LIEN FIVE PER CENTUM GOLD BONDS
Bearing Date November 1, 1909, and Maturing November 1, 1949

The holders of large amounts of the securities above mentioned, being of the opinion that immediate steps should be taken to protect their interests therein, have requested the undersigned to act as a Committee to receive deposits thereof. A Receiver of the property of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company was appointed by the United States District Court on the ninth day of January, 1919, and the default of the company in the payment of interest upon its General Mortgage Four and One-half Per Cent. Gold Bonds, which occurred on January 1, 1919, still continues. The period of grace provided in the mortgage securing said bonds, within which such default may be cured, will expire within ninety days from the said first day of January, 1919. Should the default continue thereafter, the holders of said bonds would have the right to compel the foreclosure of said mortgage.

In view of these conditions, it is most urgent that the holders of the above mentioned Refunding and General Lien Five Per Centum Gold Bonds of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company, for their own protection, should organize at once for united action under a Committee having adequate power and authority. Holders of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company Refunding and General Lien Five Per Centum Gold Bonds are therefore requested to deposit their bonds with the Depositary or one of the Sub-Depositaries named below under a Bondholders' Agreement duly executed, under date of January 21, 1919. All bonds so deposited must be in negotiable form and must bear the May 1, 1919, and subsequent coupons. All depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names.

Before any depositor shall become bound by the terms of any plan or agreement of reorganization or readjustment made or approved by this Committee, he shall have an opportunity to withdraw on the terms and provisions set forth in the Bondholders' Agreement, which provides that withdrawing depositors shall not be required to pay, in respect of the compensation and expenses of the Committee, any sums in excess of 2% of the principal amount of their deposited bonds.

The Committee will promptly pay any interest which may be received by it on the deposited bonds to the holders of certificates of deposit representing the bonds in respect whereof such payments of interest shall be made, deducting any income tax required to be withheld.

Copies of the Committee's circular and of the Bondholders' Agreement may be obtained by application either to the Depositary or the Sub-Depositaries.

TO ALL HOLDERS OF
5-6% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds
OF THE
AMERICAN CITIES COMPANY

The undersigned Trustee has in its possession a majority of the stock, both preferred and common, of the following companies:

New Orleans Railway & Light Company,
The Memphis Street Railway Company,
Knoxville Railway & Light Company,
Birmingham Railway, Light & Power Company,
Houston Lighting & Power Company,
Little Rock Railway and Electric Company.

This stock is pledged and is being held to secure the payment of the 5-6% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the American Cities Company.

Several of the above-named companies have sent out notices of annual meetings of stockholders to be held in the near future. Until an event of default happened under the Indenture securing said bonds the American Cities Company had the right to demand the voting of this stock at such meetings, but said right has been forfeited by the happening of an event of default as defined in Section 3 of Article Six of said Indenture. Therefore, notice is given to the bondholders that any suggestions from them relative to the voting of said stock will be considered by the Trustee, and such action will be taken by the Trustee upon demand of the requisite number of bondholders, as is authorized under the Indenture, upon such bondholders complying with the terms and conditions thereof. Prompt action on the part of the bondholders is necessary, as time presses.

PRISON BARRACKS INQUIRY PROBABLE

Baker Expected to Appoint Commission to Review Strike of Leavenworth Prisoners.

ARMISTICE NOW IN EFFECT

Strikers Await Decision on Alleged Inequality of Sentences and Preference to Conscientious Objectors.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Some action by Secretary Baker in regard to the 1,500 military prisoners at Leavenworth Disciplinary Barracks, who recently went on strike, is expected to result from conferences which Colonel Sedgwick Rice, commandant of the barracks, began here today with heads of all the army's disciplinary barracks and Assistant Secretary Keppel. It is expected that a commission will be appointed to review the facts in regard to the alleged injustices at Leavenworth.

Quiet prevails at the barracks now, an agreement in the nature of an armistice having been reached between Colonel Rice and the striking prisoners in order to permit him to attend the conference of prison barracks governors here and to take up with the War Department the specific complaints of the Leavenworth strikers. The strikers are under pledge to the commandant to maintain order and continue at work during his absence. The chief complaint made by the strikers was that there was inequality in the sentences they were serving for similar offenses.

Revision of army legal procedure may result from the work of the War Department agencies now reviewing the subject of military discipline for the purpose not only of establishing a model system of prison administration, but also of ironing out inequalities and resultant unfairness in war-time sentences. Secretary Baker said he expected a model prison system to grow out of this study, insuring humane treatment of all prisoners.

The question of correcting inequalities in war-time sentences in the army is being studied by a special committee of the Judge Advocate General's office. Mr. Baker said he had advised President Page, of the American Bar Association, that he would welcome the advisory co-operation of the association's special committee appointed to study American military law and practice with a view to revision.

Secretary Baker expects to see Colonel Rice personally before the officer returns to his post at Leavenworth and hear of the grievances of the Leavenworth strikers at first hand. The basis of the strike, Colonel Rice indicated, was not only the inequality of war-time sentences, but also a feeling among other offenders that they were equally entitled to the clemency which they claimed conscientious objectors were receiving. Measures to equalize sentences are already being formed, and Secretary Baker said all classes of military offenders would be treated exactly as were the conscientious objectors—on their individual merits.

Of the Leavenworth situation, particularly important because the largest prison population in the country—3,600 men—is located there, Secretary Baker said:

"Each prisoner has and exercises the right of immediate appeal to the Secretary of War. Before a man is sent to Leavenworth his case comes to me for review, and I spend a great portion of my time going over court martial records. After a man has gotten to Leavenworth, if he writes to me that he thinks he has been there long enough, the request is invariably sent to Colonel Rice for report, and the case is decided upon its merits. I have had a great many cases of this kind, and have commuted the sentences of a great many men, for both military and civil offenses.

"With regard to the statement that the men are complaining of the inequality of sentences imposed for the same offenses; this occurs also in civil courts. One judge will sentence a man to ten years for a certain offense, and another judge will only impose a two-year sentence. It depends upon the culpability of the man, and not entirely upon the offense charged."

A. B. HEPBURN ENDOWS COURSE IN COMMERCE

Turns Over $200,000 in Securities to Chamber of Commerce —May Be at Columbia.

The establishment of a commercial course, possibly at Columbia University, has been provided for by A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board, of the Chase National Bank, it was announced yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York. Mr. Hepburn has turned over $200,000 to the Chamber to create a fund, the income of which shall be devoted to the promotion of commercial education with special reference to the modern languages.

"The present income of these securities, a number of bank and trust company stocks," said Mr. Hepburn's letter to the Chamber, "is $8,600, and should be more as time goes by. I create this fund in the above form because I am familiar with the properties whose securities I hand you, and believe them to be an excellent form of investment. However, you are quite at liberty to sell them whenever in the judgment of the Executive Committee a sale would be wise, the proceeds to be reinvested in good securities in order to preserve the fund hereby created, and produce a continuing income for the purpose above specified."

Mr. Hepburn also said that should a College of Commerce, or its equivalent, be created with the co-operation and approval of the Chamber, the fund might be transferred ot the support and maintenance of such an institution. Until such a project becomes a fact, continued Mr. Hepburn, the income of the fund would be used in furthering business training. In this connection Mr. Hepburn called attention to a resolution adopted on Jan. 2 by the Chamber, which set forth "that the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York approve a system of examinations and certificates of proficiency substantially as described in the report herewith submitted, and authorizes and instructs the Executive Committee to take active measures to put them into practical execution."

Mr. Hepburn is a member of the Board of Trustees of Columbia University. At the university it was said last night that no notification of the establishment of an additional course in the School of Business had been received, but the sentiment at the Chamber meeting indicated that Columbia would be chosen.

WOULD BAN GERMAN PLAYS.

Women's Committee Gives Out Letters Indorsing Its Attitude.

Letters written by members of the Legislature indorsing the efforts of the American Defense Society's Women's National Committee to have German plays at the Irving Place Theatre forbidden were given out yesterday at the organization's headquarters, 415 Madison Avenue. Among those who wrote were Senator Seymour Lowman and Senator L. W. H. Gibbs, and Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, who said in part:

"I fully appreciate the propaganda instituted to restore German prestige in this country. I cannot believe that our people have so soon or will so soon forget the atrocities heaped upon innocent men, women, and children. My judgment is that the press, as soon as it becomes aired and known to the American people, will create such an adverse sentiment that the theatres which opened their doors in recognition of German propaganda will automatically close. I shall be glad to bring the matter to the attention of my associates, both legislative and otherwise, and express myself on the subject to them."

CITY HALL.
New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 8628, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of the bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $600,000.00 in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. The bonds shall be paid for in cash as fast as said bonds can be signed and delivered. All bonds will be delivered within thirty days from the opening of said bids. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Further particulars and information will be furnished on application to the Public Belt Railroad Commission or the undersigned. The final opinion of Wood & Oakley, lawyers, Chicago, Ill., as to the legality of this issue will be furnished to the successful bidder if so desired.

A. G. RICKS,
Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans.

SUES ON BOND ISSUE.

Bankers Trust Company Gets a Property Attachment.

The Bankers Trust Company, as trustee of a bond issue for $10,000,000 executed by the National Securities Corporation, in July, 1914, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday to recover the face value of the bonds and unpaid interest, making the sum for $10,472,302. Because the defendant is a foreign corporation Supreme Court Justice Platzek issued an attachment against its property.

Sheriff Knott served notice of the attachment on the Guaranty Trust Company and learned that the defendant has securities there valued at $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 in which its equity is $3,350,000. The Sheriff found securities worth $335,000 at the office of the Electric Bond & Share Company, consisting of 2,877 shares of stock of the Idaho Power Company, and notes for $85,000.

Demobilizing Macy's Service Flag.

In a bulletin issued yesterday by the War Camp Community Service an account is given of the first ceremony in demobolizing its service flag by R. H. Macy & Co. Three thousand five hundred employes took part and forty of the 366 stars on the flag were replaced with bars of gold. Four other blue stars were turned to golden stars and an impressive part of the ceremony was the minute of silence, a tribute to the four young men who gave up their lives. The forty stars taken from the flag represent men who have been discharged from the service, thirty-two of whom have returned to the store.
